After a long springtime dry spell, rain finally came Wednesday night and is predicted to continue through Saturday. "Even the weeds were drying," said one resident of conditions before the rain came. The temperature was down to 45 degrees Thursday morning.

Daylight Saving Time will be with us again Sunday, April 25. Move your clocks and watches ahead one hour Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson of San Geronimo entertained with an open house Sunday night honoring their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson, Jr., who are visiting here from their home in Sidney, Montana. The couple was to go on to College Station this week and visit friends at Texas A&M.

Ten members of the Leon Valley Grange attended a planning conference for the National Grange in Elendorf recently. Four members of the National Grange staff in Washington, D.C., led the conference. The local representatives were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Maskew, Mr. and Mrs. William Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lampman, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dodson and Mr. and Mrs. James Kiles.

The next meeting of the Helotes Garden Club will be on Thursday, May 20, beginning at 10 a.m., in the home of Mrs. Lucille Owen on Cedar Crest in Grey Forest. The program will be given by Cile Murray, discussing "Trash to Treasures." At the April meeting, Gary Johnston of the Texas State Department of Highways discussed Texas wild flowers.

Saturday, May 1, is Loyalty Day in the United States—declared so by Congress in 1958. The

Well Levels Hold Steady In March

Despite a five-month period of below average rainfall throughout most of the Edwards Underground Water District, water well levels at the end of March remained relatively stable, the EUWD office reports.

Index wells in Uvalde and Castroville were up two-tenths and four-tenths of a foot respectively, from the February readings while those in Sabinal, Hondo, San Antonio, New Braunfels and Kyle registered slight declines.

Comal Springs at New Braunfels dropped five cubic feet per second to a flow of 294 cfs, slightly below the longterm average flow of 299 cfs. San Marcos Springs registered no change from the previous month, flowing 108 cfs, somewhat below the longterm average of 168 cfs. Leona River Springs, which are measured every six weeks instead of monthly, were flowing 44 cfs, well above the average of 13.5 cfs.

Following are some of the water well levels at the end of March shown in altitude above mean sea level with the record highs and lows in parentheses:

Castroville: 709.2 feet, up 0.4 foot (737.8 and 622.3); San Antonio: 673.6 feet, down 0.5 foot (696.5 and 612.5); New Braunfels: 626.4 feet, down 0.2 foot (630.2 and 613.3).

Tribute To Cody Planned

Cornyval To Run May 7, 8, 9

Parade Rolls At 11 a.m. Saturday

The 17th annual Helotes Spring Festival—known throughout the State of Texas as Cornyval 82—will hold a three-day celebration in downtown Helotes to salute the "Heritage of Helotes" which is expected to draw upwards of 100,000 visitors and natives. President Pete Cantu said that the Festival Assn. has planned carefully for fun, safety, and an all-round good time which has become the tradition of the Helotes annual celebration.

The coronation will be a pre-festival event on Saturday, May 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the Parish Family Activity Center on Riggs Road in downtown Helotes. Fifteen local area girls will compete for the title of "Miss Helotes 1982," and the winner will be eligible to compete in the Miss South Texas Pageant leading to Miss America competition, if she wishes. Michele Moorad is chairman of this event and entertainment is planned.

Then the gates to downtown Helotes swing wide on Friday at 6 p.m. for a fun-packed week-end, with a free street dance and a carnival and mucho food.

For events, see page 16 of Echo.

The 3-mile parade will be under direction of Don Reddout and will go down Highway 16 from 1604 to Scenic Loop after turning into downtown. Spectacular floats and horse units as well as bands will be part of the activity. Barbara Fairchild will be Grand Marshall and Bexar County Commissioner Tom Stolhandske will be honorary Grand Marshall.

Sunday will be dedicated to not only all the heritages of Helotes but to Mothers as it will be Mother's Day with the biggest party in Texas in action.

Come out and have a good time at the booth lined historic Bandera Trail which still winds down into downtown Helotes.

