STUDY: PEOPLE WHO HAVE RECOVERED FROM COVID-19 UNLIKELY TO BENEFIT FROM VACCINE

The Epoch Times

People who have previously been infected with the virus that causes COVID-19 are protected against being infected again and thus don't need to be vaccinated, according to a new study.

"Our conclusion is that if you were previously infected, you are protected because of the previous infection and you don't need the vaccine," Dr. Nabin Shrestha, of the Cleveland Clinic's Department of Infectious Disease, told The Epoch Times.

Shrestha and colleagues at the clinic studied data on employees, separating them into four groups: previously infected and unvaccinated, previously infected and vaccinated, not previously infected and unvaccinated, and not previously infected and vaccinated.

They found that the vaccines were strongly effective in preventing infection from the CCP (Chinese Communist Party) virus, which causes COVID-19, but that previous infection also bestowed a natural immunity.

Fox News

Lilit Vanetsyan, a teacher in Fairfax County, Virginia, confronted school board officials in neighboring Loudoun County on Tuesday to push back against what she described as radical lesson plans that will teach kids to "root for socialism by the time they get to middle school."

"Parents, the longer that you wait and don't have your child's schools accountable, gives these guys more time to dictate what's best for your child's physical, mental, and emotional health," she said, pointing to the board as she spoke from the podium at Tuesday's school board meeting.

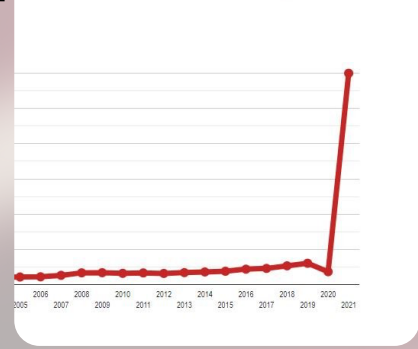

She joins a growing number of parents and educators who are speaking out against the controversial critical race theory, which opponents argue is a divisive curriculum that teaches adolescents to judge one another by the color of their skin.
