SECTION A – READING SKILLS

1. Read the passage given below:

[12]

Punctuality is a necessary habit in public affairs of a civilized society. Without it nothing could ever be brought to a conclusion, everything would be in a state of chaos. Only in a sparsely populated rural community is it possible to disregard it. In the ordinary living there can be some tolerance of unpunctuality. The intellectual, who is working on some abstruse problem, has everything coordinated and organized for the matter in hand. He is therefore forgiven, if late for the dinner party. But people are often reproached for unpunctuality when their only fault is cutting fine. It is hard for energetic, quick-minded people to waste time, so they are often tempted to finish a job before setting out to keep an appointment. If no accidents occur on the way, like punctured tires, diversion of traffic, sudden descent of fog, they will be on time. They are often more industrious, useful citizens than those who are never late. The over-punctual can as much be a trial to others as the unpunctual. The guest who arrives half an hour too soon is the greatest nuisance. Some friends of my family had this irritating habit. The only thing to do was to ask them to come half an hour later than the other guests. Then they arrived just when we wanted them. If you are catching a train, it is always better to be comfortably early than even a fraction of a minute too late. Although being early may mean wasting a little time, this will be less than if you miss the train and have to wait an hour or so for the next one. And you avoid the frustration of arriving at the very moment when the train is drawing out of the station and being unable to get on it. An even harder situation is to be on the platform in a good time for a train and still to see it go off without you. Such an experience befell a certain young girl the first time she was travelling alone. She entered the station twenty minutes before the train was due since her parents had impressed upon her that it would be unforgivable to miss it and cause the friends with whom she was going to stay to meet her. She gave her luggage to a porter and showed him her ticket. To her horror, he said that she was two hours too soon. She felt in her handbag, for the piece of paper on which her father had written down all the details of the journey and gave it to the porter. He agreed that a train did come into the station at the time on the paper and that it did stop, but only to take on water, not passengers. The girl asked to see a timetable, feeling sure that her father could not have made such a mistake. The porter went to fetch one and arrived back with the station master, who produced it with a flourish and pointed out a microscope 'o' beside the time of the arrival of the train at his station. This little 'o' indicated that the train only stopped for water. Just at that moment, the train came into the station. The girl, tears streaming down her face, begged to be allowed to slip into the guard's van. But the station master was adamant: rules could not be broken. And she had to watch that train disappear towards her destination while she was left behind.

Answer the following questions, based on the above passage :

i. Complete the sentence by choosing an appropriate option. (1)

It is better to reach the platform before the train arrives because _____.

- i. You will have time to relax at the station
 - ii. It's good to waste some time in life
 - iii. It can help you avoid frustrations of work
 - iv. It's better than watching the train leave in front of your eyes
- ii. Comment on the writer's reference to the features of energetic and quick-minded people. (1)
- iii. List the two ways which can hinder a punctual person from reaching a place on time. (2)
- (Clue: Think about the obstruction one may face)
- iv. Select the option that conveys a similar meaning of 'inflexible', in the passage. (1)
- i. Over-punctual

- ii. Energetic
- iii. Adamant
- iv. Abstruse
- v. Find a word opposite in meaning to clear/obvious in the passage: (1)
 - i. community
 - ii. abstruse
 - iii. diversion
 - iv. industrious
- vi. Reaching early may mean wasting a little time. Based on your understanding of the given passage, justify how reaching early does not always mean wasting time. (2)
- vii. Why is it fair to say that punctuality necessary in a civilized society? (1)
- viii. Complete the given sentence with an appropriate inference, with respect to the following: (1)

Some friends of my family has this irritating habit of arriving half an hour too soon. We can deal with them by _____.
- ix. The over-punctual can be as much a trial to others as the unpunctual (1)
 - i. He has everything coordinated and organized
 - ii. He believes that the early bird gets the worm
 - iii. He is wasting as much time as the unpunctual ones
 - iv. There is hardly any difference between the unpunctual and over punctual
- x. Why are some people, who may be unpunctual, often considered more industrious or useful? (1)

2. Read the following passage carefully :

[10]

The Ganges is one of the largest rivers in Asia. It rises in the Himalayan Mountains and flows over 2500 km through India and Bangladesh into the Bay of Bengal.

