

Once upon a time, there
were families, just like
yours and mine, living
ordinary lives filled with love, laughter, and
dreams for the future.

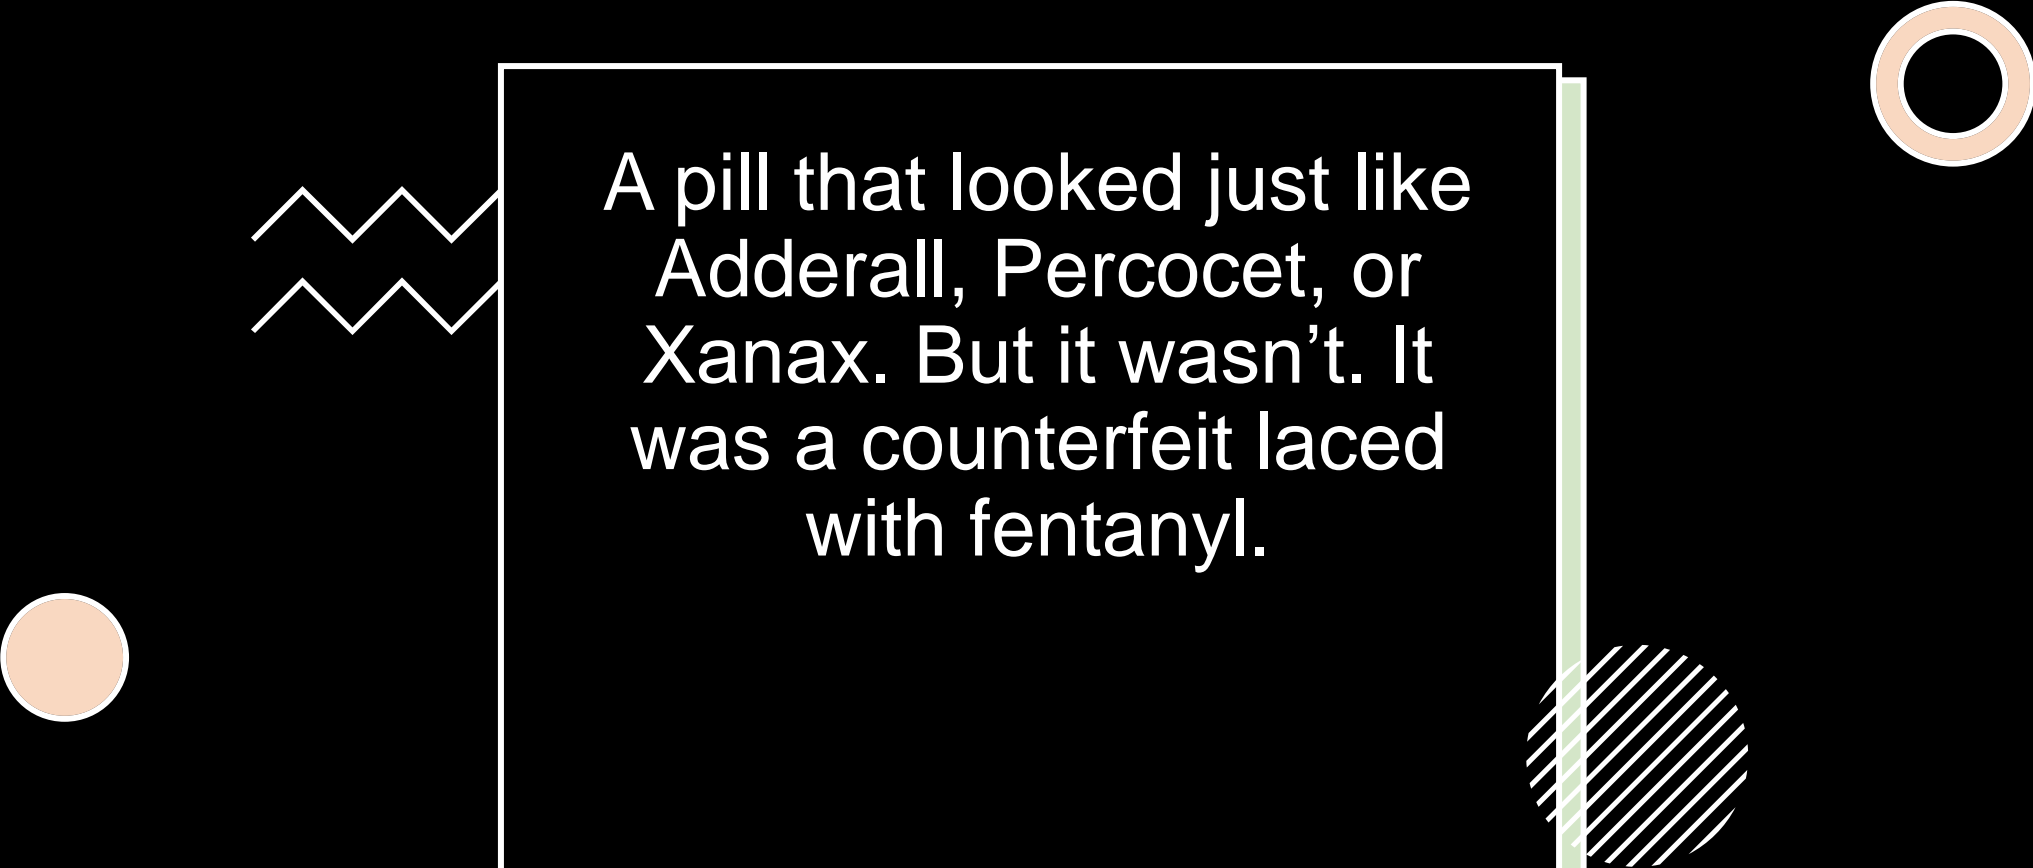

Every day, kids went to school,
played sports, made friends, and
scrolled through their phones—
never imagining one mistake
could be their last.

