Who Are We

The Ralph Bunche Arts and Humanities Center, Inc is a non-profit 501©(3) organization formed by a group of volunteers from King George Virginia who share an interest in preserving our local and regional history, enhancing our local and regional cultural profile, and contributing to our local and regional economy.

Ralph Bunche was an American political scientist, academic, and diplomat. He was awarded a Nobel Peace Prize in 1960; the first African American to be so honored, and the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

“I long for the time when all human history is taught as one history, because it really is.” - Maya Angelou

Our Mission

Foster community growth and development through the modes of philosophy, literature, art, music, theater, and history with an appreciation of African-American Heritage.

Our Project

Transform the Ralph Bunche High School to create the Ralph Bunche Arts and Humanities Center.

Benefits

- Tax revenue for King George County.
- Local and regional entertainment and educational activities.
- Area event venue for performances, weddings, dining, catering, and more.
- Tourism and an increased customer base in support of local businesses

The Ralph Bunche High School building was constructed in 1949 to provide “separate but equal” educational opportunities to African American students in King George County schools and remained in service until King George integrated its schools in 1968. The building is on the Virginia National Register of Historic Places.
