Welcome

The National Congress of Black Women (NCBW) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to the educational, political and cultural development of African American women and youth. The organization was founded in 1984 by Dr. C. Delores Tucker in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. In 1985, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm was the first elected chair. Many dedicated Black women were among the charter members, including Mrs. Coretta Scott King, Congresswomen Maxine Waters and Eleanor Holmes Norton, Dr. Dorothy Height, Dr. Mary Frances Berry and others called by Dr. Tucker to meet in D.C. to strategize on ways to confront the critical issues facing Black women and their communities.

While our mission is to continue the work of these great women, we are expanding our efforts to educate youth on the responsibilities of good citizenship and the importance of engaging the political process. Thank you for joining the Philadelphia “Flagship” Chapter of the National Congress of Black Women, Inc. for our first Annual Dr. C. Delores Tucker SheRose Award Gala featuring a Cocktail Reception. Food will be served to include butlered Hors-d’oeuvres, open bar and music. We will pay tribute to honorees who were nominated locally, regionally and nationally who “ROse to the Occasion” in their various professions, areas of interest and public service. These women dare to make a difference across the United States in a wide range of professions and services. We will recognize the tremendous work that each of our honorees are doing in the areas of: Communications & Media, Labor, Education, Entrepreneurship, Housing Rights, Law & Criminal Justice, Entertainment, and Health & Human Services.

Our National Honoree is New York State Attorney General Letitia James. Our National Organizational Honoree is Win With Black Women with Jotaka Eaddy & Holli Holliday, Esq. accepting on behalf of WWBW. Other Honorees include Dr. Naomi Johnson-Booker, Dr. Robin Cooper, Sherrie Horsey-Darden, Madaline Maria Dunn, Keir Bradford-Grey, Esq., Jimia R. Davis, Florence “Penny” McDonald, Angela Mclver, Paulette Starr-Dinnall, Toni Staten, Retired President Judge Thomasine Tynes and Dr. William Tucker who will be receiving “The HeROse Award” because “He Rose for Her.” In addition, this event will raise funds to continue our work in developing healthy and sustainable communities through political activism, civic education, and economic empowerment.

With Gratitude,

Cheryl Hazzard
Chairperson

Our Purpose

With the activity decrease and membership decline of The Flagship Chapter of The National Congress of Black Women which organizations all across the world experienced due to COVID; this event was a brainstorm to re-activate, motivate and rejuvenate the local membership of this Flagship Chapter of NCBW with the ultimate goal of increasing membership.

In this year of 2023 things began to open back up and more people were beginning to have and attend in person activities.

In addition this event was put in place to increase the visibility and awareness of The History and Story about our great Leader in Dr. C. DeLores Tucker and those Trailblazing Women who not only started this journey, but those who are keeping this organization alive.

Lastly the purpose of this event was to raise awareness, visibility and increase the engagement in civic and social action through the education process of our government structure.

The belief was that in return this would reduce apathy through knowledge that can be applied. As a result, APPLIED KNOWLEDGE IS POWER! AND NOW WE'RE HERE!

The Legacy of Dr. C DeLores Tucker

C. DeLores Tucker fueled a lifetime of activism for advancing the rights of Black people and women.

William Tucker, who continues to live in Philadelphia, said his wife “always had an idea about how to eliminate some injustice in society. She would wake up with that on her mind.”

C. DeLores Tucker “represents a generation that changed America,” Rev. Jesse Jackson Sr. said in his eulogy at Tucker’s funeral at the Deliverance Evangelistic Church in North Philadelphia in October 2005. Her funeral drew hundreds, including former civil rights activist and U.S. Rep. from Georgia John Lewis and Vice President Al Gore.

Born Oct. 4, 1927, she was the 10th of 11 children and the daughter of a North Philadelphia pastor. She grew up in Germantown, attended the High School for Girls and then went on to Temple University and the University of Pennsylvania.

C. DeLores Tucker was the first Black woman to serve as Pennsylvania secretary of state and was a driving force behind expanding voting rights, including lowering the voting age to 18. She initiated the first Commission on the Status of Women in Pennsylvania and was responsible for the appointment of more women and Blacks to boards, commissions and judgeships than ever before in the state’s history.

In 1984, C. DeLores Tucker and U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm founded what’s now known as the National Congress of Black Women, a nonprofit and nonpartisan organization that fights for the advancement of women of color in politics, education and society.

Advocating for educational issues for children and preparing them for college were among her lifelong goals, said E. Faye Williams, president of the National Congress of Black Women.

Among her lasting legacies in the city was her co-founding of the Philadelphia Martin Luther King Jr. Association for Nonviolence Inc. in 1983, which continues to hold its popular annual awards and benefit luncheon. The organization bills itself as the only affiliate commissioned by King’s widow, Coretta Scott King.

History of NCBW

NCBW was founded by the late Dr. C. DeLores Tucker in August 1984 after attending the 1984 National Democratic Convention in San Francisco, California. As a result of black women being excluded from participating in the selection of the Vice-Presidential candidate, she convened the first organizing meeting at the Black Postal Workers Union Headquarters in Washington, D.C. A convention was held in 1985 in Atlanta, Georgia following several organizing meetings, and the late Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm was elected as the first National President.

NCBW is a non-profit tax exempt organization with the mission to build a network of women of color and to engage them in leadership activities within the educational, economic, social and political arenas. Our mandate is to foster and enhance the mission of this organization.

One of the many NCBW Programs that Dr. Tucker initiated was the College for Teens Program where teenagers would attend a summer session on a college campus and was the originator of the Campaign to have the Sojourner Truth statue installed at the U.S. Capitol. She also led NCBW's national campaign against Gangster Rap.

Jimia R. Davis

One of the most impactful moments in her life was on April 15th, 2019, when her Father, James Davis Jr. was wrongly convicted and sentenced to 10+ years in federal Prison.

Speaking on the impact her Dad had on her life, the city of Philadelphia and much more in the highest court in the country at only 17-years old, the Judge (Wendy Beetle Stone) told Jimia, “you will be ok, you have the fire in you. I see it.” She then proceeded to issue her Father a preposterous sentence, justifying it by saying “Your family thinks very highly of you [James Davis Jr.], this will show them.”

Jimia uses this day as her main motivation, and is now determined not only to change the mindsets of individuals within the urban community, but to open her own Law firm devoted to fighting for Black men who otherwise could not fight against the system themselves.
