

California Native American Cannabis Association Associate Membership Program

About CNACA:

The California Native American Cannabis Association (CNACA) is a 501 (c) (6) non-profit organization dedicated to protecting tribal sovereignty and promoting tribal self-reliance by assisting California tribes in designing and implementing comprehensively regulated, legal cannabis and hemp enterprises that benefit tribal communities, protect consumer safety, and provide medical benefit.

Associate Membership Program:

The CNACA Associate Membership program is designed to facilitate corporate sponsorships among cannabis industry commercial providers for the benefit of CNACA advocacy initiatives, including; funding CNACA membership meetings and training forums, educating state legislators, and funding state government meetings to coordinate tribal/state cannabis industry regulation and economic development.

Membership Process:

Three levels of corporate sponsorship are available with varying benefits to CNACA Associate Members. Prospective CNACA Associate Members are required to complete a membership application. Requests for Associate Membership at the level requested must be approved by majority vote of the CNACA Executive Committee. The term of CNACA Associate Membership at the Platinum level shall be two years with a renewal option at the end of each term for Platinum Associate Members in good standing. All other levels of Associate Membership shall be re renewed annually for Associate Members in good standing.

Membership Upgrades:

CNACA Associate Members in good standing may upgrade their level of membership at any time during their membership period. Associate Members upgrading their membership level by remitting the required fees for the new level of membership (i.e. upgrading from Silver to Gold requiring an additional $3,000 donated to CNACA) would enjoy the benefits of membership at the higher level for the remaining months of their annual membership term.
