CORNYVAL '82 ROLLS INTO TOWN

Parade Vortex Of Fun

Festival events opened here Saturday, May 1 when Miss Helotes 1982, Iris Hall, a 17-year-old Marshall senior was chosen by a panel of judges to reign over the Cornyval events this weekend and to continue throughout the year to represent Helotes in surrounding community parades and civic ceremonies. She will ride in parades throughout South Texas along with members of her Court—chosen also at the "Miss Helotes Pageant and Coronation" last weekend. Laura Ann Benavides, 18-year-old San Antonio College freshman, was named princess. The three chosen as duchesses were Robin Brinkmeyer, 17-year-old Marshall senior; Mary Elizabeth Even, 19-year-old University of Dallas freshman; and Kimberly Jayne Pfeiffer, 17-year-old Marshall High junior.

Chairman of the Coronation event was Michele Moorad assisted by Linda Johnson.

Entertainers were Lori Killian, Theo Carney, and students of the Carol Schwarz Dance Studio. Also rendering a solo was the 1981 Princess of the Festival, Stephanie Thompson.

Members of the past Courts were presented and the names of past "Miss Helotes" titleholders were given.

The event took place in the newly opened Our Lady of Guadalupe Parish Community Center.

A full-house witnessed the ceremony. Outgoing Miss Helotes, Caroline Field, took part in the crowning of her successor.

Cornyval '82—the 17th annual Helotes Spring Festival—moved into downtown Helotes Friday and amidst sparkling, bright sunshine and mild weather, it promises to be fun-packed and memorable.

Rainfall Here Plentiful

Helotes had a total of 7.9 inches for the first four months of 1982, much better than San Antonio had during the same period, according to Henry Brauchle, local weather observer and rancher. The 3.1 inch total for April fell in four rainfalls with a half-inch falling on April 30, and the earlier amounts totalling 2.60 inches.

Early Thursday morning's rainfall—which measured as high as four inches at Toepperwein's according to Ken Felty—was welcome despite its proximity to the Festival this week-end. May is one of the rainiest months

Perfect weather seems to be ahead for the 17th Cornyal this weekend. Behind the heavy rain Thursday night came a mild cool front which cleared the skies and air conditioned the countryside. Night temperatures in the 50's and daytime highs in the 70's is the prediction.

Mrs. Patricia Komary Perry of Helotes Park Estates was awarded a master's degree in education during commencement exercises last week at Our Lady of the Lake University. Mrs. Perry is the wife of James A. Perry and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Komray. Mr. and Mrs. Perry have three children.

Carlos Motley of Helotes Park Estates was the first prize winner in Ancira-Winton's contest for a new slogan. His entry was "Ancira-Winton, the Automotive Center." He won a year's supply of groceries—about $5,000 worth—to be obtained in weekly shopping at Consumer's Commissary. The award was presented during a recent ceremony at Ancira-Winton on Bandera Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Boysen of Grey Forest returned this week from a week's vacation in Mountain Home, Arkansas, where they attended the Arkansas State Good Sam Samboree. They returned in time to attend a cocktail party of the San Antonio Chapter of Certified Public Accountants, at which Roland was honored as a new CPA.

Helotes Boy Scout Troop 401 is inviting more boys to join their all-out group. They meet each Monday night at 7:30 in the PARC Building at the Helotes Hills Methodist Church. The only requirement for joining is that the boys be 11 years old or have completed the fifth grade in school. Troop 401 also goes camping once every month.

Gene Allison, John Marshall High social studies teacher, has been named to the Verbun Society at Incarnate Word College. The society is open to persons who made contributions to the college. Allison will donate international relations filed on 56 international issues updated by the 24 hours for the past 15 years.

Eighteen first-division ratings were earned by the three Holmes High School bands in the recent Inter-scholastic League concerts and sightreading contests. Holmes' band program was only one at the contest to receive this many first divisions, said Charles Vanderhider, director.

The Helotes Muscular Dystrophy group has contributed $94.76 so far this year to aid children crippled by the disease. Most of this money was collected in containers in stores throughout Helotes. Contributions also may be mailed to MDA Helotes, P.O. Box 667, Helotes, Texas 78023. The goal is $1 for every person in Helotes.

