What our allies do

Our ALLIES

Commodity Trade Finance

One of the most crucial aspects of international trade finance is determining the payment method agreed upon by the importer and exporter. The exporter typically wants to receive payment as soon as possible, while the importer aims to mitigate risks associated with the supply and delay payment. Trade finance resolves this conflict by providing funding and addressing the needs of both parties.

Investment Process

We employ an active investment approach, carefully selecting high-quality trade finance transactions across different asset classes. Our focus is global, with a particular emphasis on Europe, CIS, Africa, and Asia. We provide funding for a variety of structured debt structures and configurations. Our stringent client onboarding process prioritizes due diligence, and we carry out a thorough review process for each new counter-party and transaction. We provide funding across the entire supply chain spectrum, from producer and processor/refiner to distributor/merchant trader. Our loans are mostly secured against the underlying commodity, with additional recourse to the borrower's balance sheet.
