By: Hasika Arkala

Dollarina is waking in Profitopia when suddenly a random door appears right in front of her. Her curiosity causes her to enter through this door into a whole other dimension.

The door lead Dollarina to another planet called Earth. In this place called Earth she came to some place called New York City.

While walking the streets of New York City something white and cold was falling and the wind was blowing. Dollarina was freezing and shivering due to the cold weather.

Dollarina enters a store and sees' a big fluffy jacket. Without thinking she takes it and leaves. "Get back here you need to pay for that" the store owner shouts as he runs towards her. Dollarine confused and scared runs out of the stores.

While Dollarina was running away from shop owner she the Finance Hero walks up to her. “Why are you running away?” he asks.

“Because that guy is running after me saying that I have to pay for this jacket but I don’t know what that means,” Dollarina replies scared.

“In this world you have to pay for everything with money. Money is a currency and it holds a great value. You give someone money and they in return give what they are selling. With money you can buy food, houses, and pay your bills which is why it is important you take care of your money and spend it wisely,” the money hero explained.

“Oh I understand now. But how do we get money?” Dollarina asked with curiosity.

“We have to work for money. We have to get a job and they pay us for the work we do. The money that we get from our jobs are spent on places that we work for. In other words money travels in a cycle, to society to then businesses,” Finance Hero explained.

“Oh now I understand. Now I won’t steal anymore and will try to find a job!” Dollarine stated happily. THE END!