Sarah Golimowski, a John Marshall High student, won first place in the individual report category at the Texas State Historical Society Regional Fair. She qualified for state competitions and a chance to win a trip to Greece.

Arts & Crafts Show Set

The Prince of Peace Arts & Crafts group plan a show—a first annual event—Sunday, May 23 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Henry DeOsso Catholic School, 7515 Ingram at Culebra, a fourth mile outside Loop 410.

Local artisans will display original works, and it is free to all to attend with free parking, and with food and drinks available.

A handmade Star pattern quilt will be awarded. Those who have worked on it are Yolanda Maldonado, Sharon Waitts, Irene Smith, Kathy Rios, Vickie Garcia, Alicia Torress, and Trinie Reiter.

Top Team Members Get Awards

Senior guard Mike Pickens received two awards at The University of Texas at San Antonio basketball banquet Monday night, April 26. Team members had voted earlier for squad superlatives.

Pickens, a 6-3, 215 pounder from Marion, Ill., was named "Most Valuable Player" of the Roadrunners, who competed in their first season of intercollegiate basketball. He was also tabbed as UTSA's outstanding defensive player.

The only other senior on the Roadrunner roster, Dennis Mumford, was elected captain of the team in the post-season balloting. Mumford, a 6-9 center from Canton, Ohio, led the Birds in scoring and rebounding. He was the only player to start all 27 games in the '81-'82 season.

The Roadrunner Award, given to a player embodying exemplary ideals on and off the court, was presented to Ike Thornton, a 6-4 swingman from Dayton, Ohio. Thornton, a freshman, averaged 8.1 points and 3.0 rebounds.

The UTSA players chose Tres Sowder's game-winning shot against Oklahoma City University as the past season's biggest play. Sowder's clutch bucket came in the final seconds of overtime, and propelled the Roadrunners to a 62-59 win. The victory was especially significant because it was UTSA's first win against a Division I team, and it was their initial triumph on the road.

Symphony To Close '82 Season

Organ, piano and choral music and some early symphonic jazz will close out the San Antonio Symphony's subscription season.

Music Director Lawrence Leighton Smith has chosen three pieces for the last subscription concerts of the year: Brahms' Schicksalslied with the Mastersingers, Ravel's Piano Concerto in G Major with Phillippe Entremont as soloist, and Saint-Saens' Organ Symphony.

Performances will be at 8:30 p.m. May 8 in the Theater for the Performing Arts and 8 p.m. May 10 in Laurie Auditorium. Tickets will be $5 to $12 and reservations can be made by calling 223-5591.

Both a pianist and a conductor, Entremont is following a tradition that includes musicians like Sergei Rachmaninoff, Mstislav Rostropovich, Andre Pervin and Daniel Barenboim.

He was born in France in 1934 and made his American debut at age 19, playing one day in the National Gallery in Washington, D. C. and the next day in New York.

He took up conducting 13 years ago and is now conductor of the New Orleans Philharmonic.

COOKING CORNER

CARNIVAL BREAD Makes 2 loaves

- 6 1/2 to 7 cups unsifted flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1 teaspoon crushed anise seed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 packages Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup Fleischmann's Margarine
- 4 eggs (at room temperature)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 teaspoon water

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 1/2 cups flour, sugar, orange rind, anise seed, salt and yeast.

Combine water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120°F to 130°F). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of an electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs, vanilla and 1 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto a heavily floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Turn out onto a lightly floured board. Knead 1 to 2 minutes. Divide dough in half; shape each half into a smooth ball. Place on greased baking sheets and flatten each to a circle 10-inches in diameter. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled, about 40 minutes.

Make a 1/8-inch deep slash across the center of each loaf. Beat egg yolk with 1 teaspoon water; brush on loaves. Decorate each loaf with Writing Mixture (recipe below), squeezed through a pastry bag fitted with a 1/16 to 1/4-inch plain round tip. If desired, sprinkle outside edges of loaves with sesame seed. Bake at 350°F for 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from sheets and cool on wire racks.

