Always start with a story..

I noticed my brother's brown stained teeth, leaving me curious about dentistry. Growing up, I was raised to believe that dentistry was a luxury rather than being necessary. When I grew up, I was interested to work in healthcare and to learn about the crucial role oral health plays in overall health

Talk proudly about your Dental school in home country

As a dental student, I learned the importance of being meticulous and serving patients from diverse backgrounds. I honed my hand skills in the clinic, working under skilled dental faculty. I also participated in community outreach programs that served schools in rural areas. Outside of academics, I also thrived personally by participating in extracurricular activities such as Dance, and Singing competitions.
