America's Best Deer Hunts

Midwestern whitetails like this grow big, both in body and antler.

CHEYENNE RIDGE

Simply put, the whitetail hunting at Cheyenne Ridge North Platte Outpost is some of the finest in the Midwest. The Outpost's three miles of wooded North Platte River bottom, thick cover and well-managed food plots account for some truly impressive whitetails. Our team of biologists has managed this stretch of river bottom into a slice of deer-hunting heaven.

Clients can expect to hunt mature deer from 150 points up to the equal of last season's best, a buck that topped the magical 170 mark. A number of even bigger bucks were spotted. At NPO you can choose your weapon – bow, rifle or muzzleloader – based on the season.

Located near Hot Springs, South Dakota, Hat Creek Outpost provides 44,000 additional acres of Cheyenne Ridge Outfitters-owned land. Twelve miles of creek bottom along with many acres of rolling hills and draws means great hunting for whitetails and mule deer.

The Little Missouri Outpost in southwestern North Dakota adds another 35,000 acres of trophy whitetail and mule deer hunting to our portfolio. Large, well-managed tracts with very limited pressure assure you the opportunity for the trophy of a lifetime. Call (877) 850-5144 or visit www.cheyenneridgesports.com