However, the Ganges, India's holy river, is also one of the most polluted in the world. The Ganges River basin has a size of over 1 million square km. It lies in one of the most populous regions on earth. About 500 million people, half of India's overall population, live in the Ganges river plains. There are many causes of Ganges river pollution. About 2 million Hindus bathe in the river every day. During religious ceremonies, up to a hundred million people clean their sins away in the Ganges River.

They believe that bathing in the river will make them pure. In addition, thousands of bodies are cremated near the river, especially around the holy city, Varanasi. The ashes are often released into the Ganges. The Ganges also provides water for farming land, which is increasing at a tremendous rate. Irrigation projects cause water levels to go down along the river. More and more dams are being erected along India's holy river, mainly to produce energy for Delhi and other large cities in the area.

Ganges River Pollution: A case Study of Causes of Ganges River Pollution.

Because of India's lax environmental regulations, industries along the river release chemicals and other poisonous materials into the Ganges. In some places, they are a thousand times over the allowed limit. Especially India's traditional leather industry needs great amounts of water. In addition, fertilizers from the fields find their way into the ground water, and ultimately flow into the river. Altogether, the amount of Industrial pollution has doubled in the past 20 years.

This widespread pollution of the Ganges River has also led to major health problems. Many diseases are common, including cholera, hepatitis and diarrhoea. While India's population keeps growing, more and more people are leaving the countryside and moving to big cities along the Ganges. As a result, the river will not be able to cope with even more people. Life in the river is also at risk. Recent reports have shown that there is high a level of mercury in some fish. The construction of dams is destroying forests and vegetation, killing off many animals and plants.

India authorities are fighting an upward battle towards cleaning up Ganges River. International organizations have offered help. The World Bank has agreed to give India a loan of up to a million dollars to clean up the Ganges River.

Answer the following questions, based on the above passage :

- i. Does the following statement agree with the information given in the passage?

(1)

While India's population continues to grow, an increasing number of people are leaving the countryside and relocating to major cities along the Ganges.

Select from the following:

True - if the statement agrees with the information

False - if the statement contradicts the information

Not Given - if there is no information on this

- ii. Do you think that the widespread pollution of the Ganga River is a contributing factor to the high prevalence of influenza? (2)
- iii. The bar graph shows that the River Ganges has got polluted badly. The sewage treatment plants had been established. Which of the following is true? (1)
- A. The treatment capacity is equal to the sewage generation
 - B. The sewage generation is less than the treatment plant.
 - C. The sewage generation is more than the treatment capacity installed.
 - D. The treatment plant is sufficient.
- iv. Complete the sentence based on the following statement. (1)

When I heard this, I didn't want to laugh any more, I felt terribly sad. How could they believe that it was disgusting if one of us held that package in his hands, even though the vadai had been wrapped first in a banana leaf, and then parcelled in paper? I felt so provoked and angry that I wanted to touch those wretched vadais myself straightaway. Why should we fetch and carry for these people, I wondered. Such an important elder of ours goes meekly to the shops to fetch snacks and hands them reverently, bowing and shrinking, to this fellow who just sits there and stuffs them into his mouth. The thought of it infuriated me.

- i. The elder handing snacks reverently, bowing and shrinking to the fellow indicates that the fellow was (1)

Read the following extract and answer the questions that follow:

She still has bangles on her wrist, but no light in her eyes. “Ek waqt ser bhar khana bhi nahin khaya.” she says, in a voice drained of joy. She has not enjoyed even one full meal in her entire lifetime-that’s what she has reaped! Her husband, an old man with a flowing beard says, “I know nothing except bangles. All I have done is make a house for the family to live in.”

Hearing him one wonders if he has achieved what many have failed in their lifetime. He has a roof over his head!

The cry of not having money to do anything except carry on the business of making bangles, not even enough to eat, rings in every home. The young men echo the lament of the elders. Little has moved with time, it seems in Firozabad, years of mind-numbing toil have killed all initiative and the ability to dream.

