We hope to meet you. Here's how the KOFA CREST concept developed.

With over 25 years of experience in real estate and rural land development across the Southwest, the KOFA CREST team is proud to bring a new kind of RV lifestyle to life—one built around private ownership, personal freedom, and lasting value.

Our background spans land acquisition, small-scale hospitality, and outdoor-focused development, but one thing has remained constant: a belief that RVers deserve more than a rented pad in a crowded park. At KOFA CREST, you own your land—deeded RV acreage designed for comfort, community, and complete independence.

Our early projects in La Paz Valley were shaped by what RVers told us they were missing: space for their toys, privacy from their too-close neighbors, and the ability to make it truly their own while still maintaining a sense of community. So, we developed larger parcels with thoughtfully designed infrastructure—underground power, private water access, multiple RV hookups, and wide pads that could handle both full-timers and visiting guests.

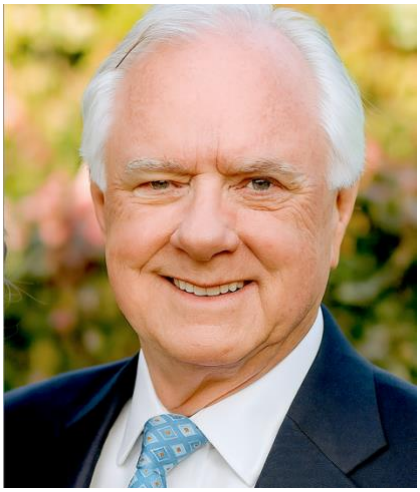
We also built for flexibility. With RV covers, garage structures, and multi-use buildings featuring kitchens, bathrooms, and laundry, residents could live outside the RV, host with ease, and enjoy the desert lifestyle in every season.

At KOFA CREST, the land is yours—not leased, not rented, not shared. Whether you're looking for a seasonal base, a multi-RV family retreat, or a long-term winter home, your lot is ready to grow with you.

We've created a place where ownership equals opportunity… a place where you can store your rig, welcome friends, and enjoy Arizona's quiet beauty on your own terms. This isn't an RV park—it's your private acreage, your vision, your retreat.

Come walk the property, see the views, and imagine what it means to own your own private RV acreage in La Paz Valley.

Let's schedule a time to show you what makes KOFA CREST different.



Jim and Ann Marie Kunisch