Yoga is...

- To “yoke”, “unite”, “be whole”.
- The union of body (postures), mind (inner focus) & spirit (breath).
- A holistic practice.
- Adaptable to almost any level of physical or developmental ability.
- A gentle, noncompetitive form of exercise that all children can enjoy.

Yoga is not...

- A religion.

Benefits of Yoga for Kids & Teens

- Strength, flexibility and balance
- Concentration, focus and attention
- Inner strength and body awareness
- Confidence and self-esteem
- Creativity and imagination
- Awareness of breath
- Relaxation and self-control
- Feeling of well-being and respect for others

More Benefits of Yoga

- Maintains smooth functioning and health of body systems
- Relaxes body and mind, reduces stress and anxiety
- Boosts metabolism, lymphatic circulation and hormonal circulation
- Improves immune response system
- Enhances digestion
- Improves memory and ability to follow directions
- Increases lung capacity and facilitates deeper breathing

Research is showing that yoga helps dampen the body's stress response by reducing levels of cortisol & boosting GABA, serotonin & dopamine.

Nighttime plasma melatonin is increased, which may result in improved sleep quality.

Why Yoga for Kids & Teens with ASD?

- ❁ Yoga addresses their heightened anxiety, poor motor coordination and weak self-regulation.
- ❁ Yoga strategies can easily be incorporated into daily routines and existing educational goals.
- ❁ By becoming aware of their bodies and aware of their breathing, yoga provides them with the ability to cope when they start to feel anxious or upset.
- ❁ The breathing techniques and guided visualization assist by reducing stress, teaching coping techniques, and providing a sense of calm and acceptance. Once a child has learned some of these elements they can use them anytime, anywhere. This enhanced ability to self-calm will allow the child to learn from and participate in educational and daily routines in a more productive and enjoyable fashion.

How Yoga Helps Sensory Processing

- ❁ Relaxation response: The sensory system is soothed, and the relaxation response (parasympathetic system) is engaged in forward folds; deep, relaxed, even breathing; progressive relaxation (tensing then releasing each muscle group); and deep relaxation.
- ❁ Body/spatial awareness: Better body awareness is one of the greatest benefits of the yoga practice. Standing and balancing poses help develop stability, strength, and coordination. Poses such as tree, eagle, and dancer provide joint compression. Moving from backbends to forward bends to twists gives the vestibular system rich input, which helps a child feel calm and grounded.
- ❁ Self-awareness: All of the practices in yoga have as an aim to develop better awareness - awareness of the body, the mind, and the breath. Yoga also inherently helps develop a greater sense of self, a feeling of more ease in the world, and a sense that "everything is okay just as it is."

What do you need?

While yoga for adults often has lots of “stuff” like mats, bolsters, straps, etc., all you really need in order to do yoga with kids and teens is...

- A child / teen
- An adult
- A little space
- Imagination & creativity

Have a brain? a body? breath? Then YOU can do yoga! Many items you already have can be used as props to add to the yoga fun 😊

Many of the yoga strategies can be done in less than 1 minute and would be easy to incorporate into daily routines.

A Word About Yoga Mats

Yoga mats are not a necessity but can be helpful to define each child's space. If you decide to use them here are a few things to consider:

- Look for mats that are free of toxins (Bisphenol-A (BPA), PVC, Lead, Phthalates, Dioxins) & are resistant to bacteria.
- If mats are used, wash with non-toxic mat cleanser and dry after each use.
- Choose plain yoga mats in calming colors.

While the designs on some yoga mats may be “cute”, they can be distracting, can be taken literally (ex: I can only do “frog pose” on the mat with the frog) and can flake/peel off and sometimes contain harmful things like lead.

Getting Ready for Yoga

- Not on a full tummy
- Comfy clothing
- Bare feet or socks on non-slip surface
- Choose a space that will be safe for movement
- Chose music carefully for the effect you are wanting (rythmic = calming vs. quick tempo = energizing) Watch for overstimulation
- Chose any props you want to add
- Choose the yoga strategies to use
- Use visual supports as needed (<http://wp.me/p1t7TU-a2>)

Think about individual needs within groups

Disclaimer: The information in this presentation is for general informational purposes only and SHOULD NOT be relied upon as a substitute for sound professional medical advice, evaluation or care from your physician or other qualified health care provider.

A Balanced Yoga Approach

- Warm-up exercises
- Asanas (poses)
- Pranayama (breathing)
- Mantras (positive affirmations)
- Mindfulness (focused attention)
- Relaxation (includes guided imagery)
- Yamas & Niyamas (character education)
  - Ⓢ Yoga is not just “poses”. It also includes what happens along the way (how you breathe, how you are listening to your body, and how your mind is focused on the present moment).
  - Ⓢ Yoga is a personal activity that looks different with each child or teen.
  - Ⓢ Yoga is not about how we “look” on the outside, it is about how we “feel” on the inside.

