ty (RCSSC) found itself in a similar situation, albeit a smaller scale than America's Patriots faced with King George III. The Republican coup of our club. Like the colonists, The Board reached out to the RPOF (King George) hoping to find common ground, but the unreproachable RPOF demanded the club bend the knee and kiss the ring for the mere privilege of calling ourselves "Republicans." Other events at the RPOF level exacerbated the situation, further causing the mandates submitted to the Executive Board too expensive a price to pay for just "Republican" naming rights. Four of the five mandates specifically targeted our club, making our club vulnerable for takeover/loss of charter, mandating who our

For over 25 years, our club worked autonomously running our affairs and building our treasury without RPOF/REC assistance. The sole Charter's purpose – so we could call ourselves Republicans.

Our Club had no choice but to exit immediately from under the Republican umbrella and form a new organization independent from their Establishment agenda, adopting a movement better encompassing the moral culture of a majority of our membership – small government, strong military deterrence, controlled borders, voter ID, fair elections, listening to the voters, strong 2A, supporting our Constitutional Republic, and bringing God back into our lives.

After exhausting many man-hours researching various options, the Executive Board agreed upon the creation of a new club – "America First Southwest Florida Caucus," which embraces all of the above.

The RPOF did us a huge favor forcing our America First movement acceptance, allowing us to be a true activist club without intervention by the Establishment Republican RPOF/REC. We now may endorse, donate to, and campaign for any candidate(s) of our choice, and ignore an establishment candidate selected by the RPOF/REC

Green lemons: EV's reportedly have 80 percent more problems than gas powered cars

The numbers are in and electric vehicles have a stunning 80 percent more problems than historically reliable gas-powered cars, seeming to prove that once again, the critics were right.

In news that won't be welcomed by auto dealers who are already struggling to move the relentlessly hyped and more exports survey found that the vehicles that are being relentlessly pushed on Americans by President Joe Biden and Democrat

The consumer information website and magazine gathered data from owners of over 330,000 EVs from model years 2000 to 2023 about their most common problems and found issues from minor nuisances to "potentially expensive out-of-warranty engine, transmission, EV battery, and EV charging problems."

Reactions to the report included Sen. Ted Cruz (R-Texas) who took to X to weigh in on a product that few are demanding but which is being forced on them by an increasingly oppressive federal government. "President Biden's insane proposed EV mandate looks worse and worse as the days go on," he said. "The government has no business in telling Americans what

Rep. Josh Brecheen (R-Okla.)." We must stop listening to

Over 3,000 auto dealers sent a letter to President Joe Biden telling him that it's time to "tap the brakes on the unrealistic government electric vehicle mandate" that his regime is push-

"With each passing day, it becomes more apparent that this attempted electric vehicle mandate is unrealistic based on current and forecasted customer demand. Already, electric vehicles are stacking up on our lots which is our best indicator of "The majority of customers are simply not ready to make the change. They are concerned about BEVs being unaffordable. Many do not have garages for home charging or easy access

"Customers are also concerned about the loss of driving range in cold or hot weather. With long daily commutes they don't have the extra time to charge the battery. Today's current technology is not adequate to support the needs of the majority of our consumers," the dealers told Biden. Contributed by Rich Mazur