Caroline Field — Miss Helotes

Caroline Field—reigning Miss Helotes—will appear with her Court in the Fiesta Flambeau Parade Saturday night, April 24, in the Fiesta of San Antonio as a final act of her reign before appearing to crown her successor next week at the Coronation Pageant. The float is under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Beatty and will have the theme of this year's Cornyval "Our Helotes Heritage," with representatives from the Court wearing costumes of the various ethnic pioneers of Helotes. A new train and crown will be part of the costume of Miss Helotes who will be gowned in white. Be sure to make this memory in person or on the television. Previous "Miss Helotes" have been in 16 Battle of Flowers parades.

Benefit Dance To Aid Boudreaux Spears

A benefit dance will be played Saturday, May 1, at Braun Hall for Boudreaux Spears of Leslie Road, who suffered severe burns in a recent accident.

invited.

Boudreaux is a musician himself and formerly played with Rusty Martin, appearing at the Bayous on River Walk and at Maggie's on San Pedro. His brother is a member of the Willie Nelson band.

Boudreaux was burned on the back on March 31 when an automobile overheated on Hausman Road and another man took off the radiator cap without warning him. His hospital bills were more than $4,000.

Boudreaux is married and has a son, Cody, age 2 years.

Maurene Mullins, real estate company owner, began this week the development of the Bandera Road side of the property at Circle A Trail. Above, a new driveway is being cut into the property. Earlier she had removed the Circle A entrance gate on her property and sued the city of Helotes to set aside a zoning ordinance that had restricted use of the property. Meantime the city has called a public hearing on May 6 at 8 p.m. at the PARC building on a new zoning ordinance.

Profits Up At Gill

Christopher Gill, chief executive officer of Gill Savings Association, has announced record profits and growth for the first quarter of 1982. Earnings through March 31 were $904,000, up 103% from the same period last year. Assets of the association rose to $492 million, which is a 172% increase over first quarter, 1981.

This is the 17th consecutive quarter in which Gill has shown an earnings increase over the same quarter the previous year.

Company management attributes the record increase of growth and profits to the company's long-term strategy of concentrating its resources in the areas of mortgage banking and commercial real estate joint venturing. Gill stated, "More than ever, we believe in the future of Texas and the Sunbelt. Our current lending and banking activities reflect that confidence, and our commitment to the communities we serve."

Gill Savings Association and its subsidiaries operate 44 savings, lending, and mortgage servicing offices in Texas and other states. Management believes it continues to be the most profitable savings and loan company in the U.S. today.

Carpool Lots Grow Fast

Bids to construct five new carpool parking lots, and the enlargement of an existing one, have been opened this month by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The lots, located in Bexar, Comal, Guadalupe, and Kendall Counties, represent a growing trend in Texas transportation.

Carpooling is no new idea. When the oil embargo of 1974 sent gasoline prices spiraling upward, carpooling gained additional recognition as a sensible travel alternative.

Carpoolers first began parking at each others homes, on public streets, and in the parking lots of obliging merchants. Pooling is a good idea and it began to grow.

The SDHPT responded by building two lots in Kendall County, with combined spaces for 38 cars. Public reaction was immediate and positive. The lots were soon in daily use. As areas were identified as having carpool potential, or those already formed, additional lots were constructed. Today, two locations in Bexar, and thirteen in surrounding counties are in use.

ALONG OUR ROUTE

Helotes, Texas

Dear Sir:

I have been living in Helotes for over nineteen years. I used to be proud to say "I am from Helotes," but over the last year my pride in the people of Helotes has deteriorated so that now I am embarrassed to say I am from Helotes. When my parents moved here over twenty-one years ago, Helotes was a small, quiet town nestled in the hills. It remained so until last August when the majority of residents voted to become a city. Before becoming a city, there were no arguments over police, zoning, taxes, or emergency medical service.

A year ago we had plenty of protection from the county sheriff, we had no zoning and we had no city taxes. One reason people moved out of the city was so they would not have to pay city taxes, and now in October, they will have to start paying taxes. We now have a policeman that wants a large force of deputies, which in a small city like Helotes I doubt is necessary. There were no zoning laws and everyone was happy. There were no arguments about how bad the entrance to Park Estates would look if the council zoned it so a package house could be located there. Now at the entrance of Park Estates where one of the rock walls was is a pile of rocks.

