Paint a Tree Swallow House

Saturday, May 31

To celebrate the Aldo Leopold Festival, paint an authentic Harry Harris Tree Swallow House or a free GreenBird weatherproof-paper birdhouse.

On Saturday, May 31, bird lovers of all ages can choose an hour or so from 10:30 to 4:00 for this unusual opportunity. Beginning in the 1970s, the late Harry Harris built countless numbers of houses every year that he had specially designed to save the declining population of tree swallows. He posted them along the marshes of Les Cheneaux, and shipped many hundreds more to the National Audubon Society. Local craftsmen and nature lovers continue Harry's legacy.

$15 for an authentic Harry Harris wooden tree swallow house (paint included).

GreenBird weatherproof-paper birdhouses are free for children to paint and hang outdoors.

Families encouraged.