Keys to Keeping it Fun

- Relax - children are sensitive to adult moods.
- Children are big souls in little bodies. They respond best to positive words & praise.
- Do not compare children to each other.
- Model poses and use visual aides (yoga pose cards, visual schedules/supports, stuffed animals, dolls, etc.).
- Children learn best from their own experience. Don't try to make children do the poses "perfectly". The key is to "guide" them in exploring yoga in a safe way. Phrase assistance in a positive way. Ask permission to help/touch.
- Keep instructions simple, one step at a time.
- Provide a safe place for breaks. Let them know they can take a break when they need one by sitting or laying quietly.

Warm-Up Exercises for Kids

1. Color-the-Room

"Yoga is a wonderful way to stretch your mind and body. Let's play a yoga game called Color-the-Room. Reach out your hand and pretend to grab your favorite color crayon. As you breathe in, stretch your hand over your head as high as you can and draw three big, colorful circles. Feel the stretch on your sides. What colors do you see on the ceiling? Now draw in the opposite direction. Put that arm down, and raise the other arm and grab a color that makes you feel silly. Again, stretch up high and make three wide circles in each direction. How does the ceiling look?"

Color-the-Room

"Now, let's do the walls. Reach a hand out and grab a color that makes you feel happy. What color makes you feel happy? Draw a big circle reaching from over your head to the floor. As you move up, breathe in through your nose. As you move down, breathe out and bend your knees so they are soft. Do this three times, and then we can change colors and reverse direction."

"Then with the other hand, reach out and grab a color that makes you feel quiet. Draw the three circles, remembering to breathe. Now how does the room look?"

Benefits: Opening with something silly allows the kids to feel the fun in yoga. It is a nice way to bring everyone together before formally beginning the practice with Easy Pose.

I often use laminated bulletin board accents as props during this warm-up.

Asanas (poses)

- Kids' yoga poses are based on basic adult yoga poses, with modifications so they are developmentally appropriate.
- Kids' yoga groups are more dynamic than adult yoga classes, incorporating songs, storytelling, toys and games to keep them engaged.
- Kids “play” at yoga, just like they play to learn everything else.
- The goal is not the perfect pose... it is to engage the child in experiencing yoga.

It is important to know any health conditions or diagnoses. There are contraindications for certain poses and activities.

Basic Principles of Asanas (poses)

- Simple - Stick to basic yoga poses. Advanced yoga poses are not recommended for most children (ex: headstands, extreme back bends, etc.).
- Short - The poses should not be held for too long – only a couple of breaths for younger children.
- Slowly - Listen to your own body and do not do anything that hurts. Move slowly in/out of poses.
- Breathe - Remember to breathe.
- Both Sides - Do poses on each side of the body for about an equal amount of time.
- Balance - Provide a balance of poses that move and stretch the body into motion with those that provide quietness and relaxation.

Asanas That Promote Calming

- Children are bombarded with stimuli of all kinds and can become tense and stressed in our fast-paced society.
- Yoga can help them discover the joy of stillness and teach them how to concentrate.
- Poses that promote relaxation: Easy Pose, Lotus, Mouse/Child's Pose, Lying Flat (Savasana/Do Nothing Doll/Yogic Sleep), etc.
- In general, poses that provide “flexion” are calming.

Asanas That Promote Alertness

- Our brains need movement to keep us alert. Have you ever felt that mid-afternoon energy dip?
- Ideas for alerting poses: as a brain-break between activities, a perk-up before a test, etc...
- Poses that promote alerting: camel, chair, cobra, crescent moon, lion, sun breath & stretch, upward facing dog, warrior 1, woodchopper, etc...
- In general, poses that provide “extension” are alerting & energizing.

Asanas That Promote Focus

- Have you ever felt overwhelmed or unfocused?
- Ideas for focus poses: as a brain-break before teaching new or challenging tasks, to center/focus before a test, before multi-step activities, etc...
- Poses that promote focus: tree, eagle, flamingo, Brain Gym “hook ups”, washing machine, etc...
- In general, poses that use both sides of the body and/or cross midline promote focusing.

Pranayama (Controlled Breathing)

- Increases blood oxygenation and can produce calming or energizing effects.
- Basic guidelines:
  - Breathe in through your nose as you expand, lift or open your body.
  - Exhale as you contract or close your body.
- Helps to use a flower as an image to breathe in through the nose like “sniffing” and a candle as an image of blowing out when you breathe out.
- Breathing in through the nose warms, slows and cleans your breath.
- Using the breath in different ways (buzzing, yawning, blowing, sighing, hissing, roaring) helps to relieve tension.

Swimming Stuffies: Kids Breathing Exercise

http://www.youtube.com/watch\_popup?v=PSShznzaz-8A&vq=medium (:50)

By: Donna Freeman from Yoga In My School & author of "Once Upon a Pose"

The goal is to have the child use belly breathing to lift the stuffed animal on an inhale and lower it on an exhale. This action makes the stuffy appear to swim in the waves of the breath. Weighted stuffed animals (ex: Beanie Babies) provide extra sensory input that is calming for some kids.