Back in August everyone was so afraid that Helotes would be gobbled up by San Antonio that they did not stop to think about all the problems San Antonio has without us, or of the problems we would have to face as a city. I understand that certain things must be done, but if we cannot see things from another's point of view, and work together, is it worth being a city? I would like to be able to say I am from Helotes with pride.

Relaxing Not Laziness Says Local Psychiatrist

After years of pushing back frontiers and pursuing the "work ethic," many Americans don't know how to relax. They equate relaxation with laziness.

Of course the two are not the same, and according to a psychiatrist at The University of Texas Health Science Center, Americans must learn to temper that cultural view with an awareness of their own need to relax.

"Even when Americans begin to realize that being relaxed is a good thing, they often look for some sort of instant technique to relax them rather than acquiring skills that they can use during all activities," observes Johnnie Fisher, M.D., assistant professor of psychiatry.

"Going to a special location and performing some special technique to relax is useful, but a more practical skill might be to become aware of unnecessary tension in the body as it occurs and relieve it immediately," he continues. "During a meeting, for example, when a person might notice that his or her neck is tensing up, the individual can, with practice, become aware of the tension and relax while still participating."

There are two ways of looking at relaxation, the doctor says.

"One might be called the 'escape' model in which the major goal is to lose touch with the present reality. The other encourages a person to become more focused and alert to the reality of the body and its surroundings and to the feelings of tension and relaxation."

The "escape" model might be useful for a patient with chronic pain who wanted to blot out the discomfort, Fisher says. Such techniques could include visualization or "mind trips" in which the patient might fantasize about pleasant activities such as walking on the beach. Also, hypnosis can aid some people in this way, according to the doctor.

Fisher feels that Americans generally are more interested in self-determination and in taking an active role in their lives rather than being a passive recipient of some technique or other.

"There has been a growing interest in recent years in what we think of as more Eastern concepts, such as meditation, alteration of consciousness, relaxation and physiological control," Fisher says.

In the early '70s the more focused technique of biofeedback came into vogue and offered a way to measure whether relaxation and other changes were occurring. During biofeedback sessions, electrodes attached to the body at various points can report whether muscles are tensed or relaxed, what the blood flow in a certain area is, what the blood pressure and brain waves are doing, etc. From these sessions, individuals can learn what changing these physiologic variables feels like and learn to tune into their own bodies, even without the electrodes.

The latest trend in techniques for stress management seems to be hot water. Companies selling hot tubs and floatation tanks tout the relaxing effects of these human containers.

"Certainly many individuals find the tanks quite relaxing and pleasurable and it's hard to argue against that effect in its own right," Fisher says. "However, it's important for people to realize that relaxation itself is not magic, and that it is important to use a combination of relaxation skills and other stress reduction activities that are specific for that individual's needs and that can be incorporated into his or her lifestyle."

The first bicycle trip around the world was made by Thomas Stevens, who started from San Francisco, Calif., on April 22, 1884 on a 50-inch bicycle and returned January 4, 1887.

To The Citizens of Helotes

I would like to thank the many supporters of my campaign for their time, donations, effort, and moral support.

For the citizens that were present at the polls Saturday, April 3, 1982, they showed their concern for this community, which speaks for itself and also speaks to our city officials.

With hard work, careful guidance, and the continuing concern from our elected officials and all citizens, I feel our community can be a pleasant and proud place for all to live.

It was indeed my pleasure to have been a part in the past election, and to have met so many nice, concerned, and hardworking people. Again my thanks to all.

Make your clothes energy efficient

By Teresa H. Eckert

Making your clothes dryer energy efficient is as easy as following "wise-use" techniques you probably know about but forget to do.

One major first step is reading the use-and-care booklet that came with the dryer—for all the specifics on what it can do and cannot do.

Another important step involves helping the dryer do its job.

Extract as much water as possible from clothes before you put them into the dryer, since the dryer's job is to evaporate water from the clothes, which means using large amounts of energy.

A third major step concerns cleaning the lint filter, the outside vent and the dryer motor.

Clean the lint screen after each load and check it before putting in another load.