Writing Mixture: Blend 1/2 cup softened margarine and 1/2 cup unsifted flour. Add enough water (about 1 tablespoon) to make a smooth paste.

New Cards

Take Time

New applications for a Social Security card are now required whenever someone needs a new Social Security card or a replacement for an old one, announced William M. Archuleta, Social Security district manager in San Antonio.

The new application, a two-page form explaining the documentation required to qualify for a number, replaces the old card form first used in 1936. Since it takes four to six weeks to receive a card after applying for it, Archuleta advises applicants to apply early. "Everyone must submit proof of age, identity and legal residence," he explained. "In addition, those applying for a card for the first time who are 15 or older must submit their applications in person."

The new application forms are available at all Social Security offices as well as many post offices. For more information call 1-800-392-1603.

food booths and a beer garden will be part of the atmosphere. The carnival is going full-swing and will continue throughout the festival.

Saturday's parade—scheduled to leave 1604 at 11 a.m. and wind through a three-mile route to Scenic Loop Road after passing through downtown Helotes—will have about a hundred units. Theme of the Corny-val—to be reflected in the parade—is "Heritage of Helotes."

The Festival will have Indians, Cowboys, Gun-slingers, Buckskinners, and other reminders of days gone by. Helotes is the site of ancient Indian settlements and at one time extended over many more hills than at present. It is one of the most continuously occupied regions of Texas. "Helotes" signifies "green Corn" or what is usually in modern days called "Corn-on-the-cob." Its ripening touched off ancient Corn festivals.

During pioneer days, the settlers on Helotes ranch-lands gathered annually and held rodeos and barbecues as the corn ripened. In 1966, with the opening of the present post office, a Festival was inaugurated to mark the event on May 1. Congressman Henry B. Gonzalez was the guest of honor, and John T. Floore, Alex Parrigin, Joe Wallace, and Rod Ayres were on the first committee.

They chose the Western theme which has pre-dominated in Helotes to show a bit of the Old Days to modern visitors.

Among entertainers for this week-end will be the Sahawe Indian Dancers who will perform in the afternoon Saturday.

The Fleetweld Cowboys—with Lawrence Schenk as leader—will play early from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., and will feature Dale Keith. Shiloh will play from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Sunday will have the German Eagles, "Die Deutschen Adler" in a free-street Dance from 2 to 5 p.m. There will be so much food, fun, and contests that the only way to say is "You all come on and enjoy it." Pete Cantu, 1982 president of the Festival, says you'll be glad you did.

day, except for Monday starting at 8, and ending at 12 p.m.

The workshop will cover the geography, geology, hydrology, biology, uses and conservation, as well as the future of the Edwards Aquifer. Graduate credit is being offered to inservice teachers and graduate students. The workshop is open to teachers, supervisors, public officials and concerned citizens as well.

DENTAL IMPLANTS

Dental implantology (inserting a post into the jawbone to act as an anchor for dentures) goes back to the times of the early Egyptians. Mummies and skeletons have been examined, and they indicate that dental implants were attempted even in those days.

A dental implant is a device that supports a single crown, a bridge, or a full denture, when the gums cannot normally retain them. There are two types: One has a metal framework that rests on the jawbone, with the gum tissue closed over it; The other is placed into the bone, like a root of a tooth. Both types have a post or series of posts which protrude through the gum to serve as an anchor.

While implant dentistry is quite complex — and still considered experimental and practiced only by a relatively few experts — it does provide a new approach to denture problems.

Varying degrees of success are reported, but it appears that the percentage of successful cases is directly related to the amount of training and experience of the implantologist.

Camp Set For Music Students

The Division of Music at UTSA is sponsoring a summer music camp for middle and high school students.

Summer music camp is scheduled for July 18 through July 25 and will be a week of intensive rehearsals culminating in a series of public performances.

Guest clinicians and faculty members for the band division of the camp include Col. Arnald Gabriel, conductor of the U.S. Air Force Band; Dr. Robert Rustowicz, assistant professor of music at UTSA; and Ed Solomon, band director in the New Braunfels public schools. In addition, Drs. Michael Guiltinan and Janice Hodges will instruct piano students.

