

Read Between the Wines Podcast announces the publication of a new episode

November 30th 2021

Jonathan Boyle, winemaker at Windrush Estate is certainly the most underrated talent in the Canadian wine industry.

MISSISSAUGA, ON – November 30th 2021 – Read Between the Wines Podcast, one of the most popular podcasts on wine announced today the publication of another new episode.

This episode features an interview with Jonathan Boyle, winemaker at Windrush Estate Winery located in the Hockley Valley region just north of Toronto.

Jonathan grew up in Niagara and accumulated solid experience before landing the job of winemaker at Windrush. He graduated from the winemaking program at Niagara College in 2006 and since then has won the Silver Medal for his Riesling at the 2013 Ontario Wine Awards.

During this episode, Jonathan talks about his passion, the advantages of working for a small winery, but also, it's challenges. This episode is an excellent opportunity to learn more about the Niagara region and to explore in detail the wonderful Riesling varietal that Jonathan masters so well.

About Windrush Estate Winery

In 2017, J.C. Pennie and Marilyn Field, MSM, established Windrush Estate Winery in the emerging wine region of Hockley Hills, one hour northwest of Toronto.

J.C. and Marilyn's vision for their winery came from their lifetime experiences as international visionaries. With time, they realized that life's finest moments are borne of beauty, integrity, kindness and excellence. Windrush Estate Winery is built on their passion for sharing these experiences with you.

Inspired by world travel, the winery is named after the beautiful Windrush River valley in the Cotswolds. With its 68 acres of amazing views, unique chateau and state-of-the-art winery, Canada's Windrush incorporates natural beauty, fine art and great VQA wines to provide a unique winery experience. Their VQA wines are created with a focus on quality by Chief Winemaker Jonathan Boyle. To learn more about the winery, visit their website:

About Read Between the Wines

Read Between the Wines is a podcast hosted by Pierre Ferland and focuses on the stories behind the label; the winemaker's story, their day-to-day journey and how they transform the fruit of the vines into our favourite beverage.

Since its conception, Read Between the Wines is proud to have made a conscious decision to have a unique format, and does not do any wine critiques or ratings. Instead, it chose to focus on the people of the industry and to educate the audience so they can have unbiased and neutral information for their purchasing and selection process – after all, taste preferences are a personal matter...

The podcast is proud to focus its effort towards Canadian vintners, but also highlights important stakeholders in the wine industry such as authors, sommeliers and other industry leaders. Read Between the Wines has experienced an incredible success on both the local and international wine scene with an average audience of over 25,000 listeners mainly from Canada, but also from the United States, England, France, South Africa and many other countries. Distinguished guests such as Ken Forrester, Simon Woolf and Donald Ziraldo are only a few names of the industry who have participated in the Read Between the Wines podcast.

This podcast was launched in 2019 and has already attracted nearly one million listeners; it is available for free on most podcast platforms such as iTunes, Spotify and Google Podcast, as well as on the website www.winepodcast.ca
