

The Global Award Of Inspirational Leadership

Call for Nominations

The pace of change will continue to accelerate, so much so, that during some point within the next decade, organizations will be forced to change in a way for which there has been no precedent Given such unprecedented changes, it is no surprise that an assortment of rapidly growing demands and expectations, are increasingly being placed on organizational leaders.

Increasingly, leaders are expected to untangle paradox and uncertain, balance conflicting demands, connect and empower those around them and adapt to change within an instant. At the same time employee expectations and value propositions are demanding leaders to cultivate a more playful and meaningful workplace, whilst simultaneously balancing autonomy and direction

What is more, society is also placing new and burdensome expectations on organizational leaders, as it increasingly demands transparency, authentic corporate social responsibility and societal contribution.

So, who are the real Inspirational Leaders who would represent models for business organizations to follow?
