A close-up photograph of a hand holding a circular Masonic ring. The ring features a silver-toned band and a dark face with a white Masonic symbol. The background is dark, with a portion of a yellow and black plaid tie visible in the upper right corner.

Chapter 07
MASONIC REGALIA

There is no “uniform” manner of wearing a Masonic Apron.

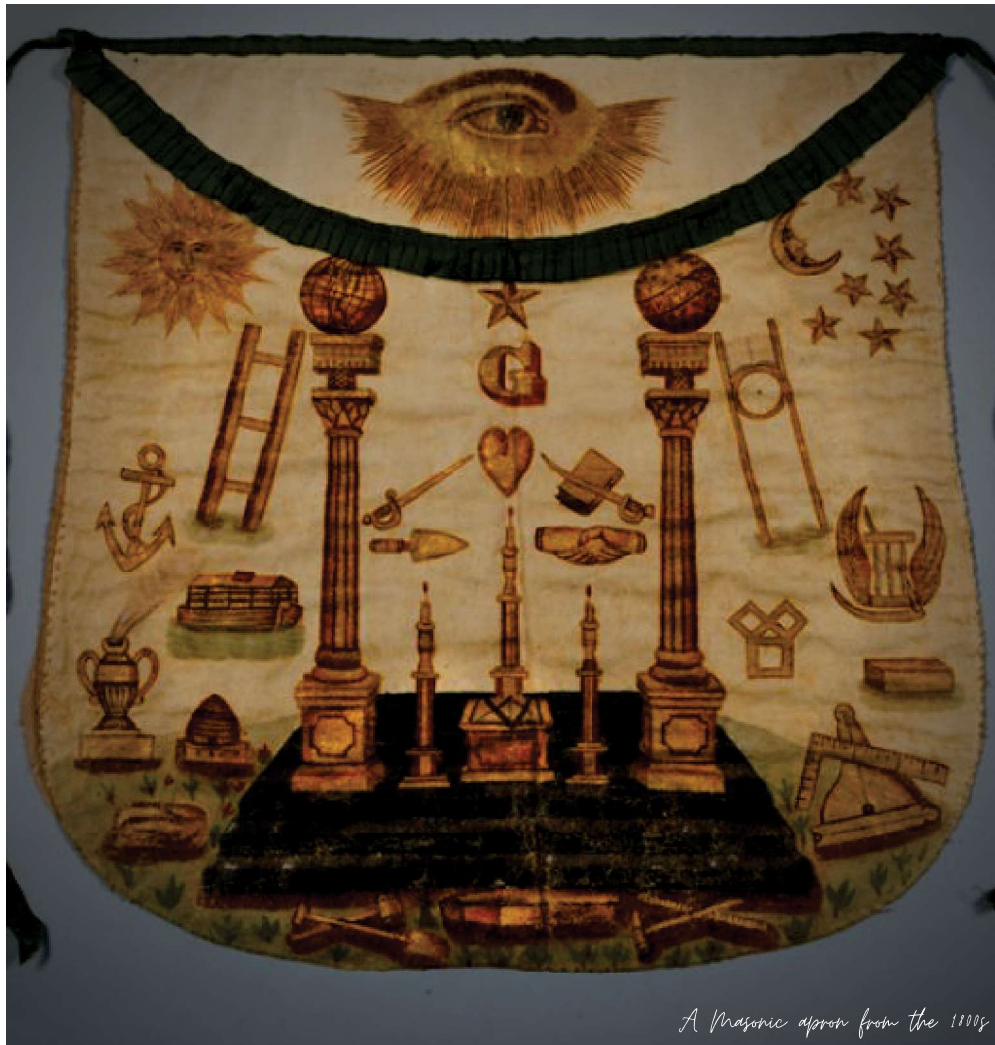

It varies in different jurisdictions.

A Masonic apron should only be worn on Masonic duty, such as; in a Lodge, a funeral of a Brother, or at a laying of a cornerstone.

Speculative Masons wear white gloves as an emblem of clean hands, but operative Masons wore gloves to protect their hands.

There are no regulations on how, when, or if a Masonic ring should be worn; however, it is customary to wear a ring with the points of the Square & Compasses pointing to your heart.

A Masonic apron from the 1800s