

LEGAL SUPPORT INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE

A Professional Investigative Agency

TESTIMONIALS:

"Randall assisted our firm in the trial of a complex personal injury case arising out of a civil battery. Numerous witnesses had provided multiple, often conflicting statements to the responding police officers, and later to detectives, an insurance investigator, and in depositions.

We employed Randall for both his Paralegal and Investigative expertise to review, compare and contrast all statements and deposition testimony. He found repeated contradictions in the defense witness statements, allowing me to effectively attack the credibility of these defense witnesses at trial. Additionally, Randall took photographs of the scene and created a scene diagram which we enlarged for use in trial which visually demonstrated the witness locations with measured distances from the incident, supporting our case.

Randall's work in both contexts was exceptional, as was his reliability, integrity and professionalism. I would not hesitate to recommend Randall in either capacity in any civil or criminal litigation."

In The News:

This past year has been eventful for the California private investigator industry.

P.I. Andrew Delio had been operating without a license over thirteen years. The problem for his attorneys and clients is that he claimed to be federal agent, worked "Special Ops" in Iraq and Afghanistan which led to his arrest AND he was a convicted felon in possession of a firearm.

Media darling and reality show hopeful, P.I. Chris Butler, aka P.I. Moms, has been featured in People Magazine, the Today Show and Dr. Phil. The problem for his attorneys and clients is that he used females to setup "dirty" DUI's in custody cases. He was also arrested and facing felony charges for selling crystal methamphetamine, anabolic steroids, & marijuana.

Noble v Sears Roebuck (1973) held attorneys/clients liable for the torts of P.I.s. These cases are extreme but there are many more that never make the headlines. Think caveat emptor ... Buyer Beware!
