1. What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that websites may store on your device. Similar technologies can also be used to understand how visitors interact with a website.

Some cookies are necessary for a website to operate properly. Others help measure website traffic, understand visitor behaviour or support advertising.

2. How we use cookies

Our website uses or may use the following categories of cookies and similar technologies:

Strictly necessary cookies

These support essential website functions, security and the operation of features you request. These cookies do not require consent where they meet the applicable legal exemption.

Analytics cookies

We use Google Analytics to help us understand how visitors use our website, which pages are visited and how we can improve the customer experience.

Analytics cookies are non-essential. Where consent is required by law, these cookies will only be used after you have given valid consent.

Other cookies

Our website hosting, embedded content or other features may use additional cookies or similar technologies. These should be identified in our cookie consent tool and explained according to their actual purpose.

3. Managing your cookie preferences

When you visit our website, you should be able to review the relevant cookie information and accept or reject non-essential cookies where consent is required.

You should also be able to change or withdraw your consent later through the website's cookie settings, where available.

You can manage cookies through your browser settings, although blocking certain cookies may affect some website functions.

4. Google Analytics

Google Analytics may collect information about website usage, including pages viewed, browser and device details, referral sources and interactions.

The information collected depends on our Google Analytics configuration and your consent preferences. We aim to configure analytics in accordance with applicable data protection and privacy requirements.

For further information, visit Google's policies at <https://policies.google.com/privacy>.

5. Changes to this policy

We may update this Cookie Policy if the cookies or technologies used on our website change.