The band division is open to students who are currently enrolled in grades seven through 12 and who are members of good standing of their school bands. To maintain balanced instrumentation, each section will have a limited enrollment.

Working wives, you are doing your husbands a "favor" in most cases.

Recent studies on nearly 300 urban men ages 25-54 indicate that those with working wives seem to take life easier, in subtle ways, such as working fewer weekends and nights, says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Your Highway Safety

Tips From Experts At United Parcel Service

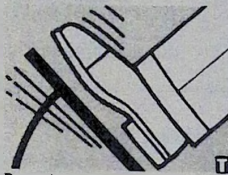

YOUR BRAKES FAIL

You're driving along the road and prepare to slow down as the traffic up ahead gets more congested. Suddenly, your brakes fail. What do you do? Here are some actions that could assist you in this frightening situation:

- See if there is any resistance at all in your brake pedal. If there is, pump it. This may enable you to build up enough pressure to provide some braking help.

- If there is no pressure in the brake pedal and your driving path is clear, coast in the drive gear and use your parking brake. If you need to slow quickly, shift to the lowest forward gear. In this way, engine compression will offer some braking effect.

- On a hill or mountain grade, look for something to sideswipe (roadside brush, curbing, or a guard rail),

Pumping your brakes may enable you to build up enough pressure to provide some braking help.

thus helping your car to slow down.

- Make use of your horn or lights to warn other drivers and pedestrians that your car is not in control.

Your greatest single safety item is your seatbelt. It won't prevent your involvement in an accident, but it will minimize the possibility of injury. It will also keep you behind the wheel where you can control the vehicle.

Summer Basketball Teams Form

Two summer basketball teams are being formed now by the Salvation Army Peacock Community Center at 619 Peacock, one for players age 17 and under and the other for players age 14 and under.

Six teams are needed for each league, Robert Taylor, director of the Community Center, said. Deadline to sign up is June 1.

The age 17 and under group will play on Monday nights at 6, 7 and 8 p.m. beginning June 14. The age 14 and under group will play Tuesday nights beginning June 15. Ten games will be played in each league.

Entry fee is $100 per team, Taylor said. Call 736-5102 for additional information.

Roadrunners Sign 7 For 1982-83 Season

"We improved significantly," says Head Coach Don Eddy as he surveys his second crop of basketball recruits at The University of Texas at San Antonio. "All seven players we signed are legitimate Division I players who had offers from other Division I schools."

A year ago Eddy had to sometimes take what he could get on the recruiting circuit, as he tried hard to sell an unknown quantity, a program with a team that hadn't yet played its first basketball game. Now, after an inaugural season, UTSA basketball is a tangible commodity. Roadrunner stock has gone up.

"We got some height and muscle inside," Eddy understates as he eyes the scholarship signatures from 6-10 Tim Gabrish of Whiting, Ind., 6-10 Rick Doyle of Saddleback Junior College in Mission Viejo, Calif., and 6-9 John Stiver of La Habra, Calif.

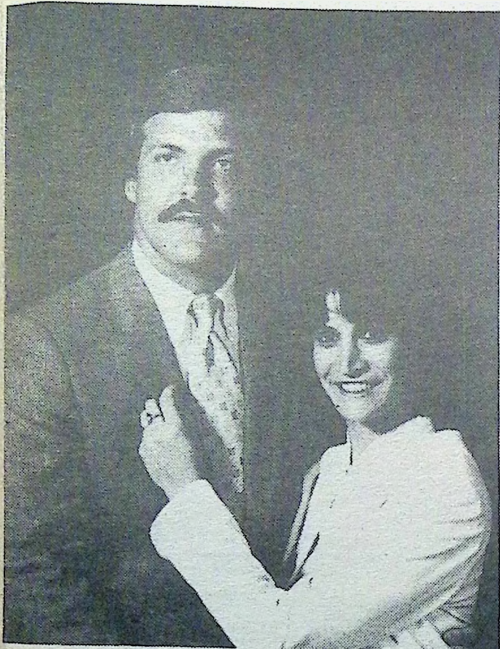

Doyle, with two years experience and a muscular 240-pound frame, appears to be the early choice to inherit the starting center job vacated by the graduating Dennis Mumford, who led the Birds in scoring and rebounding last season. Gabrish and Stiver are sure to see plenty of action and actually have as much as anyone to crack the starting lineup.

