Stretching the Story

Jameel and all of the characters in the story are universal characters. This means that they could be any race, gender, age, or size, and the story would still make sense. Take some time to think about what your characters would like if you were the author. Draw them and give them names. With the help of a parent, teacher, or other adult, post your pictures on Dr. Middleton's Facebook page (Dr. Middleton's Book & Ed. Materials).

Stretch the story even more by writing a different ending. Think of another way that the story could have ended. What could have happened if Jameel didn't fall? What could have happened after Jameel left school? Be creative. Share your new story. With the help of a parent, teacher, or other adult, post your story and pictures on Dr. Middleton's Facebook page (Dr. Middleton's Book & Ed. Materials).
