

I am your Life Policy

You and I have purposes in this world, which when broken down are quite similar. It is your job to provide food, shelter, clothing, schooling, medicine and other sundry things for your loved ones. You do this while I lie packed away. I must have faith and trust in you. Out of your earnings will come the cost of my upkeep. At times I may appear somewhat worthless to you.

But someday, and who knows when, you and I will change places. When you are laid to rest, I will come alive and do your job; I will provide the food, shelter, clothing, schooling, medicine and other things your family will continue to need – just as you're doing now. When your work is done, mine will begin. Through me, your hands will carry on.

Should you live and care for your family without me, I will really do a job for you when you reach the golden age of retirement. I will come to life and help provide the necessary dollars that will be needed when you can no longer work.

Whenever you feel the price you are paying for my upkeep is a burden, remember that I will do more for you than you can ever do for me. If you do your part, I guarantee to do mine.