Eddy is counting on Stiver to eventually learn the craft of the power forward position, where three other signees stretch the talent supply. Kent Lockyer, a 6-8 product of Walnut Creek, Calif., joins 6-8 Derrick Gervin and 6-6 Lloyd Taylor, both of Detroit, as Roadrunner forwards.

Kevin Sumuel, a 6-0 transfer from Jacksonville (Texas) College is UTSA's only guard recruit. "He's a very intelligent player," says Eddy. Sumuel is expected to challenge for the point guard spot left empty by Mike Pickens, last season's team MVP and defensive standout as a senior.

"In numbers and combinations it's a good bunch of recruits," Eddy sums up. "Down the road they might become a very good group. I hope so. We'll just have to wait and see."

Marijuana Use Linked To Genetic Defects

Men who are chronic users of marijuana not only face the possibility of permanent infertility, they also run the risk of fathering genetically defective offspring.

These findings are part of recently published data from marijuana studies in mice conducted at The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio by Susan Dalterio, Ph.D., research assistant professor in pharmacology and obstetrics-gynecology, and Andrzej Bartke, Ph.D., associate professor of obstetrics-gynecology and anatomy.

Since beginning their research eight years ago, Dalterio and Bartke have sought to evaluate the behavioral and hormonal effects of marijuana using laboratory mice. According to Dalterio, the response patterns to marijuana of the human male and male mice are very similar.

In the latest study, marijuana components were administered to male mice two to three times weekly for five weeks. The animals subsequently were found to be less fertile than control mice. When placed with females, some drug-exposed males did not sire litters. When pregnancy did occur, there were fewer offspring in the litter and the survival rate for offspring was 20 percent less than in litters sired by control mice.

Dalterio says there also was evidence of genetic problems in some of the surviving male offspring. When fully grown, these mice were less fertile than normal mice. Chromosomal studies conducted by the scientists substantiated genetic changes.

The scientists found, too, that the effects of marijuana still were present in the exposed adult male mice for up to six weeks after discontinuation of the drug. Dalterio adds that the effects of chronic marijuana use in humans "may take years to get over."

"The implications are that the use of marijuana, particularly in heavy doses, may be associated with the risk of genetic effects to the offspring," she contends.

Dalterio and Bartke say this study marked the first time during their research that marijuana components were administered directly to male parent mice. In the earlier studies, the drug was given to pregnant and nursing females. Decreased levels of testosterone—the major male sex hormone—were observed in male pups following maternal exposure. Variation in testicular weights and altered sexual performance later in life also were observed.

The scientists say the next phase of their work will explore marijuana's effects on fetal development during the so-called "critical" or formative stages of gestation.

"We want to learn the mechanisms by which marijuana affects the fetus," notes Dalterio, "and whether or not we can do anything to reverse these changes in later life."

The marijuana study is funded by a grant to the health science center from the National Institutes of Health.

Improving Military Life

The very first sentence of the U.S. Constitution recognizes the need for our government to "provide for the common defense" of the people of this great nation. In the march of time we have seen the means for doing this grow from the musket and cannon ball to long-range bombers and computer-directed intercontinental ballistic missiles. Preserving our strength in the world to insure our peace and freedom at home remains the fundamental test of America's government.

Nowhere is that test more challenging today than in dealing with spending plans for defense programs for this fiscal year. Those programs will set the stage for decade-long policies necessary to rebuild America's defenses. Immediate steps must be taken to restore recognition in the world of America's resolve to meet those needs, revitalize our defenses and protect our legitimate interests at home and abroad.

When the current Administration came into office, it found a strategic weapons system stocked with fast-aging weapons and a fighting force uncertain of the support it would receive in a time of increasing, not decreasing, threat. Today, our policies have been forged to halt that decline and reverse that trend.

As tensions in the world threaten peace and international stability, we must restore America's military and diplomatic respect around the world by every means to help us achieve that objective. An improvement of strategic capabilities will help us achieve that objective. An improvement of strategic capabilities will create a deterrent to Soviet action, as well as increase Soviet incentives to negotiate genuine arms reductions.