Clean the outside vent every month and make sure the "flapper" opens and closes freely—it's located at the outside end of the vent to keep outside air from entering the duct.

Vacuum lint from the motor housing three or four times a year. To do this, follow the manufacturer's maintenance instructions listed in the owner's manual.

If you've just purchased a dryer, ask the installer to use as short and straight a duct as possible. Also, locate the dryer in a heated area, if possible.

Here are other techniques to make your dryer an energy-efficient appliance:

—Don't mix heavy fabrics with light ones.

—Don't add wet items to a partly dry load.

—Run only full dryer loads—but don't overload. Overloading takes a longer time to dry the clothes and can result in wrinkling.

—Tumble clothes in the dryer to help remove wrinkling, since this will decrease human and electric energy otherwise needed for ironing.

—Drip-dry individual items and very small loads in the bathroom or on a porch rather than using the dryer.

—Dry loads one after another to take advantage of "leftover heat."

—Don't open the dryer door unnecessarily.

—Remove items to be ironed while they're still damp—and dry such items together in one load, if possible.

—Don't over-dry items. Remember, permanent-press fabrics absorb less water than conventional fabrics so they require less drying time.

—Dry clothes outdoors on a clothesline whenever possible.

Nash Coming On Strong For UTSA Tennis Team

It has been a year of adjustments for Dub Nash, one of the top players on The University of Texas at San Antonio's first tennis team.

Nash, a former star at Alamo Heights, had been away from tennis competition since graduating from high school in 1979. At Heights he played for Coach Larry Oxford in the Mules' renowned program. Nash was Heights' second-ranked singles man behind eventual state finalist Danny Stewart, now at Vanderbilt.

He was good enough to attract some scholarship offers but at the time he simply wasn't interested in college tennis...or college. So Nash avoided academia for a year. While he cleared his head, he worked at a variety of jobs: cutting lawns, serving as an electrician's helper and working in oil fields. Meantime, he still played tennis.

In the autumn of 1980 Nash, grandson of the late John Peace for whom UTSA's John Peace Library is named, enrolled at UTSA to begin a course of study directed toward business and geology. There was no tennis team just yet, but Nash continued to practice and play on his own.

Last summer he contacted Becky Roberts, the UTSA coach, and asked about playing for the Roadrunners. He came out for the team in the fall and has played at the lofty number two singles slot most of the year.

Due to his own prowess then, Nash has been placed in the somewhat unenviable position of playing against a standout player each time he takes the court. Playing in the number five or six spot can sometimes provide a "breather" against a team short on depth. But virtually everyone in the top four positions is going to be trouble. "Any men's team in Texas is tough," asserts Nash, who sports a lithe, 6-1, 170-pound build well-suited to tennis.

After wins as a team and individually in their first two starts against St. Edward's and Baylor this spring, the Roadrunners and Nash ran into a buzzsaw sequence of opponents who simply had too much for the young UT-SAns. "I lost six matches in a row," Nash relates. "I wasn't used to that."

But then the 20 year-old sophomore reeled off three straight victories in singles play. He continues to improve. "Getting a few wins was a big breakthrough for me," Nash says. "Now I feel a lot better: I'm starting to play with some confidence."

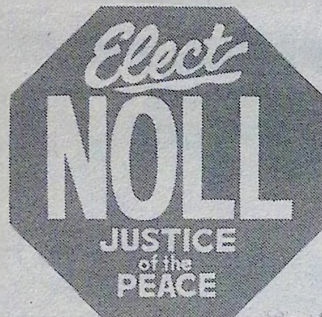

And watching Nash's smooth style as he glides swiftly around the baseline it seems that a bit of regained assurance was all he needed. Dub Nash is ready to play again.

League To Sign Boys

The Salvation Army Peacock Community Center has announced it is forming eight teams for its baseball league for boys age 9 to 12.

Youngsters interested in joining one of the teams should contact Robert L. Taylor, community center director, at 736-5102, or come to the center at 615 Peacock. Some 120 players will be needed.

Taylor also is seeking volunteers to coach the teams this spring and summer.

UTSA Gets New Center

With an eye on filling the crucial center position in their basketball lineup the UTSA Roadrunners have landed big Rick Doyle.

