

Scenario 1

Rebecca has received an email telling her all about an online competition where she could win £10,000!!!!

She is firstly asked for her name and her email address. Then she is asked for a nickname, the names of any pets she has and her mother's maiden name.

Should she fill it in? What are the risks? What could happen?

Scenario 2

Aaron receives an email from Apple telling him there is a problem with his account and that he must sign in using his email and password to ensure he does not lose all his photos. It also asks him to update his credit card details on his account. He knows where his dad keeps the credit card!

What should he do? What are the risks? What could happen?

Scenario 3

Jasmine receives an email about a special offer where she can buy top of the range running trainers worth £180 for just £20. As she looks through the email she sees that it is asking for a lot of information, including her credit card details. She has her own credit card which her parents have given her for emergencies.

What should he do? What are the risks? What could happen?