- i. Identify the textual clue that allows the reader to infer that the young men followed their elders. (Clue: a phrase)
- ii. Select the option that completes the given sentence appropriately.

Years of mind-numbing toil have killed all initiative and the ability to dream.

This shows that:

- a. the bangle makers are exhausted yet they are enterprising and have dreams.
 - b. the drudgery of work has destroyed their willingness to improve their lot.
 - c. the daily grind has stolen the dreams of the bangle makers and made them dull.
 - d. the bangle makers have been working so hard that there’s no time to dream.
- iii. Based on the above extract, choose the statement that is TRUE about the elderly woman.
 - a. She was a senior in the factory and her hands were dyed red with henna.
 - b. Her head was covered with red-coloured veil.
 - c. She had not enjoyed even one full meal in her entire lifetime.
 - d. She was the owner of the bangle factory.

iv. Complete the sentence with an appropriate explanation, as per the extract.

The writer through the line 'She still has bangles on her wrist, but no light in her eyes' conveys that though she is married, _____.

v. Select the correct option to fill in the blank

He has a roof over his head! The tone of the author is _____.

- a. pessimistic
- b. empathetic
- c. sympathetic
- d. optimistic

vi. Select the suitable word from the extract to complete the following analogy:

As her hands move mechanically like the tongs of a machine : Simile :: Bangles on her wrist, but no light in her eyes : _____

Subject: Importance of Women Education

Through the columns of your esteemed newspaper, I would like to draw the attention of one and all towards the importance of women's education. Women are the pillars on which the growth and development of a family, society, and nation depend. But she is the victim of patriarchal outlook and conservative mindset in the society. She is not given much importance in the field of education. This is more so in rural India. People do not take into consideration that both genders have equal interests and are equally efficient in learning. Imparting education to women will make them financially independent. More opportunities for farming girl children should be introduced. I request you to publish this letter of mine so that people may think over it and start educating their girl child also. Initiatives should be taken to spread awareness regarding the education of females for their better tomorrow.

Thanking you

Yours sincerely

6. The Consequences of Fear of Missing Out (FOMO) Addiction

By Radhu/Rakesh

In today's digital age, social media has become an integral part of our lives. It offers numerous advantages, such as connectivity, access to information and updates, and even serving as a stress reliever. However, the increasing number of hours young people spend on these platforms has given rise to a concerning phenomenon known as the Fear of Missing Out (FOMO) addiction.

FOMO is the anxiety that others might be having rewarding experiences from which one is absent. This fear is exacerbated by the constant stream of updates and images on social media, leading individuals to feel left out or inadequate. The consequences of FOMO addiction are far-reaching and can significantly impact one's mental and emotional well-being.

One major consequence is the negative effect on socio-emotional connections. Instead of fostering genuine relationships, FOMO can lead to superficial interactions and a sense of isolation. It also invades privacy, as individuals feel compelled to share every aspect of their lives online, often leading to distress when their posts do not receive the expected attention.

Moreover, FOMO can cause significant distress, contributing to feelings of inadequacy, loneliness, and dissatisfaction with one's life. It can also lead to cyberbullying, as individuals may engage in negative behaviours to fit in or gain approval.

To combat FOMO addiction, it is essential to set reasonable timings for social media use. Encouraging face-to-face interactions can help build stronger, more meaningful relationships.

In conclusion, while social media has its benefits, it is crucial to recognize and address the adverse effects of FOMO addiction. By fostering a balanced approach to social media use, we can ensure that it enhances rather than detracts from our lives.

Neat & Clean Holi Day
by Rani, Cultural Secretary

Ramnagar, 16th March, 20XX: Last week, our school celebrated the festival of colours, Holi, in perhaps the most neat, clean and orderly way. The whole school gathered in the playground and played Holi with flower petals and organic dry colours made by the students. Afterwards, they enjoyed sweets, snacks and cold drinks. Holi is a festival of love, respect and enjoyment and that is exactly how it should be celebrated.

