Me personally the way that i would see myself in math is very slow. When it comes to math im a very slow learner i don't necessarily like it but that's how i am. Others might influence math for me by the way that they teach it. The way that I would show confidence in myself is just to be yourself don't be fake! The way that i let others shine is by letting them be your true self and letting people express the way they think.
