

No Covid-19 symptoms? You could still be unknowingly spreading it to your loved ones.

Certain groups of people may be at higher risk of transmitting the virus to others due to their increased exposure, like college students and those that travel for work (e.g. construction workers).

You're likely to be most infectious right before symptoms appear, if they appear at all.

INFECTIOUS

You may or may not show symptoms of the virus, but still be highly contagious. This is why it's best to always assume you have the virus and take the necessary precautions.

Reinfections are believed to be possible, so continue to protect yourself from the virus.

Avoid going home from the city or campus to ensure you don't bring the virus to your family.

Don't let your guard down! The coronavirus might be hiding in plain sight.

While at school, make sure to:

Maintain social distance of at least 6 feet at all times when around people who don't live with you.

Stay in your dorm as much as possible and don't gather with others outside of your dorm room.

If in classroom..

Laundry

Clean and disinfect common surfaces before and after use.

Wash your hands often with soap and water or use a hand sanitizer (with at least 60% alcohol content), both for at least 20 seconds.

Get tested for Covid-19 as much as possible, especially if you think you might have been exposed to the virus or feel sick.

Shared Dorm Room

Avoid sharing items with others. If you do, clean and disinfect before sharing or using.
