I have been called a baby whisperer by new moms. The more accurate term would be, "person with lots of baby experience." The new event space, The Chelsea Party Loft is the brainchild of a middle school PTO President and Cub Scout leader with experience. He understands the stress of hosting events for tweens and teens who have outgrown Chuck E Cheese parties but still want a party. He gets the stress of details, cleaning the house, providing safe entertainment, and the potential overwhelm of a large group of tweens or teens in the house at once. His mission is to help you take the stress out of a party.

The Chelsea Party Loft just opened across from The Secretary of State in Chelsea Village Plaza at 1115 S. Main. It is a 1400 square foot party venue with a dance floor, sound system and 360 degree video booth (perfect for your little tik tok lovers). Disco ball and dance club lighting create all the vibes for tweens who want all the vibes. There's a green wall with neon for perfect social media photos and even a little tiki lounge for parents to relax while kids enjoy the party. Parties are 2.5 hours. No cleaning before or after. You can bring your own food or order it for delivery. It's all simple and easy without the stress and work of a typical house party. Just book the party, decide on food and drink, and show up. When it's over, leave with your happy partied out child and thank goodness they weren't creating chaos in your house. I know I'm eyeing the space for my nearly 11 year-old so she and her little Swifty friends can dance to Taylor, eat pizza and giggle without causing me additional stress. The owner put on the lights and disco ball when I admitted I have a little Swifty at home and started playing a Taylor Swift song. I imagined how my daughter would feel and I knew she'd love it.

I know Chelsea likes to support local business, especially when local business supports Chelsea. I asked if he had plans to support the community and he stated unequivocally. He is open to discuss and help address the needs of the PTO and any scouting groups that he can help.
