

what is in my control

what is out of my control

Why are some things out of your control?
What is one thing you knew you could control?
What do you wish you could control?
How does it make you feel knowing what you can and can not control?