STERNWHEELER
HOTEL & CONFERENCE CENTRE

Having attended this show on its opening night in Whitehorse, Wyrd blew me away! It's a true testament to the immense creativity, skill, and uniqueness of our Yukon women in the arts. I am thrilled this production can be shared on stages across the Yukon, and now beyond our territory too! Bravo!

Brendan Hanley
Yukon Member of Parliament

In my role as Minister responsible for the Women and Gender Equity Directorate, I'm honoured to celebrate with you in the opening of the world premier of Wyrd - A Musical (un)Fairytale. This Yukon-centred, musical satire is made up entirely of female-identifying people from diverse cultures and backgrounds. Wyrd is bold in its unique exploration of one character's relationship with gender-based violence and the journey out of the shadows. I know this production will inspire empowering conversations and resonate with many Yukoners, as we often use theatre as a form of reflection and healing.

The Yukon is incredibly fortunate to be home to so many talented folks in theatre and the arts who challenge and reimagine traditional form and storylines with creative, all-embracing takes. We know this has an impact on everyone watching. Our government is proud to support this inclusive space and continue to advance gender equity, and advocate for Yukoners of all genders and sexual orientations.

Thank you to Larrikin Entertainment, Atomic Vaudeville and the entire cast and crew for your commitment over the past two years in developing a piece that I know will go on to impress national crowds.

Without further adieu, let's descend into this enchanting bog and meet some memorable, wise women!

Jeanie McLean
Deputy Premier, Minister of Education and Minister responsible for the Women and Gender Equity Directorate

Larrikin Entertainment Ensemble is grateful to be creating theatre within the traditional territories of the Kwanlin Dün First Nation and the Ta'an Kwäch'än Council.

We respect the history, culture and languages of the First Peoples of these lands.

Shähw níthän. Kwän äs chis. Gunalchîsh. Mahsi cho. Merci. Thank you.

As Yukon's Minister of Tourism and Culture it is my pleasure to welcome you to the Yukon's newest production – WYRD!

Theatre can be such a powerful venue to expose contradictions, spark discourse, and inspire reflection of ourselves, and society. And by incorporating a few laughs as part of that experience, even better!

The Government of Yukon knows that supporting the arts is crucial to ensuring the Yukon is home to healthy and vibrant artistic and cultural communities.

Congratulations to Larrikin Entertainment and Atomic Vaudeville, as well as the entire cast, writers, artistic and technical crews. I know this was a multi-year effort to realize and I thank everyone involved in mounting this production. Your hard work and passion are sure to wow audiences here in the Yukon and beyond.

Enjoy the show!

Honourable John Streicker
Minister of Tourism and Culture

On behalf of Whitehorse City Council, congratulations to the cast and crew behind this Yukon-created production.

They have put in countless hours of hard work and dedication, and I have no doubt their efforts will pay off in a truly unforgettable performance.

I want to stress the importance of supporting northern arts and culture, and promoting the incredible talent we have across the Yukon.

The City of Whitehorse is proud to support this production through our Council grants program, and we are excited that our contribution celebrates the power of creativity and imagination, which brings us all closer together as a community.

Mayor Laura Cabott
City of Whitehorse

Katherine McCallum | Artistic Executive Producer

Abuse isn't funny. Not in any way. However, in my own experience, humour is a wonderful coping mechanism and allows me space to heal. The past two years with these incredibly creative humans has been a catharsis—an exorcism of all the years of abuse and oppression we collectively experienced—with the added bonus of intense, delicious laughter. We dragged the dark into the light, dissected it, cried all over it, laughed directly in its face, and then set it on fire. Together we discovered that no one walks alone, and that it takes a village (and more) to lift each other out of the mire. All of us had had experiences where disempowerment, fear, gaslighting, abuse, and personal danger were the norm, but somehow found our way out—typically with a lot of help from our friends, family, therapists, doctors, support organizations, and our own inner warriors. It's no easy feat, but it is possible.