In recent weeks we have seen proposed the largest defense budget in American peacetime history. Over the next four years, we will take the steps necessary to counter the Soviets who currently have a military capability that has been exceeding that of the United States in recent years. The Soviet buildup intensifies the readiness problem facing the American military today. It is a demonstrated fact that in any year the Soviets build six times as many tanks, three times as many personnel carriers, eight times as many artillery pieces, and twice the number of combat aircraft.

One critical factor has in recent years been left out of our own military equation and it represents the sum total of what this country has based its defenses on since the opening volleys were fired at Lexington and Concord. That factor is man himself.

I firmly believe that a commitment to a strong, effective military begins with a commitment to those who serve. If this country expects to keep its military the best-manned in the world, it has an obligation to assure those in the military of a life quality commensurate with the sacrifices demanded of them.

The fiscal year 1983 defense budget — for the first time — specifically addresses the quality of life for members in the service and their families. We learned during intense committee hearings that although pay, the G.I. Bill, and respect for military by the civilian community are major factors, the construction of modernized facilities is an essential priority to improve on-duty and off-duty life. And we cannot wait 20 years to act!

As a member of the Military Construction Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, I will be actively involved in reviewing these decisions to achieve the most cost-effective degree of military capability and quality of life. My position on this is clear. The Federal government has a responsibility to those who have served in the defense of this country and to those who currently wear the uniform, whether it be on active duty or in one of the fine reserve components that stand in readiness.

In all these matters there can be no doubt that we are moving in the right direction. No one should live in the permanent fear of war and the time has come for all nations to act responsibly to remove the threat. The American concept of peace goes beyond the absence of war; it means a flowering of individual liberty in a world at peace. That peace rests on strength; that strength is based on the commitment to those who serve.

Porfirio Salinas At Work

Fields of brilliant blue-bonnets stretch into distant hills under a canopy of clear blue Texas skies. A lone chestnut stallion bends to sip water from a tranquil stream. Blooming yucca plants on a parched, dry slope overlook blue-hazed hills.

These are some of the pastoral scenes that appear in the work of Texas landscape artist Porfirio Salinas. The paintings are featured in a new exhibit, "A Salinas Celebration," at The University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures.

The exhibit of more than 40 Salinas landscapes in oils, now on display in The Institute's Lower Gallery through July 11, features the rolling hills of the Southwest with brightly colored wildflowers, shady oak trees and flowing streams.

Salinas' many paintings of the Texas Hill Country and its bluebonnets have earned international recognition, but while these were favorite subjects for the artist, he also painted seascapes, western scenes and bullfights. Examples of these works are included in the retrospective exhibit along with Salinas' first piece painted at the age of 15 and his last unfinished work, which he started shortly before his death in 1973.

Noted for his ability to capture the true character and beauty of Texas land on canvas, Salinas' works have long been enjoyed by many Texans. His colorful landscapes have been included in the collections of J. Frank Dobie, President Lyndon B. Johnson, Sam Rayburn, Governors Price Daniel, Sr., Allan Shivers and John Connally. They have hung in the national capitals of both the United States and Mexico.

Salinas was born in Bastrop in 1910 but as a child moved to San Antonio, where he spent most of his life. He displayed an exceptional artistic ability at a young age, and although he was an apprentice to artists Jose Arpa and Robert Wood, he never received formal art training.

Salinas served in the U.S. Army during World War II and while stationed in San Antonio, he painted murals at Fort San Houston. During the 1940's and 1950's Salinas became one of Texas' most popular artists when Congressman Lyndon B. Johnson began buying his paintings. Johnson admired Salinas' ability to recreate the cacti, huisache, blue-bonnets and scrub trees of the Southwest, especially of the country around the Johnson ranch.

Among the works included in the exhibit are "Autumn in the Hill Country," from the collection of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, and "The Christmas Card." In this 3"x4" landscape, Salinas undertook to prove that distance could be achieved on a small canvas.

Salinas' easel, palette, brushes and sketch book are shown with the paintings and photographs in the exhibit.
