Math (Nash)

We will begin our next chapter which covers adding and subtracting fractions & mixed numbers.

Science (Nash)

We will be wrapping up chapter one with a volcano experiment on Monday. Then we will take the chapter test over earthquakes, volcanoes, and other thermal eruptions on Thursday.

ELA (Baker)

Reading: We will explore a biography of Dr. Alexander Fleming, the scientist who accidentally discovered a way to create penicillin. The students will participate in a fun activity to investigate how "germy" their surroundings are.

Jar of Books Challenge: We're nearly halfway through September. Please encourage your child to keep reading. They are required to read at least one book by September 30th!

English: Students will learn about subordinating conjunctions and independent and dependent clauses this week.

Spelling: The students will have their review test over Units #1-4 on Tuesday

History (Newton)

The students took a day off on Thursday to remember 9-11. We will finish up the study of the Plymouth Colony and also do a few specialized maps.

Bible (Baker)

We will continue to identify false world views and discuss how the world subtly influences us to focus only on ourselves and not live as Jesus commanded us to "love our neighbor as ourselves."
Memory Verse: Psalm 119:90 ESV Memory verse quiz over Verse on Friday.
