

This project is nonpartisan. My politics are to maximize help for everyone.

So, conservatives, if this seems like a liberal project, in the details, below, I say it can be most helpful for liberals to sincerely apologize to you. And follow with validating actions. And when it might help, vice versa. Because truly helping requires trust. And sincere apologies, followed by validating actions, are some of the best ways to restore and build trust.

Apologies are discussed much more fully later in this website, and my Free Online Guide™, link below.