

Hey Bruins,

I am incredibly excited to welcome you to the Bruin Finance Society! BFS is the best place to start and a great place to continue in your professional journey, and we're proud to serve a general membership of over 1,600 UCLA undergraduates.

At BFS, we believe everyone should have the opportunity to learn about their career options and develop professionally. We strive to provide UCLA students with resources, guidance, and experience in a variety of career paths. And, we trust that our community can be built upon character as much as ambition, that we ourselves will flourish when we empower each other to succeed.

You may be committed to a field, or just starting to explore opportunities. You may have many professional experiences, or are seeking your first. That's why BFS offers not just one path, but a tree of presentations, workshops, and resources. Our weekly General Meetings give overviews of career fields and recruitment tips, and our workshop series and speaker events in each field expand upon those fields and provide opportunities to develop professional connections. We provide written resources through our website and recruitment and project opportunities through partnerships with business and other clubs. You can choose offerings that suit your interests and experience, and follow that branch to progress in your professional knowledge, experience, and skills.

Beyond professional growth, you can find lasting friendships and a supportive community. We host club-wide socials and retreats, and weekly dining hall runs. Through our families program, you can join a tight-knit group with similar career and social interests, while participating in our wider BFS community. To fulfill our mission of making business and finance accessible to everyone, our General Meetings and club-wide socials are open to all UCLA students.

I hope to see you at our future events! I know that we'll do great things together!

Sincerely,
