Diplomates of the American Board of Surgery

By attending an ACS-accredited activity, you may choose to participate in the automatic transfer of your CME credits to the ABS via the ACCME. If you are a physician and Diplomate of the American Board of Surgery (ABS). This is a free offering.

Opt in to Automatically Send your CME Data to the ABS

The direct automatic transfer applies to all learners who have an ACS profile, are Diplomates of the ABS, and have provided their ABS ID and date of birth in the ACS MyCME Portal on the Board Certification page.

Step-by-Step Instructions to Access MyCME and Opt-In to transmit your CME data:

- Log in to your MyCME Portal
- Select the Board Certification tab
- Enter the American Board of Surgery
- Enter your ABS ID
- Enter your day and month of birth
- Next go to the send CME data tab
- Toggle to Opt-In (green) "Yes! I choose to opt in and permit the ACS to automatically transfer all my ACS-accredited CME data to my chosen specialty board earned March 1, 2021, and forward."

Please note if you have successfully transmitted your ACS-accredited CME credits to the ABS via ACCME, then you can skip steps 2-6, and go directly to the Send CME Data tab, and Toggle to Opt In (green). Once you have opted to automatically transfer your CME credits to the ABS, please allow 24 hours for the credit to appear in your ABS CME Repository. You may opt-out at any time. For more information or to request assistance, contact mycme@facs.org.

CME INFORMATION

Program Objectives

This activity is designed for physicians.

- The goal of this activity is to implement a forum for the latest information regarding clinical practice and research in the field of surgery.
- Attendees will identify cutting-edge treatment for surgical issues, both general and subspecialty.

AI IN SURGERY AND SURGICAL EDUCATION

Tyler J. Loftus, MD, PhD

Associate Professor

*Program Director of the General Surgery Residency Program
University of Florida*

Tyler J. Loftus, MD, PhD is an Associate Professor of Surgery in the Division of Trauma and Acute Care Surgery at the University of Florida College of Medicine. He serves as Program Director of the General Surgery Residency and Assistant Chair of Performance Improvement for the Department of Surgery.

Dr. Loftus earned his medical degree from the Medical University of South Carolina and completed his general surgery residency and surgical critical care fellowship at the University of Florida. He also completed a PhD in Biomedical Informatics, with research focused on clinical decision support and data-driven improvement in surgical care.

His clinical practice centers on trauma surgery, emergency general surgery, and surgical critical care. Dr. Loftus's research integrates artificial intelligence and machine learning into surgical decision-making, with an emphasis on improving patient outcomes, optimizing perioperative care, and advancing surgical education.

Dr. Loftus' NIH-sponsored research focuses on machine-learning enabled postoperative triage decision support and patient value-informed decision support for surrogate and proxy decision makers. Dr. Loftus is passionate about advancing surgical education and technical skills development.

GUEST SPEAKER

THREE FUNDAMENTAL COMMUNICATION SKILLS FOR SURGEONS

Gretchen Schwarze, MD, MPP, FACS

Professor of Surgery

*Morgridge Endowed Professor of Vascular Surgery
University of Wisconsin - Madison*

Gretchen Schwarze MD, MPP is the Morgridge Professor of Vascular Surgery and a Professor in the Departments of Surgery and Medical History and Bioethics at the University of Wisconsin.

She received her medical degree from Harvard Medical School and master's degree in public policy from the John F. Kennedy School of Government. She completed residency at the Massachusetts General Hospital. Her fellowship training in vascular surgery and clinical ethics was at the University of Chicago Hospital and Clinics.

She is a practicing vascular surgeon and health services researcher with research interests focused on informed consent, high-stakes decisions, and end-of-life care for older patients with complex illnesses. With 15 years of external funding, including grants from the NIH and PCORI, she has received more than $13 million in support for her innovative work.

She is a member of the National Academy of Medicine and is an alumna of the Greenwall Faculty Scholars Program and the Cambia Foundation Sojourns Scholar programs. She lives in Madison, WI with her husband who is a transplant surgeon.
