

FAITH NOTES

From The Pastor

"Now I appeal to you, brothers and sisters, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all of you be in agreement and that there be no divisions among you but that you be knit together in the same mind and the same purpose." - 1 Corinthians 1:10

Recently, I finished knitting my first sweater made of 100% wool. It was a bit of a learning curve to work with real animal fiber for the first time, but totally worth it. One of the most intimidating parts of using real wool is the risk of felting. Felting happens because the wool fibers have these microscopic, overlapping scales that are normally relaxed and lay flat. But heat and moisture cause the scales to open, and if the fibers are agitated, like in a washing machine, the scales get caught on each other and turn into a tangled mess, twisting and tightening. Until what was once these distinct pieces of yarn beautifully looped together, becomes one hardened mass of indistinguishable felt.

Reading Paul's words to the Corinthians, his call for the community in Corinth to be knit together in the same mind and the same purpose, for them to be unified, I couldn't help but think about my sweater and my fear of it becoming felt. The fear of the fibers becoming so unified that they become hard, inflexible, enmeshed and unwearable. And it made me think of the ways that that can happen within communities as well. Because, often, when we think of unity, we think of this kind of sameness. We think of a homogeneity with no distinctions between individuals.

But this is not the unity that Paul calls for. Throughout his letters, he is consistent in lifting up the unique gifts of the Body of Christ and how they work together for the greater good. Paul urges for a type of unity that doesn't require blanket conformity but instead removes the hierarchy and unfair distinctions that we often create when sin meets our diverse communities. This unity is not about removing our differences, it's about holding our differences alongside the knowledge that we are on the same team, that we are interconnected, and that we are one in Christ Jesus.

As we move through this month, join me in praying for unity within our church and world. A unity that is more like knitwear than felt. A unity that celebrates both our uniqueness and our interconnection. A unity that is found within our Triune God, who has knit us together as one in Christ Jesus.

In peace,
Pastor Katie Jensen

At the beginning of January, we celebrated the Feast of the Epiphany in worship. Epiphany is the commemoration of the Magi meeting Jesus and his family after following the star from the East. Many Christians around the world celebrate Epiphany by "chalking the door," to their home or church as a blessing for the space and those who enter it. We do this by writing a sort of formula on the door frame with chalk: 20+C+M+B+26. You can probably guess that the 20 and 26 stands for the year, but the rest is a bit more mysterious. The "+" represents crosses, and the letters CMB have two traditional meanings. Some believe that these are the initials of the Magi, Casper, Melchior, and Balthazar. But we actually have no idea who the Magi really were, what their names were, or if there were even three! The other, more likely, meaning behind the letters is a Latin phrase, "Christus Mansionem Benedicat," which translates to, "may Christ bless this home." We write this blessing on the threshold of our churches and homes to remind ourselves and all who enter that Christ is present in the space, knowing too, that Christ is present all around us wherever we go.

Hope in Action

In January, members of Faith prepared and served the community meal at Saint Paul Lutheran Church in Clinton for their Hope in Action Meal. A big THANK YOU to everyone who helped organize, serve during the meal and the many who cooked and prepared beforehand!

We are scheduled to do it again in January of 2027!

Students in 1st-3rd grade spent some time learning about Jesus' baptism. They used water to put crosses on their hands and looked up their baptismal birthdays in the big red book.

Summer camp registrations are beginning to open and Faith is looking to support students who are interested in attending EWALU or any other church camp! Please let the office know if anyone is interested.

the recovery process. I'm looking forward to seeing all of you soon! Merry Christmas, Happy