Link to instructions on adding weight to a stuffed animal:

http://www.ot-innovations.com/images/stories/PDF\_Files/creating\_or\_adapting\_stuffed\_animals.pdf

Breathing with a Hoberman Sphere

http://www.youtube.com/watch\_popup?v=Ew1qDVQp\_fc&vq=small (1:52)

By: Barbara Gini from BodyLogique /S.M.Art Kids Yoga

Expand the Hoberman sphere as you breathe in through your NOSE (it expands just like your lungs expand as they fill with air).

Contract the Hoberman sphere as you breathe out (it gets smaller just like your lungs do when you breathe out).

- Faster pace = energizing “loud breath”
- Slower pace = calming “quiet breath”

Volcano Breath

Volcano Breath is a simple breathing exercise that can be done either seated or standing.

Yoga Calm | for Children

ACTIVITY

- Stand with feet hip-width apart, or sit in a chair or cross-legged on the floor.
- Place palms together at the heart.
- Take a slow, deep breath through the nose and pause when the lungs are full.
- Hold the pause and bring the arms up over the head.
- Exhale and slowly “explode the volcano,” moving arms out to the side and then back together at heart.

Positive Affirmations

Manifest Your Magnificence Affirmation Cards For Kids

Relax Kids Mood Cards

- The child picks a card (helps to limit it to 2-3 choices).
- If they can read, the child reads the card aloud about himself or herself.
- If needed, an adult reads the card to the child and has them imitate the positive affirmation (either verbally, through sign or if needed with a communication device).

Often children, especially those with special needs, get the message that something is wrong or needs to be “fixed” in them. It is important that all children know that they are special, important and loved just for “being” and not because of something they “do”.

Free affirmations for kids:
http://www.childrenlights.com/Articles/article\_empowering\_children\_affirmations.htm

Mindfulness

Mindfulness is paying attention to what is happening in the present moment.

The Mindfulness Bell or Chime:

When the bell is struck, listen to the sound as it rings and keeps on ringing. When you can't hear it any more, raise your hand.

Variation: Now put your hands on your belly and close your eyes. Concentrate on your breath, knowing when you are breathing in, or out, or just in between in and out. When I ring the bell, I want you to notice whether you are breathing in, out, or in between at the sound of the bell.

This game provides a playful framework for simply noticing breath for a few moments, and maintaining concentration.

The bell can also be used as a signal if the teacher, or even a student, feels that the group could use a pause, and a breath! More and more teachers keep a bell at hand, and it can be a classroom agreement that if the bells sounds, all will pause whatever they are doing, and take three mindful breaths before continuing.

Relaxation

Using simple “guided imagery” is fun and helps the kids use their imagination during relaxation at the end of yoga.

Squeeze & Relax

(excerpt from Building Emotional Intelligence – CD)

Imagine you have a ball of clay in each hand.

Squeeze the clay with your hands.

Make your fists tight.... Squeeze..... Squeeze.... Squeeze.... As tightly as you can.

And now let go.

Let the clay just drop to the floor.

Feel your arms relaxing.

Let your hands relax.

Let your fingers relax.

Let your arms relax... completely.... While I count to 5: 1... 2... 3... 4... 5.

Good..... Your hands and arms are relaxed.

<shoulders sequence>

Now squeeze your eyes tight.... Squint like you do when the sunlight is too bright.

Open your mouth as wide as you can.... Like you’re going to take a giant bite.

And stick out your tongue.... Hold..... Hold..... Hold....

Now let go and let your whole face relax.

Let your face relax and rest while I count to 5: 1... 2... 3... 4... 5.

Your face is relaxed.

Calming music and calming activities such as coloring are often used to promote relaxation at the end of yoga.

The 4B's of Self Control

A 4-step method for relaxing tension, refocusing & calming

Brake:

This is putting the "brakes" on excess energy to stop it.

Press your hands together firmly for 3-5 seconds.

Release.

Repeat 3 times.

Breathe:

Breathing slowly and deeply helps regulate the Central Nervous System.

Place hands over belly button and take 3-5 deep slow breaths.

When you breathe in, your belly should fill up with air and push your hand outwards.

Brain:

Interlace fingers & gently press down on your head 10 times to "wake up" the brain. Sensory receptors (or "Brain Buttons") in the scalp create a grounded, alerting sensation.

Don't forget to gently "wake up" the sides, front and back of the brain too!

Body:

Firmly but gently "hug" or apply deep pressure to your arms & shoulders.

This alerts the muscles & nerves deep in the skin creating a soothing & alerting sensation in the body.

Use as a transition between activities, before morning meetings or circle time & as a calming activity upon waking or before bed. This exercise can also be used to release excess tension, irritation and to regain focus before test taking or any other time children are restless.

Use Props To Add To The Fun!

Anything with animals – silly bands, stuffed animals, animal stickers

Pom poms –

- reach to pick up during poses
- blow with straw
- pick up with toes and put in a cup to work on focus & balance

Games that promote mindfulness & cooperation –

Colored scarves –

- to hang off the kids arms as “leaves” in tree pose
- to dance with during Yoga Freeze game

Keep individual sensory needs in mind when choosing props.
