National Black Police Association Elects New Board and Leadership

Philadelphia, PA – January 3, 2025 – The National Black Police Association (NBPA) is pleased to announce the election of its new board of directors and leadership team. This marks an important milestone for the association as it continues its commitment to promoting positive change, enhancing public safety, and supporting Black law enforcement professionals across the United States.

After a thorough election process, the newly elected board and leadership will work together to advance the NBPA's mission of advocating for fair and just policing, addressing systemic inequalities, and providing resources and support for Black officers and law enforcement professionals. The board is dedicated to fostering community engagement, empowering Black officers, and contributing to a more inclusive and equitable law enforcement landscape.

Newly Elected Leadership:

- National Chair: Suwana Kirkland
- Vice Chair: Krista Andrews
- Secretary: Kim Lyons-Criss
- Fiscal Officer: Sharon Marbury-Vester
- Sergeant-At-Arms: Sheldon Smith
- Parliamentarian: Nina Justice
- Chaplain: Carolyn Stevenson

“We are entering a new era for the National Black Police Association,” said Suwana Kirkland, newly elected National Chair of the NBPA. “As we focus on advancing the interests of Black Officers, working toward reform within law enforcement agencies, and promoting equity within the justice system, we must remember that the voice and vision of the National Black Police Association is only as strong as its members.”
