DIRECTIONS

While this isn't entirely a no-prep TPT product, it is relatively simple to print the sticky notes. Once printed, students have a meaningful tool to help focus their stop-and-jot responses during independent reading.

Step 1: Print the reading response sticky note templates.

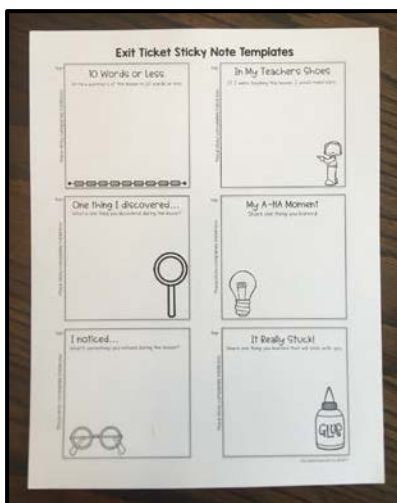

*Please note there are two pages that contain all 12 templates in a mixed format the rest of the pages contain one single template which allows you to print a specific skill in bulk.

Step 2: Place sticky notes on top of templates. Make sure the sticky note is completely inside the box and that you place the sticky part at the top.

Step 3: If you are using a printer, place all the templates (sticky notes attached) back in your feeder tray. Each printer is different. My personal printer requires me to put the stick-note-loaded-paper face down and top first. Pay attention to the specific settings.

Step 4: Once the paper is loaded in the printer, just re-print the template.

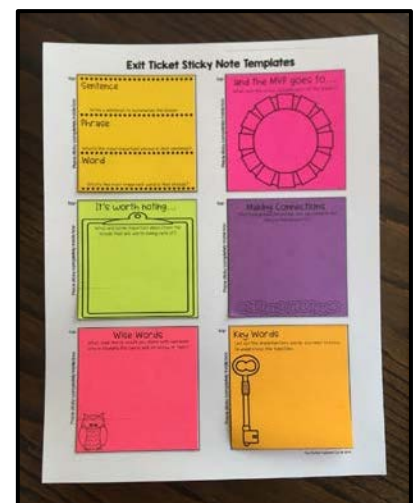

Step 1

Step 2

Step 4

TEACHING TIPS

1. To help make this a “no-prep” resource for you (the teacher), train your students to load up the templates with sticky notes. This could become a weekly job and then all you have to do is press print.
2. Similarly to #1, get a parent volunteer to prepare all the sticky notes for you.
3. Print in bulk at the beginning of the year. Just store the sticky notes on the template to maximize the sticky part. You could create a file folder for each template and students can select which templates they want to use during independent reading time.
4. Print the mixed template pages for students at the beginning of the week. To ensure they are practicing ALL of their reading strategies, tell them they need to use all the stickys by the end of the week.
5. Once students have used the sticky notes in their independent reading, you could add them to an anchor chart as an example of how to apply that skill/strategy to reading.
6. The templates also work great if you just print them on colorful paper and cut them out. The small space is the perfect size for students to reflect on what they learned during the lesson.
7. You can glue all of the student response to an anchor chart as a way to document student learning.

What are some important ideas from the lesson that are worth taking note of?