Doyle, a 6-10, 240-pound center from Saddleback Junior College in Mission Viejo, Calif., will play for the Birds next fall in their second season of NCAA Division I action.

Doyle could be the man to replace the graduating Dennis Mumford, who led UTSA in scoring and rebounding last season.

Doyle earned all-conference honors this year after spearheading Saddleback's drive to the Mission Junior College Conference co-championship. He averaged 15 points and eight rebounds per game. Doyle canned 60% of his field goal attempts and was a 70% free throw shooter. He was named "most valuable player" in the Southwest Bank Holiday Tournament.

Doyle's hometown is Santa Rosa, Calif.. As a high schooler he was twice a conference MVP and averaged 24 points a game.

Striper Fishing Tourney Invites All Amateurs

More than $1,500 in cash and merchandise will be awarded to the lucky and skillful angler who brings in the heaviest striped bass during the first Texas Amateur Striper Fishing Championship, April 30-May 1. Any legal method of striper fishing may be used, on any waters in or bordering on Texas, and several hundred contestants are expected to compete for the title of Texas Striper Champion. Tournament headquarters and weigh-in will be in Canyon Park by 3 p.m. on May 1. Fishing hours will begin at 6:00 p.m. on Friday, April 30, so that the striper fishermen who prefer night fishing can try their skill.

A pre-tournament Striper Fishing Clinic will be held on Thursday, April 29, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Ring Tap Room of the Lone Star Brewing Co., 600 Lone Star Blvd., San Antonio. Adult admission to the clinic will be $3, but it is free to tournament contestants.

Also included in the tournament fee of $10 is a meal ticket to the fish fry which will follow the weigh-in and awards at Canyon Park on Saturday, May 1. The fish fry will be open to the public, sition of three bona fide big men. "We need size up front, and they're all Division I talent with height and strength," Eddy says.

The Roadrunners' trio of postmen is especially adept at rebounding. Stiver averaged 12 boards per game with Doyle and Gabrish each grabbing nine bounds per outing last season.

Of Gervin, who averaged 28 points per game at Detroit's Martin Luther King High School, Eddy says, "Derrick is a very talented player. With work in adjusting to college ball he'll be a fine one."

The Roadrunners open their second season of intercollegiate basketball at home next November against Houston, a team that recently advanced to the final four in the NCAA national playoffs.

UTSA Signs Three More For Basketball

The signing of three big front line prospects and the high-scoring younger brother of a NBA superstar highlight the early going for The University of Texas at San Antonio in college basketball recruiting.

UTSA coach Don Eddy has rounded up Rick Doyle, a 6-11, 240-pound center from Saddleback Junior College in Mission Viejo, Calif., and two center/power forward types, John Stiver, 6-9, 235 from Whittier, Calif. and Tim Gabrish, 6-10, 210, of Whiting, Ind., to go along with Derrick Gervin, a 6-8 guard/forward from Detroit, Mich. Gervin is the brother of San Antonio Spurs' star George Gervin.

Eddy, looking for a replacement for the graduating Dennis Mumford, UTSA's center last season, is pleased with the acquiwith tickets prices at $4 for adults. Proceeds of the fish fry will be donated to local charities. The Texas Amateur Striper Fishing Championship itself is a non-profit tournament, with all receipts over expenses returned to contestants as prize money.

THEN and NOW

Through the ages, women have done some interesting things pursuing that special knack of styling their hair creatively — and attractively.

THEN: By 3000 B.C., women in Egypt had already developed many hairdressing skills. They knew how to curl their hair and hold it in place with hairpins, and they even made long, black wigs from sheep's wool or human hair. The Greeks were also skilled hairstylists. In the 500s B.C., Greek men and women wore their hair gathered in knots at the top of their heads.

NOW: Today, fashionable hairstyles range from layered looks to perms. Hair experts say that having a good looking hairstyle depends on knowing your hair — understanding its characteristics and working with them, not against them. Now, a Styling Guide from Goody®, the leading manufacturer of hair accessories makes it easy to find a look that's right for your hair, your personality and your lifestyle.

