Sensitive Information

Sensitive information means information relating to health information or biometric information, racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religion, trade union or other professional associations or memberships, philosophical beliefs, sexual orientation or practices, or criminal records.

Sensitive information receives a higher level of protection under the Australian Privacy Principles. We do not intentionally collect sensitive information

3. Use: Why we collect, hold, use, and share

Depending on how we interact with you, we might collect, hold, use, and disclose your information for varied reasons, including:

- To communicate with you, to market products and services to you, to tell you important service updates,
- To verify identity or address and delivery information,
- To provide Site functionality,
- To take payment and to give refunds,
- For internal record keeping, invoicing, and billing,
- For analytics, market research and business development, including to operate and improve our Site
- For marketing, to send you promotional info about us and our products and services and information about third parties we think you might be interested in,
- To comply with our legal obligations or to resolve disputes,
- To consider your application to join our team.

Getting and giving information from third parties

If we get personal information about you from a third party, we manage and protect it as set out in this policy.

For example, if a student pays for Products using a parent or guardian credit card, then we may receive personal information relating to the parent or guardian's purchase details.

If you are a third party giving personal information to us about somebody else, you warrant to us you have that person's consent to give us their personal information.

For example, if a parent enters information about their child who is a student, then the parent gives consent on behalf of their student.

Managing children's information

Many of the Services we provide to our Customers may involve managing some information from students which may include children's information.

In Australia, children have the same privacy rights as adults.

- Parents and guardians are responsible for their child's information. Please contact us if you have any concerns or questions about your child's information.

4. Your rights

We want all visitors and customers to feel in control of their own personal information.

- You can ask us for access to your data and ask what Personal Information we hold about you.
- You can ask us to correct your data if you think it's not right.
- You can opt out of marketing communications at any time by clicking on the link in our communications to unsubscribe.

5. Deleting your information

There may be legal requirements that mean your data cannot be deleted.

You can ask that we delete the personal information we hold about you at any time.

- To the extent we're permitted by law:
 - We will take reasonable steps to delete your personal information from our current records.
 - If you ask us to delete your personal information, we will let you know how that deletion affects your use of our Site and Products.
 - If there are exceptions which mean we are not able to delete your data as requested, we will set out the details for you in response to your request.
- If your agreement with us ends, we delete the personal information we hold within the timeframe set out in our agreement with you, generally within 7 years for our own record keeping.
