

Government Services Director Completes City of Charlotte Inclusive Procurement Training Program

Tuesday, May 12, 2020
5:57 PM

Today, Mark Cichonski our Executive Director of Government Services completed the Inclusive Procurement Training Program (IPTP).

This training program, in partnership with Johnson C. Smith University and in collaboration with the City of Charlotte, prepared Tactegra to engage the City of Charlotte and other government agencies to bid on open requisitions.

The class met for six workshops on Tuesday nights from April 7 through May 12. Topics included, financials and capital, working with the city, ensuring profitable bids, capability statements and business leadership.

The class was moderated by Mic Alexander, who serves as a Business Adviser for the Southwest region of North Carolina.

Mark's feedback about the class was simple: "The material presented in the class was top-notch. In addition, it gave us the opportunity to network with other businesses in the Charlotte area and learn about their challenges as well as their victories!"

After 5 weeks, the graduation class had a panel of guests speakers who were graduates of the IPTP program. They discussed how they have leveraged their knowledge to build successful businesses in the Charlotte area.

For more information visit: <https://carolinasmallbusiness.org/services/iptp/>