On the surface, WYRD is the story of one woman finding her path out of the darkness, but it's more than that. It's a celebration of the glorious, nurturing, flatulent, hilarious awesomeness that is sisterhood and community. WYRD is our ode to resilience—a giant group hug for everyone who needs one. Bring it in, folks.

I'm humbled by Britt, Meg, Ashley and Selina's eternally enthusiastic championing of this work, and their collective brilliance. I'm excited by the talented folks who wanted so much to be a part of this project—and came back again and again when I reached out. I'm grateful to everyone who trusted us with funding, residencies, and sponsorships so that we could create in a supported and sustainable way.

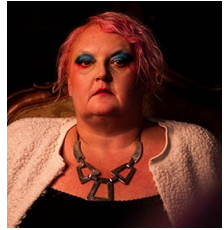

I'm so thankful to every person who has contributed their personal stories, passions, humour and pain to the creation of this behemoth (witches of 'The Coven'—I see you!); to everyone who bravely offered us invaluable feedback; and to my eternally patient partner, Andrew, and my wonderful kids, Ella and Forrest—thanks for being my soft place to land.

Britt Small | Director

When I first began directing, I struggled with the rigid roles and hierarchies implicit in the traditional theatre process but also grew impatient with the collective process without specific leadership. I sought a third way and over the years fumbled my way towards a guided visceral process that encourages collaboration and opens space for surprise and insight to occur. We enter with questions, dispositions, passions and play and weave and reveal. Working on this project feels like a celebration and validation of this way of working together and it is a rare occurrence in my experience. I am deeply grateful to Kat for her vision in gathering such a dynamic, talented and compassionate team and igniting this project.

For the wyrd in my life who continue to be invisibly powerful, generous, their own kind of punk, resisting and protecting sacred parts of themselves while getting on with it, always, getting on and making shit happen. I am me through you. Full of change and love and courage. I am writing this in the midst of things. I think we are discovering ways in which/witch! we might meaningfully heal and transform—in the process unearthing our care, our humour, our power. Welcome to the Bog. Long live the Bog.

Britt has over 20 years experience as a director, producer, performer, facilitator, storyteller and teacher. She is the Co-Founder and Co-Director of Atomic Vaudeville. The theatre company has created more than 90 original collaborative works including the Zeitgeist Cabaret in Whitehorse in 2019. Britt has directed Janet Munsil's Circus Fire and The Ugly Duchess, Jacob Richmond's Qualities of Zero, National tours of Ride the Cyclone and Legoland, The Fantasticks and True West for Blue Bridge Repertory Theatre, A Midsummer Night's Dream for GVSF, God's Lake and Castle in the Sky for Castlereigh Theatre, Epidermis Circus for SNAFU, My Chernobyl for The Belfry and Gateway Theatre and local Victoria cult hits The Rocky Horror Show and Hedwig for AV. Britt also works as a mentor, dramaturg and book editor, is currently developing a clown ensemble piece and new musical The Batshits and teaches acting, play building, clown, comedy, movement and improvisation for various stage and film organizations. Ashley Robyn | Musical Director

When I was invited to participate in the first development phase of this project as a songwriter 18 months ago, I couldn't have possibly imagined the path that lay ahead. A musical? About abusive relationships and coercive control? How are we going to find our way? I soon discovered, with a group of extraordinary women and non-binary creators, that this path would unfold with a lot more ease than our beloved protagonist. Through shared experiences, laughter, tears, music, poetry, performance, and collaboration, the journey to the bog had begun.

I was shocked when I was offered the role of musical director and cast member. I haven't been in a play in about twenty years, let alone in a leadership role. But I found myself within a group of incredible, collaborative artists once more. They offered up an abundance of creative energy that I simply poured into the songs and into the process. It was no small feat for this group to approach a highly technical, multi-genre piece. Every day was a new discovery. We also have several performers on instruments they've never played before. I am grateful to them all for getting messy and going into the "vulnerability pit", shining so brightly in that particular darkness. I think you will see that special shine onstage.

