Mayhew's cable tie product line delivers durability and reliability you can depend on. Each cable tie features a flexible self-locking design that allows for quick usability and secure fastening for whatever you need to pack, organize, contain, or transport. The grasps on each end allow user to grip and tighten the cable tie more securely. Each cable tie is made in the U.S.A. and most meet UL Type 2, 21, or 21S.

STANDARD PERFORMANCE RATINGS

The principle measure of performance for a cable tie is its loop tensile strength. Cable ties serve a wide variety of fascinating functions in many diverse application environments. Depending on the application of the product, tensile strength may not always be the only performance characteristic. Some performance characteristics can be affected by temperature, time, moisture, and other environmental conditions. Cable tie standards require individual performance tests to evaluate the effects of these influences.

TYPE 2

Metallic, Nonmetallic and Composite Cable Ties - Retains 100% declared loop tensile strength after specified test conditions

TYPE 21

Nonmetallic and Composite Cable Ties - Type 2 with additional pre qualification to long term performance characteristics of nonmetallic molding materials in accordance with the UL component plastic materials certification program (QMFZ2)

TYPE 2S AND TYPE 21S

Metallic (2S Only), Nonmetallic, and Composite Cable Ties - Type 2 or type 21 - with additional qualification for suitability to support conduit and cables in building construction in accordance with the requirements and relevant national installation codes

FLEXIBLE

Available in a variety of sizes to accommodate your specified bundle diameter, tensile strength, and operating temperature needs.

TOUGH

Superior pawl design allows for easy insertion and pull through, while the tough serrated edges provide more precise locking.