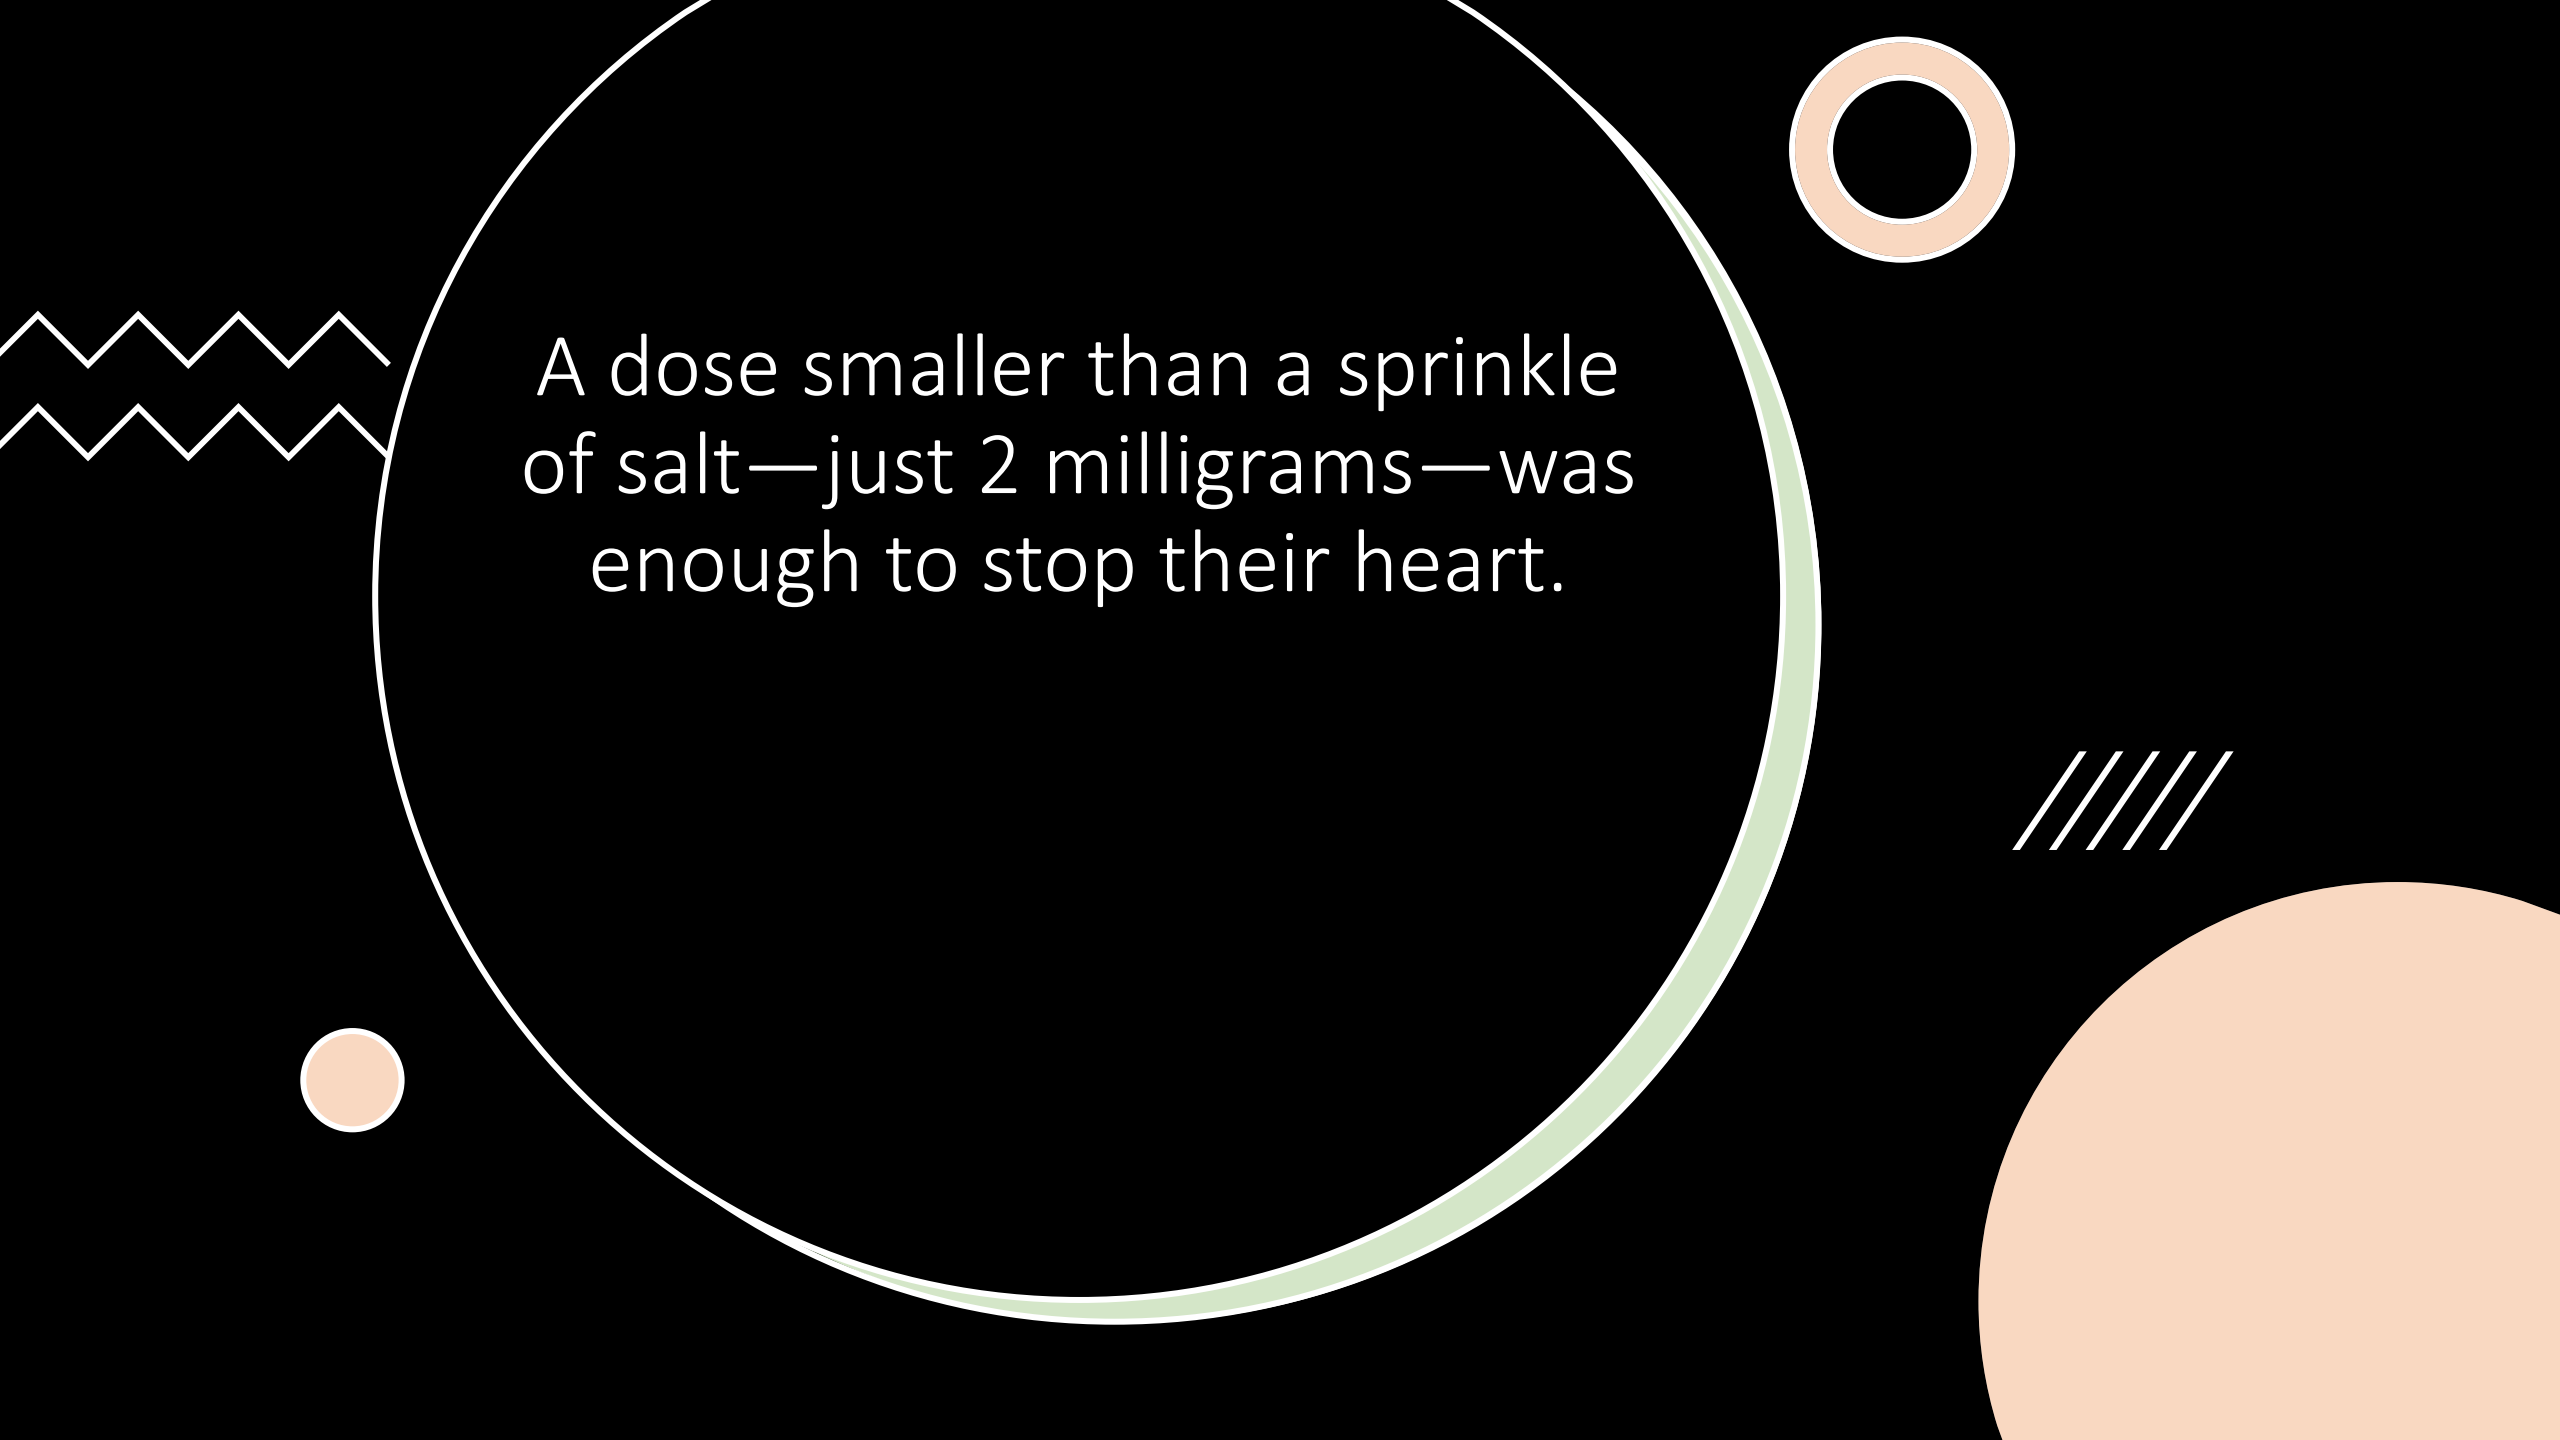

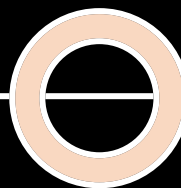

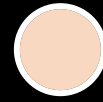

Until one day, someone
they trusted—online or at a party—offered them a pill.

A pill that looked just like Adderall, Percocet, or Xanax. But it wasn't. It was a counterfeit laced
with fentanyl.