NEWS OF STAMPS

There's a bit of Sherlock Holmes in every serious stamp collector. Especially when it comes to such things as detecting watermarks. Governments used this currency-protection device in their early stamps to prevent forgeries. Today, collectors look for these early watermarked (and often valuable) stamps.

Watermark detection kits are available from stamp dealers. You may discover stamps that contain two differently shaped watermarks. You should also check to see if the mark is "right side up" or whether the paper was reversed when the stamp was printed. Sometimes only a portion of the watermark appeared on the stamp.

If you'd like to learn more about watermark detection and other fascinating facts about stamp collecting, send $1.25 to Collect, American Stamp Dealers' Association, Five Dakota Drive, Lake Success, NY 11042. You'll receive a starter stamp kit as well.

Wentworths' Fiesta Includes First Son

By Jeff Wentworth
Bexar County Commissioner

My wife Karla and I are happy and grateful to announce the birth of our first child, a baby boy.

He was born at 8:55 p.m. Saturday, April 17, at Medical Center Hospital, and we have named him Jason Stafford Wentworth. Arriving prematurely, he weighed 3 pounds, 9 ounces and measured 16½ inches long at birth.

Because he was early and needs to gain more weight before we can take him home with us, Jason will stay at Medical Center Hospital until he weighs about 4 to 4½ pounds. While there he will receive 24-hours-a-day attention in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

Although Karla selected Medical Center Hospital primarily because she wanted a natural childbirth and hoped to use the birthing room there (and I thought it was appropriate both because of my close involvement with the Bexar County Hospital District over the past 5½ years and because it's located in the 23rd Congressional District I plan to represent in Washington next year), we are both extremely grateful that Jason is at

Medical Center and receiving the absolutely fantastic care that is provided there.

Words are simply inadequate to describe the superior setup and care that is provided in the Neonatal ICU at Medical Center. Dr. Yves W. Brans and the nursing staff of the NICU have been wonderful, and we can't thank them enough.

Additionally, Karla and I want to thank from the bottom of our hearts the following people who helped so much prior to, at, and following Jason's birth: Dr. Joseph E. Martin, Dr. Ed Gibbs, Marlene Upright, Dr. Richard Silver, Dr. Carolyn Sears, Carolyn Lowe, Dr. Peter Chang, Dr. Scott Cumming, Elaine Ludwig, David Flack, Dr. Leigh Shapleigh, Cindy Pressly, Johnny Gonzales, Jr., Elvia Cox, Gilda Wonsion and a number of others on the staff both at Medical Center and the University of Texas Health Science Center.

On Saturday, the day Jason was born, we started out with an introductory Lamaze class from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and then went downtown at noon to ride in the Rey Feo parade.

Unknown even to Karla and me — much less people at the parade — Karla actually was in labor during the parade. Shortly after we finished the parade, we checked her into Medical Center Hospital, and within a matter of about five hours Jason was born.

Although early, his birth was relatively uncomplicated. I was allowed to stay with Karla during the whole time in both the labor and delivery rooms, and I was able to help her with her concentration and breathing.

Being there with her during delivery and at the moment of the birth of our son has to be the most thrilling moment of my life.

Although there is no certain medical explanation as to why Jason arrived early, Karla and I have our own theory. Because a baby can begin hearing his mother's voice once his ears are formed while still in the womb, we believe Jason overheard Karla and me talking about Fiesta Week with all the parades, Night in Old San Antonio and the rest of the fun, and he decided he didn't want to wait until next year for his first Fiesta.

While Jason will have to watch most of Fiesta '82 on TV, we're sure glad he's here, and we're looking forward to having him with us at all the events of Fiesta '83.

Gill Savings Association has opened a new division of the Richard Gill Company, the Farm and Ranch Real Estate Division. The new division will deal in the listing and sale of agricultural properties. Hondo resident, Ralph Hauger, has been named as agent for the new division. He will work out of the Gill Savings home office at Hondo.

Before coming to the Richard Gill Company in his new capacity Hauger worked for the Bob Heyen Realty Company, of Hondo.

The new division is currently seeking agricultural listings, and Hauger has asked anyone interested in discussing agricultural land sale with him to contact the nearest Gill Savings office or the home office at Hondo.