Traditionally, Holi was played by making colours from flowers. We tried to live upto the traditional way of celebrating this vibrant festival of colours by celebrating it in such an orderly fashion. It also gave us a unique opportunity of interacting with our principal and teachers in a relaxed scenario. Seeing the zest and enthusiasm of our teachers and students, our principal assured us that our school would get together to celebrate other festivals with the same spirit in the future too.

10. Answer any five of the following questions in 40-50 words each:

- (i) When Douglas went down to the bottom of the pool for the first time, he got terribly frightened. Those nine feet felt almost like ninety feet to him. His lungs ached and were ready to burst.
- (ii) Pablo Neruda here talks about chemical wars involving nuclear weapons and toxic gases resulting in mass destruction. There is no point in winning such wars as there will be no survivors to celebrate the victory. The weapons may actually eradicate the face of human existence on earth.
- (iii) Tigers are the denizens of forests. They love to live in their natural habitat. So the poet has correctly defined it as 'denizens of a world of green'. Tigers are characteristically the masters of their domain. They are not afraid of human beings. The Tigers are a symbol of chivalry as they have exceptional courage to face their enemy. Since the tigers are brave, ferocious and gallant creatures, the poet has, thus, used the term chivalric for them.
- (iv) Sophie aspired to open her own boutique, become an actress, or pursue a career as a fashion designer. However, Jansie, being more practical and realistic, disapproved of these dreams. Knowing they came from a lower economic background, she believed it was more likely they would end up working at the biscuit factory.
- (v) The accent of Stephen Spender, the Englishman, was the main cause of the lack of communication between him and the people at Gemini Studios. The people did not have any idea about what he was talking about.
- (vi) At the age of 22, Umberto Eco presented his first Doctoral dissertation. He told the story of his research, even including his trials and errors. At that point, he realised that scholarly books should be written the way he had done - by telling the story of the research. That is why his essays always had a narrative aspect.

11. Answer any two of the following questions in 40-50 words each:

- (i) According to Geoff Green, High School students are the future policy-makers and through this programme, they would be able to save this planet from the environmental hazards and the harmful effects of global warming. Antarctica, with its simple ecosystem and lack of biodiversity, is the perfect place to study how little changes in the environment can have major repercussions.
- (ii) I do agree with the statement that the astrologer's prediction about the death of the Tiger King came to be true. The state astrologer, at the time of his birth, had predicted that the Tiger King would be killed by a tiger and that he should be cautious of the hundredth tiger. When the king heard about this prediction, he wanted to prove the astrologer wrong and this led him to go on a killing spree. He killed ninety-nine tigers and asked his Dewan to arrange for the 100th tiger. But, somehow, the hundredth tiger was not killed by the king himself. The other hunters, who found out that the old tiger had not died by the bullet of the king but only fainted when the bullet whizzed past him, killed that tiger. The story took a turn and the king was happy that he finally proved the astrologer's prediction wrong. He bought a wooden tiger for his three year old son, as a birthday gift. That wooden tiger became the 100th tiger as it killed the king when merely a sliver of the wood protruding from it pierced his right hand. The wound developed pus and it soon spread all over his arm. The best surgeons failed to save the king and thus the astrologer's prediction about the death of the Tiger King proved to be correct.
- (iii) The programme 'Students on Ice' was a success because it offered a life-changing exposure to the future generation of policymakers at an age when they could absorb, learn and act. It provided them with inspiring educational opportunities which would help them foster a new understanding and respect for our planet.

12. Good morning, everyone.

As I analyzed the texts 'The Rattrap' and 'Aunt Jennifer's Tigers', I noticed how they portrayed men's tendency to change or remain stiff. In 'The Rattrap', the protagonist changes his ways and accepts his mistakes, while in 'Aunt Jennifer's Tigers', Aunt Jennifer creates an alternate world of freedom in her art to escape male dominance since her marriage had put a lot of burden and stress on her.

These portrayals highlight the willingness to reform by accepting our mistakes. In 'The Rattrap', the protagonist mends his ways following Edla's kindness which brings a change in the peddler's heart. Similarly, in 'Aunt Jennifer's Tigers', the uncle is tyrannical and represents patriarchy, a system that needs to be changed. However, Aunt Jennifer finds a way to vent her emotions through her art to escape her stark reality, which shows her adapting nature.