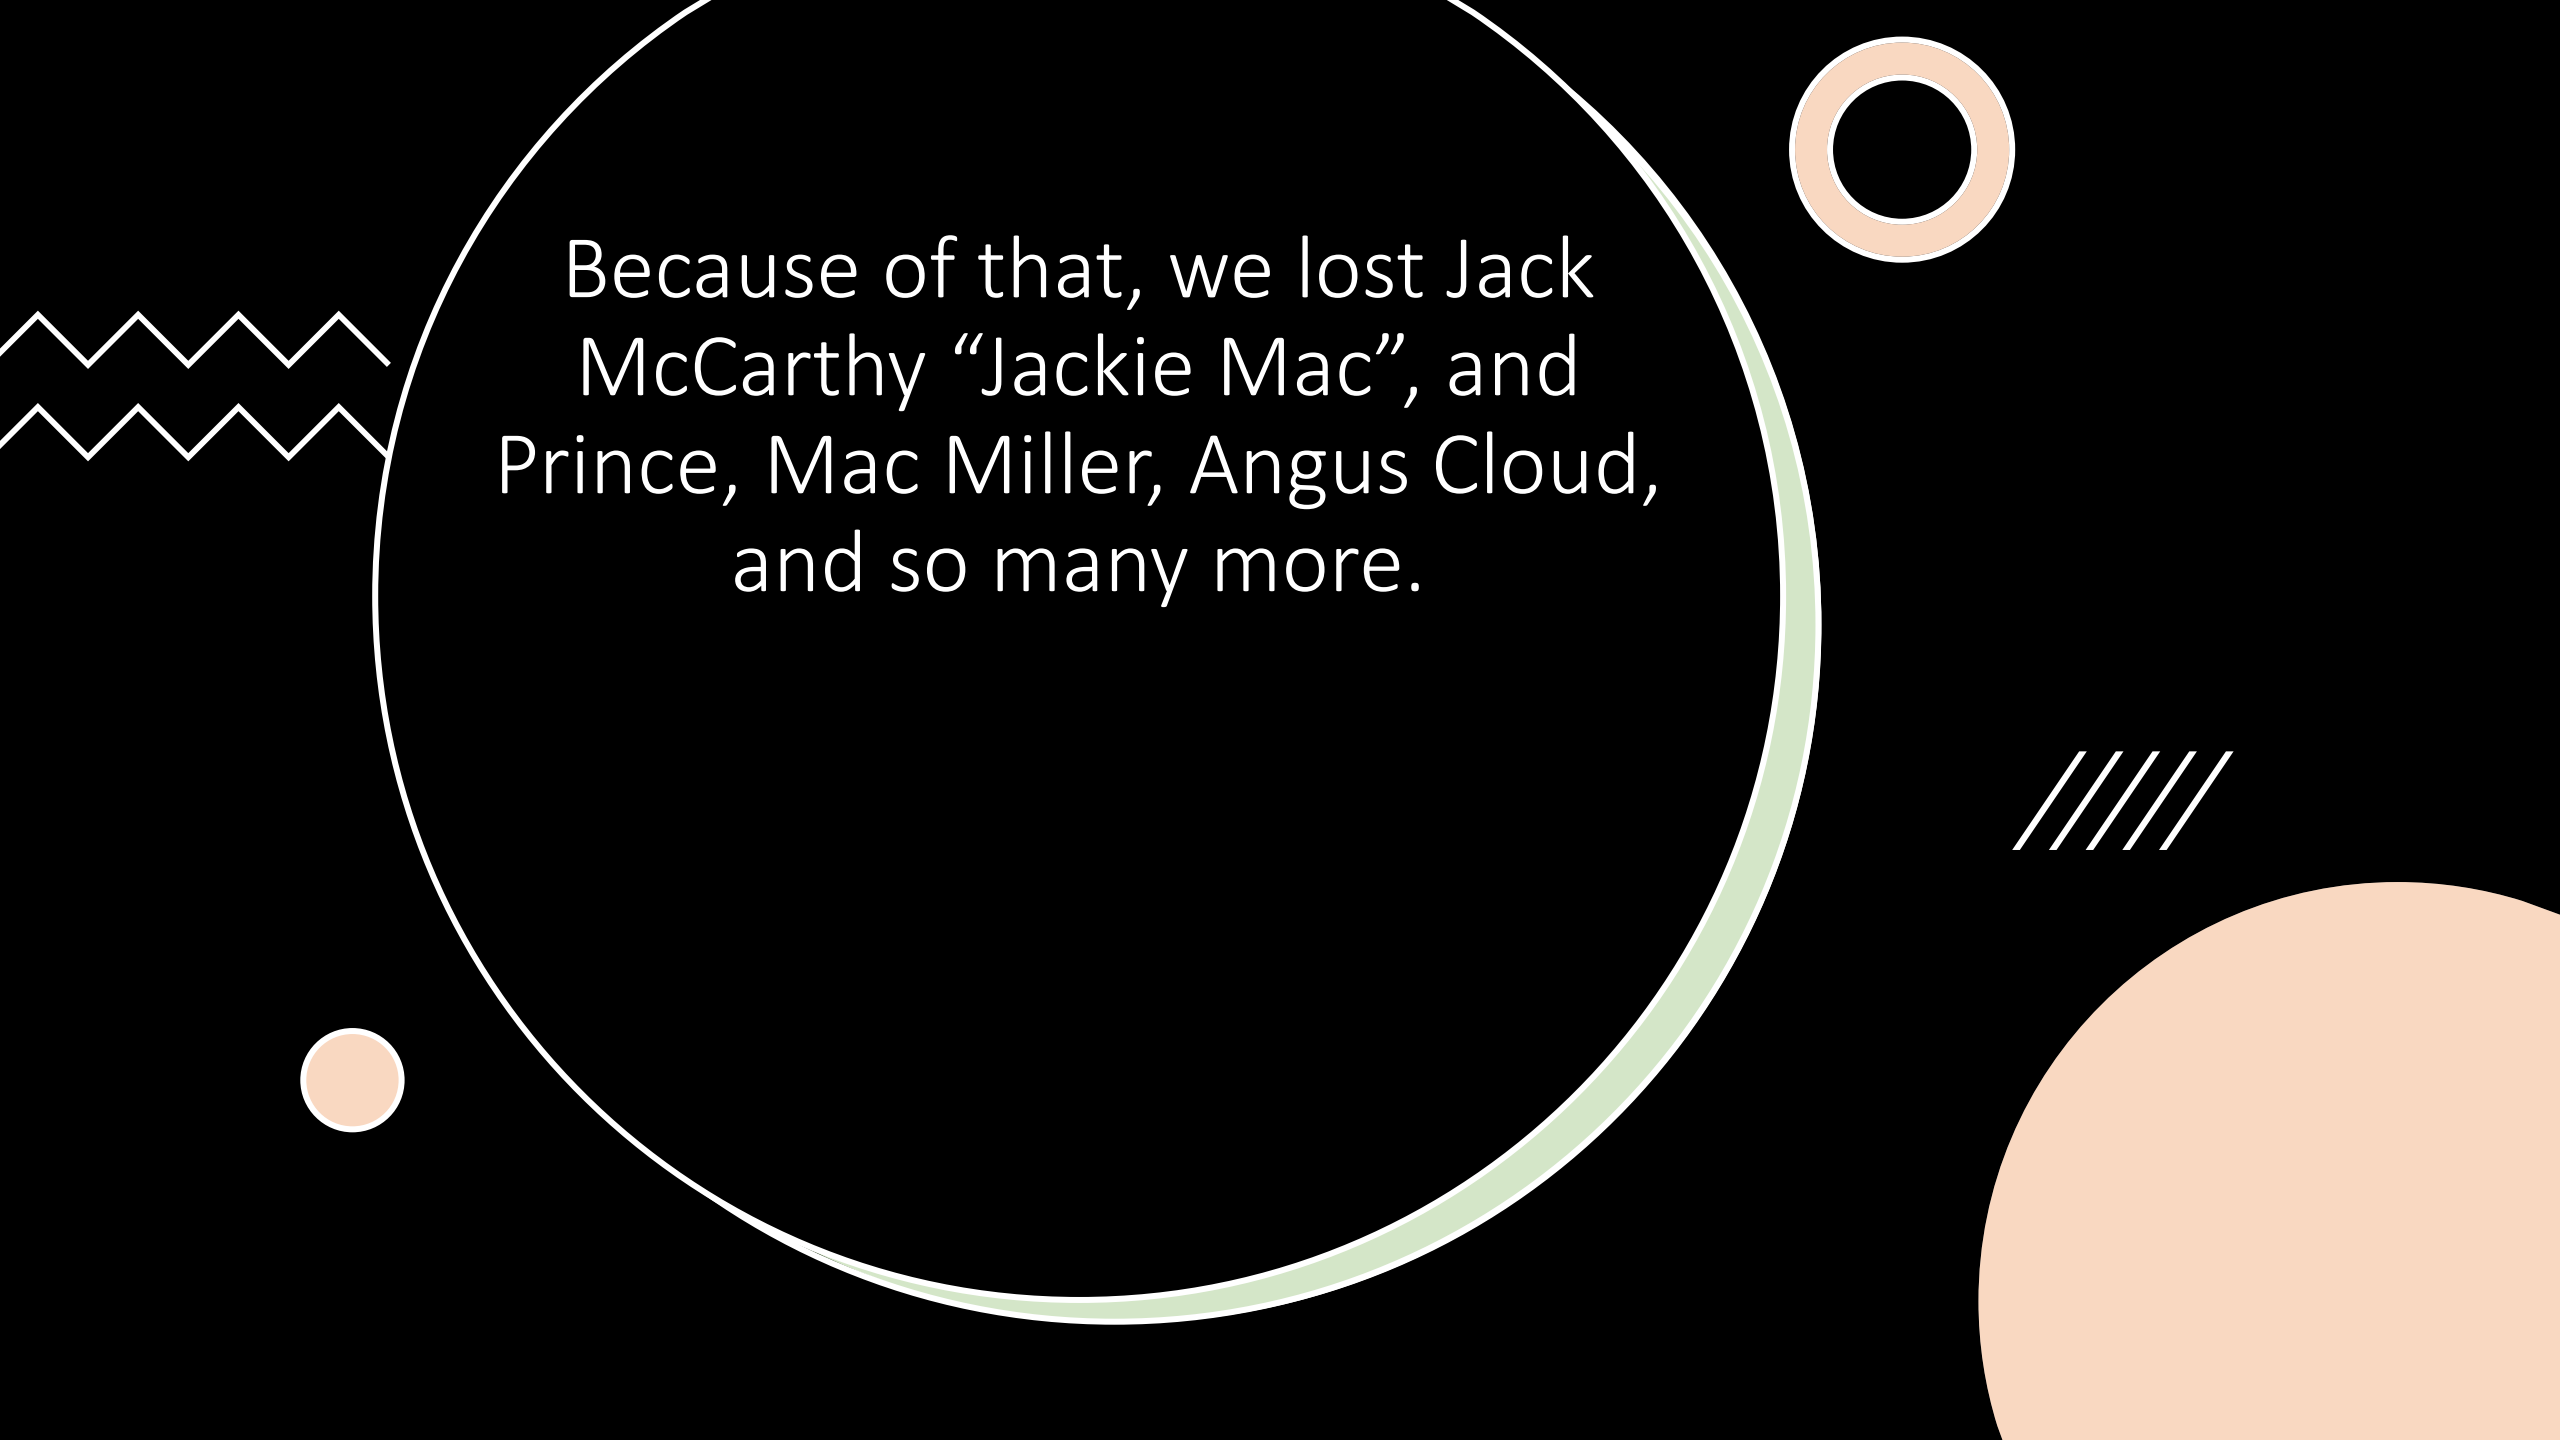

The image features a dark background with various geometric elements. A large, thin white circle is centered, with a thick light green arc on its right side. To the left of the circle is a white zigzag line. In the top right corner is a small orange circle with a white outline. In the bottom left corner is a small solid orange circle. In the bottom right corner is a large solid orange circle. To the right of the large white circle is a set of four parallel white diagonal lines. The text is centered within the large white circle.