How To Stay Friends With Animals In Summer

By Capt. (Dr.) Robert George
LAFB Base Veterinarian

With the coming of warm weather, so follows an increase in animal bites reported to Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center, Lackland AFB. Ninety-six adults and children have reported being bitten for the first three months of 1982, more than one a day. Many of these could be avoided by a little common sense and especially education of children about animal behavior.

It is natural instinct for any animal to demonstrate a fight or flight behavior when scared. Therefore, don't approach an animal you don't know, especially if he keeps moving away from you. He is exercising the flight mechanism. If you corner him where he can't run away, he has no choice but to fight which will result in some pain on your part. In addition, avoid animals if they are "running in a pack," these animals are usually more excited and aggressive due to the pack affect and are more inclined to bite.

Always approach an injured animal very cautiously even if you know him. These animals are scared and in pain and frequently don't understand you are only trying to help. Another rule to remember is to not try and break up an animal fight with your body. Many people report being bitten while trying to stop two dogs from fighting.

Use an inanimate object to stop a fight like cold water in a bucket or from a hose, a broom stick, small stones from a driveway, etc. I know from my own younger days that it is almost impossible to convince a child that not all animals want to be petted. And I am not saying to make them scared of animals, but they should be made aware of the dangers of approaching a stray or unfamiliar animal, especially a wild animal. Not all bites are of a minor nature, some leave disfiguring scars for the rest of life.

Another danger to consider is the deadly disease rabies. There were 25 animals confirmed to have rabies in Bexar County alone in 1981. Although most of these were in wild animals or bats, several other counties in Texas reported rabies in dogs and cats. This just re-emphasizes the need to avoid wild animals, especially if they act strange or uncoordinated. A skunk, fox, raccoon, or bat seen during the day wandering around would be an example of abnormal behavior.

If you or someone is bitten, try to find out who the animal belongs to or at least note the location so authorities can attempt to determine the health and vaccination status of the animal. Also, wash the wound thoroughly with lots of water and some soap. This is one of the best methods of prevention of infection or rabies.

YOU CAN MAKE HOUSEWORK SEEM EASIER IF YOU ALTERNATE HARD TASKS WITH EASY ONES. START WITH SOMETHING STRENUOUS, SUCH AS WEEDING THE GARDEN, THEN TAKE A QUIET JOB IN THE HOUSE SUCH AS MENDING. IF YOU'VE BEEN STANDING UP TO IRON, MAKE THE NEXT TASK A SITTING DOWN ONE.

Playhouse Revisited

Miss Joan Fontaine, acclaimed for her recent performance here in "Dial M for Murder", will be returning to San Antonio and the Fiesta Dinner Playhouse to star as Eleanor of Aquitaine in the James Goldman play, "The Lion in Winter". Miss Fontaine received international recognition for her portrayal of this same role at Vienna's English Theater, garnering comments such as; "Joan Fontaine is conquering in 'Lion'", and "Miss Fontaine...bursts on the scene with a ripe, fiery radiance."

"The Lion In Winter" will open at the Fiesta Dinner Playhouse with three preview performances on April 27, 28, and 29. The Champagne Opening will be Friday, April 30, and the play will continue through May 30.

known now, was built in 1875. Joseph and Wilhelmina Phillip and their family were by far the most active and most lengthy owners of the structure. Many elegant social events were held in the downstairs portion of the hotel.

During this period many people flocked to Boerne because of its reputation as a health resort, and travel from San Antonio was a two day journey by stage, with a stop overnight in Leon Springs. When the railroad was opened up many more people came, and at one time, the small town of Boerne had six hotels to accommodate the visitors.

The Boerne Shooting Club was founded in the Manor, and the original target range was in the back.

After Mr. Phillip's death in 1884, Wilhelmina took over the operation and continued in the same elegant manner. She died in 1929 and several daughters continued to run the hotel in the tradition their mother started until 1950 when it was purchased and passed out of the family's hands.

This delightful combination of authentic restoration and nostalgia is to be found in all the places offered on the Historical Tour, and, hopefully will be of interest to many.
