SIREN FX selects QuantHouse as global market data partner

London- October 3, 2024- SIREN FX, a UK FX benchmark and reference rate provider, today announced their partnership with QuantHouse, a leading provider of international market data.

The partnership will see SIREN FX's fixing data integrated into QuantHouse's product offering, in an aim to improve pricing for clients executing large FX transactions.

SIREN FX provides a number of FX benchmark and reference products which are designed to offer end users independent, transparent and ethical FX solutions. In response to customer demand, SIREN FX has added a five-minute reference fixing to their suite of products, which allows customers to seamlessly migrate from their existing FX benchmark to SIREN for users who need a proxy for the standard benchmarks. SIREN FX also provides the revolutionary 20-minute benchmark with all the benefits of an independent and transparent spot FX benchmark.

John Frade, SIREN Head of Sales said: "We are excited to partner with QuantHouse as a key route to market to help our customers seamlessly onboard the SIREN FX products into their workflow. By partnering with QuantHouse we are confident that customers will quickly benefit from the additional choices around their FX trade, fixing and reference pricing."

Rob Kirby, EMEA Head of Sales & Business Development from QuantHouse said: "QuantHouse strives to offer our customers the most flexible data solutions for their entire workflow. We immediately saw the benefits of the SIREN fixing products for our clients, which is why we moved quickly to be the first vendor to offer this new data product with SIREN.

"Firms using existing FX reference rates can be challenged by a lack of choice and transparency in how the main FX benchmarks are calculated, which can result in an added level of cost and complexity. The SIREN fixing product aims to remove this cost and complexity from FX transactions while giving customers choice in the execution of their investments related to foreign exchange activity."

SIREN FX and QuantHouse teams will be notifying clients of the new offering and their intention to work together on future joint integrations.

About SIREN FX:

SIREN FX is the premier provider of foreign exchange data and benchmark execution services. Utilising sophisticated algorithms and forward-thinking technology, SIREN FX delivers precise, transparent, and efficient FX execution solutions to clients worldwide.

SIREN FX is at the forefront of innovation in the Foreign Exchange Market. Our FCA Regulated Benchmark Rate, in association with NCFX offers an independent Spot FX Benchmark and Reference Rates that has been developed to be traded, unlike other benchmarks which have been designed for a point in time portfolio valuations.

SIREN FX provides market participants with a suite of data and analytic tools that empower trading decisions related to their foreign exchange activity, whilst achieving compliance with industry codes of conduct.
