Playdough (& Printing without a Pencil)

Let's Make Printing Easier: Just for Fun

Writing IN or WITH playdough
(or clay, floam, Kinetic sand, etc...)

Make a ball, squish it into a pancake and print your letter (eyes open or eyes closed) and choose your "pencil"... could be a small pencil, your finger, golf tee,...

Writing IN or WITH playdough
(or clay, floam, Kinetic sand, etc...)

Roll your playdough into snakes or logs and build your letter.
You can then "trace", squish or pinch in the correct pattern (flow) of the letter formation!

Writing WITHOUT a pencil

The options are endless... here are a few ways to explore writing:

- finger in salt, flour, sand, snow, dirt, mud
- use a stick or golf tee
- gel sealed in a ziploc bag
- sidewalk chalk or in bubbles in the bathtub
- water and a paintbrush (outdoors)
- what's your idea???

Try this:

"Print a magic c - turn it into a letter 'a'; Print a magic c and turn it into a 'd'; Print a magic c and turn it into another 'd' - what did you spell?" add

Try with some of the words below:

Service Shop Spacing

Let's Make Printing Easier: Just for Fun

Between each letter imagine a piece of spagetti
... or get a piece of yarn or an elastic.

That's how much space we want between each letter! (Not more, and not less)

Between each word we want a meatball space
... or get a small pompom or a bead.

This is how much space we want between our words!
