

Contact: Jeff Pearson, crossthemarsh@gmail.com

For Independent Bookstores: www.acrossthemarsh.com/retail

We love supporting independent bookstores. Please contact us if you want us to ship you signed copies. You can also order the book from the distributor Ingram using ISBN 978-0-9980259-2-6.

- In February of 2020, it became a #1 Amazon Best Seller in Religious Mysteries.
- It also climbed Amazon's Best Seller lists in multiple other categories, reaching #2 in Cultural Humor and #3 in Parenting Humor.

About the Book

While Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil shines on the city of Savannah, Forever Across The Marsh turns its gaze on the vast, alluring marsh. Like a full moon on the night horizon, a new best seller has risen.

Unfazed by chaos and bad luck, Melvin Scott knows, “Some things a man must do himself. No matter how dumb that man is.” His wife disagrees. In debt over his head, he learns that a penny will grow to over $10,000,000 in 30 days if it doubles every day. He realizes that other things can grow that fast too. Bacteria. Disease. Cures. Almost anything. Scott finds hope and the adventures begin.

There is a problem. Scott lives in total chaos with his wife and young children in a house that is falling apart. This is all on top of leaving the military to start over again. What follows is a roller coaster ride of misadventures—both serious and hilarious. Scott's search for riches comes to a head when he meets a professional treasure hunter from Key West who has located one of Blackbeard's sunken ships in the marsh outside of Savannah. Racing to join the treasure hunter, Scott stops in his tracks when he encounters the one person in the world who could keep him from finding the treasure.

This book explores humorous questions like “Why do boats break down at the worst times?” and “What is a mosquito's purpose in life?” It also explores serious questions like “Can I feel the presence of others near me?” and “What is our purpose in life?” You can learn more about Forever Across The Marsh at www.acrossthemarsh.com.

About The Author

Jeff Pearson grew up in Camden, SC. He now lives with his family in the Savannah, GA area. Jeff is a veteran of the wars in both Iraq and Afghanistan. He is also a father of three young children. In other words, he knows chaos and how humor helps one get through it.

You can learn more about Jeff here: <https://acrossthemarsh.com/speaker-bio>

February 26, 2020