This table shows the bulls in birth date order, with the oldest bulls first. These are actual weights at birth, then on weaning date, yearling date and in August, 2022. The weights are not adjusted for age. The bulls were fed a corn ration for 77 days on grass in the winter at 2% of their body weight daily, such that they gained 2 pounds per head per day on average. This very limited feed test measures their relative performance on corn without getting them so fat that it adversely affects their health and longevity. They were summered on native grass and supplemented with 8 pounds of 14% cake daily. They gained an average of 375 pounds each this summer. They are in good condition and will not fall apart while breeding your cows this winter.