A dose smaller than a sprinkle of salt—just 2 milligrams—was enough to stop their heart.

Because of that, over 107,000 people died from drug overdoses last year—more than from car accidents, suicides, or homicides combined.

The background is a solid black field. A large, thin white circle is centered on the left side. A thick, light green arc follows the bottom and right side of this circle. In the top right corner, there is a small orange circle with a white outline. To the left of the main circle, there are two white zigzag lines. Below the main circle, there is a small orange circle with a white outline. In the bottom right corner, there is a large, solid orange circle. To the right of the main circle, there are four parallel white diagonal lines.

Because of that, we lost Jack McCarthy “Jackie Mac”, and Prince, Mac Miller, Angus Cloud,
and so many more.

Because of that, grieving
parents founded
Fentanyl Fathers—a nonprofit powered by heartbreak and hope.

Their mission is to make sure
no family wakes up to the silence they live with every day.

The background is black with several abstract geometric elements. In the top-left corner, there is a light orange semi-circle and a white zigzag line. In the bottom-left corner, there is a light green circle. In the bottom-right corner, there is a light green semi-circle. A large black rectangle with a white border and a light orange drop shadow is centered on the page.

Until finally, we started talking.

We started educating.

The image features a large, thin white circle centered on a black background. Inside this circle, the text "We started saving lives." is written in a white, sans-serif font. To the left of the circle, there are two horizontal wavy lines. Below the circle, on the left side, is a small solid orange circle. To the right of the circle, there is a small double-lined orange circle. In the bottom right corner, there is a rectangular grid of small white dots. The overall design is minimalist and modern.

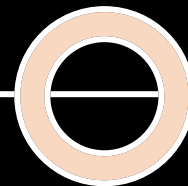

We started
saving lives.

The background is black and features several abstract geometric elements. A large circle with a thin white outline and a thick light green inner border is centered on the left. To its left, two white zigzag lines extend from the edge. In the top right, there is a small orange circle with a white outline. Below it, a set of five parallel white diagonal lines is visible. In the bottom left, a small solid orange circle is present. In the bottom right, a large solid orange circle is partially visible.

Today we're here to...

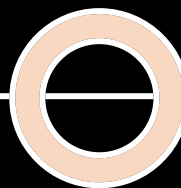

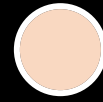

1. Warn you about fake pills and the lethal risks they carry.

2. Teach you how to use Naloxone (Narcan)—a simple spray that can reverse an overdose in seconds.

3. Connect you to real resources like
Save A Life Stations that offer free
Narcan, fentanyl test strips, and more.

A photograph showing several hands of different skin tones reaching in from the edges of the frame to form a heart shape in the center. The hands are positioned with fingers pointing towards the center, creating a symmetrical heart outline. The background is a plain, light-colored surface.

4. Help you become someone who can save a life.

Because awareness is
power.

Because trying once shouldn't
mean dying forever.

Because the most dangerous drug out there might be the one you didn't even know you were taking.

The image features a dark background with various geometric elements. A large, thin white circle is centered, with a thick light green line tracing its inner edge. To the left, a white zigzag line extends from the edge. In the top right, there is a small orange circle with a white outline. In the bottom left, another small orange circle with a white outline is present. On the right side, there are four parallel white diagonal lines. In the bottom right corner, a large, solid orange circle is partially visible.

You don't need to be a doctor or a first responder
to save a life.

The image features a large, thin white circle centered on a black background. To the left of the circle, two white wavy lines extend horizontally. In the top right corner, there is a small orange circle with a white outline. In the bottom left corner, there is a solid orange circle. In the bottom right corner, there is a square grid of small white dots. The text "You just need to care enough to act." is written in white, sans-serif font, centered within the large circle.

You just need to care enough to act.

A close-up, low-angle shot of a person's hand resting on a wooden surface. The hand is wearing a dark, ribbed sleeve. To the left, a person's leg in a dark t-shirt is visible. To the right, a person's arm in a green long-sleeved shirt is visible. The background is dark and out of focus.

Let's make sure no one else's
story ends too soon.