Community Description
The Town of Glasgow, Virginia, chartered on February 29, 1892, is one of the southern most communities of the Shenandoah Valley located in Rockbridge County. Nestled against the western slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains, Glasgow is located at the confluence of the Maury (North) River and the James River, before flowing through the gorge at Balcony Falls. The Maury River runs from Goshen to Glasgow and is the only river in Virginia that never crosses county lines. The Maury flows into the James River just off Jarvis Trial at the Department of Game and Inland Fisheries boat ramp. Glasgow is also partnered with the Upper James River Water Trail to better promote and enhance the river experience that we have to offer. Seasonal boaters, canoers, and kayakers converge on Glasgow throughout the Spring, Summer and Fall.

The small town is also recognized as an Appalachian Trail Community. During the warmer months and through the Fall of the year the Town has many visitors come from the trail and enjoy the natural beauty and the amenities that we have to offer. This includes an enclosed hiker shelter with a hot shower, complementary firewood supply, port-a-johns and electrical receptacles. The hikers also frequent our conveniently located local businesses for great food and supplies.
Our new Events Pavilion at Locher Field is giving our Town the chance to have many more local events, including a new concert series, “Rockin’ the Gorge,” starting in 2020. In the Spring of 2020, Glasgow was selected to host the Rockbridge County Fair in the years to come at Locher Field. The Glasgow Farmers Marker is one of the jewels of our Town. The 10-stall under-roof open air Farmers Market is managed by the Town, and the volunteers from our local Ruritan Club help it succeed.

Glasgow has the largest employer in Rockbridge County within its town limits. Mohawk Industries is one of the largest carpet manufacturers under one roof in the United States and provides an economic boost for our Town, County, and the Region.

The Town offers natural beauty, outdoor activities, and a down-home feel. Our citizens are what make this Town thrive and many of our citizens are multi-generational, meaning that their families have settled here and have no intention of leaving, “because it is home.”