I must give my deepest appreciation to Selina Heyligers-Hare, who has been my right hand woman throughout this process. With her prowess for transcription, incredible ear for arrangements, sound design magic, and world class musical abilities, I could not have done it without her. Her graciousness in helping accommodate my dyslexia made this role accessible to me, when for most of my life I figured it would always be out of reach.

And a very special thanks to Britt Small and Kat McCallum, who brought me aboard the Goodship Boghag and changed my horizons for the better.

Our sincere gratitude to the following individuals and community organizations for their support and contributions to this production

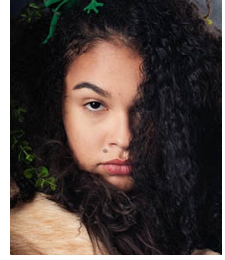

The Guild Hall, Andrew Connors, Yukon Film Society, Ella and Forrest Peschke, Steven Inglis, Kim Coulter, Aidan Inglis, Pedro Siqueria, Kathleen Greenfield, staff and volunteers at Intrepid Theatre, Metro Studio Theatre and Atomic Vaudeville, Ivan Coyote, Alix Todd, Cat Millar, Patrick Matheson, Cate Innish, Matthew Lien, Ken and Liesel Briggs, Isidro Rodriguez-Lopez, Lenore Morris, Anna Schunda, Willow Gamberg and Road Dogs Music, Yukon Music Camp Society, Tara Martin, Toby Moisey, Mark Peschke, James McCullough, Serena Zahora, Kaushee's Place, Victoria Faulkner Women's Centre, Canadian Mental Health Association (Yukon), Bill Charron and Omni Productions, Luann Baker-Johnson and Lumel Studios, Corrina Lotz and Capital Group, Mark Penner and Solid Sound, Etienne Girard, Kristen Bond, Angela Drainville, Pat Ross, Derrick Chua, Charles Hegsted, Evan Stepanian, Brian Fidler, Jacob Zimmer, Duncan Sinclair, Alexandra Knowles, Robbyn Chiles and Valerie McCallum.

And thank YOU, our audience, for supporting live theatre arts.

Yasmin D'Oshun* | Lake Erie Storm Hag

Born and raised in Salvador, Brazil, Yasmin has been submerged in the performing arts world since moving to Canada, and she's incredibly excited to be making her Larrikin debut in this new musical.

Some recent credits include Ensemble in A Christmas Carol (Chemainus Theatre Festival); Princess Fiona in Shrek the Musical; Tiny Tom/Hope Understudy in Urinetown (CCPA); Margi in We Can't Pay! We Won't Pay; Constance Blackwood in the homecoming production of Ride The Cyclone (Blue Bridge Repertory Theatre); and Samara in Atomic Vaudeville's TV pilot The Batshits. Creating new work is simultaneously terrifying and thrilling and Yasmin is so grateful to be embarking on this journey surrounded by this incredibly talented and considerate team. She hopes this thought provoking piece creates a safe space for you to unconditionally love your wyrd self! Special thanks to Kat, Britt and friends for their constant patience and support!

Selina Heyligers-Hare | Co-Composer/Hag/Roberta Bondar

Born into the warm embrace of the Yukon music scene, this multi-instrumentalist spent her childhood hanging out at her dad's music store, watching her luthier mom's busy hands and socializing at weekly community jams.

She started working at the Frantic Follies Vaudeville Revue at 11 years old, subsequently joining many multi-genre bands and performing at special events and festivals all throughout her youth.

Upon completing her diploma in Music and Technology at Selkirk College, she returned home to pursue her passion in live performance by working with multiple bands including Yukon's funk collective Major Funk and the punk-folk rock band The Naysayers. In the last few years Selina was hired to be a creator, composer, lyricist and transcriber for Larrikin Entertainment's WYRD. She has toured Canada with many bands, released her own music and traveled to the UK with Paris Pick for Focus Wales.
