

INFORMED CONSENT: SURVEY RESEARCH

Danny Black, a researcher, graduate student at Regent University is conducting a study on A Biblical Training Seminar for Improving Servanthood Readiness amongst Volunteers Who Serve Within the Army Gospel Service Chapel at Camp Zama, Japan). Danny Black has explained to me the purpose of this research and the intended outcome. I understand that I will be asked to honestly answer anonymous survey and questionnaire information. My participation is voluntary. I plan to attend the servanthood readiness training seminar on Saturday, 18 February 2023. This is an educational opportunity to increase one's biblical knowledge on servanthood. Little to no risks are assessed regarding my voluntary participation. My participation in this study should take no more than 8 hours. Should I, as a participant, decide to share any of my responses with other participants within the seminar, I do so strictly voluntarily, and I will not hold the chapel staff, the researcher, or Regent University liable. I understand that my written responses to surveys and assessments will be kept anonymous and anonymity will be preserved ("anonymity" indicates that subjects' identities will not be known or connected to responses) and that my name will not be associated with any results of this study. I know that I may refuse to answer any question asked and that I may discontinue participation at any time.

I also understand that any grade, payment, or credit (include one of these situations, if applicable) for participation will not be affected by my responses or by my exercising any of my rights. Potential risks resulting from my participation in this project have been described to me. I am aware that I seek further information about this study by contacting Danny Black at dannbla@mail.regent.edu.

I am aware that I must be at least 18 years of age to participate. My completion of the survey signifies my voluntary participation in this project.
