Your donation matters

During a pandemic, non-profits have had to get creative when holding fundraisers. Thankfully, the volunteer team at Hill House is up to the task and doing everything they can to continue to run fundraising events during these extraordinary times.

“We have a strong, dedicated group of volunteers,” said Hill House Treasurer Joanne Lott. The annual Hike for Hospice, which is a large fundraiser for the House, was pivoted to a virtual format this year. With a virtual hike, physical interactions were limited (remember the hot dog lunch from prior years?), which resulted in limited financial gain – receipts were down by over 60%. “It was successful given the current environment. I really do give the volunteers a lot of credit,” Joanne said. “It wasn't an easy task to reach out to people for donations during a pandemic.”

Hike For Hospice-Home Edition 2020

Hike for Hospice-Home Edition- Hill house’s annual hike for hospice was done a little different this year with teams raising funds and then completing their own hike and taking pictures to capture the event. Although we didn’t get to all hike together this year the hike was still a great success!