Moreover, these texts emphasize the importance of updating and adapting our nature and knowledge according to changing times. In 'The Rattrap', the protagonist changes his ways and adapts to his new life, which leads to a better life. Similarly, in 'Aunt Jennifer's Tigers', Aunt Jennifer longs for freedom and tries to achieve that by embroidering a motif of tigers on a tapestry which represents her ferocious personality and her need for freedom and self-expression.

In conclusion, I'd like to say that these texts offer valuable insights into the willingness to improve and accept mistakes and the importance of updating and adapting our nature and knowledge according to changing times. We should learn from these portrayals and strive to improve ourselves as everyone is capable of change to lead a better life.

Dear Kamala,

I recently read your poem "My Mother at Sixty-Six," and I can understand the pain of separation that you are going through. Departure from a loved one is never easy, and it can leave us feeling lost and melancholic. However, I want to remind you of the beauty that surrounds us, even in moments of sorrow.

In my poem "A Thing of Beauty," I talk about how beauty has the power to take away our sorrows and provide us with a sense of peace and tranquility. I believe that beauty is not just about the external appearance of things, but it is also about the emotions and feelings that they evoke in us. Even in moments of sadness, we can find beauty in the memories we have shared with our loved ones.

I understand that it may be difficult to see the beauty in life right now, but I encourage you to keep looking. Remember that beauty is eternal and will never pass into nothingness. It will always be there to provide us with a bower quiet, full of sweet dreams, and quiet breathing.

I hope my words would comfort you and help in gulping the bitter reality of the transient life. As I have said earlier, nothing but a thing of beauty can only be a perpetual source of joy.

Warmly,

John Keats

13. My childhood days were surrounded by negativity until I met Mr. Lamb who became my inspiration. I remember once he narrated to me a story of a man who locked himself up in his room as he was afraid of everything. The man thought that he would meet with an accident with a bus, he would catch an infection from someone, a donkey would kick him to death, the lightning may hit him or he may die because the girl whom he loved may leave him or he may even slip off a banana and people would laugh at him. In order to safeguard himself from all such incidents, he locked himself in his room. I was so surprised to hear this that I couldn't stop asking Mr. Lamb if he locked himself forever. He replied that no, he did so for a while. I was curious to know what happened next. Mr. Lamb replied that a picture fell on his head and he died. I burst into laughter as I found it strange. This story had a deep impact on my life when I realised its inherent meaning. It made me confident and helped me to lead a life full of happiness and positivity.

Humanity and Harmony: Lessons from Dr. Sadao

Humanity is a value that binds us together, transcending borders, cultures, and conflicts. My experience in Japan, where I was saved by Dr. Sadao Hoki, a Japanese surgeon, during World War II, profoundly demonstrated the importance of humanity and living in harmony.

When I was washed ashore, wounded and desperate, I expected to be captured or left to die. Instead, Dr. Sadao, despite being a loyal Japanese citizen and aware of the risks, chose to save my life. His decision was not driven by political allegiance but by his unwavering commitment to his medical oath and his deep sense of compassion. He stated, "that if the man were whole I could turn him over to the Police... But since he is wounded," highlighting his belief that a doctor's duty to save lives transcends national and racial boundaries.

Dr. Sadao's actions were a powerful testament to the ability to rise above prejudices. In a time of intense nationalism and conflict, he chose to see me not as an enemy but as a fellow human being in need of help. This act of kindness not only saved my life but also challenged the deeply ingrained biases of his society.

Dr. Sadao's decision to treat me, despite the potential risks to himself and his family, underscores the importance of humanity. By prioritizing my life over his safety, he showed that true courage lies in doing what is right, even when it is difficult.

The story of Dr. Sadao and his wife Hana, who also supported his decision, illustrates the importance of living in harmony. Their willingness to help me, despite the danger, reflects a deep understanding of the interconnectedness of all human beings. It is a reminder that our actions, driven by empathy and compassion, can bridge the divides between us and foster a sense of global unity.
