24. Read the text carefully and answer the questions: [4]

A few days before Independence, the Maharaja of Manipur, Bodhachandra Singh, signed the Instrument of Accession with the Indian government on the assurance that the internal autonomy of Manipur would be maintained. Under the pressure of public opinion, the Maharaja held elections in Manipur in June 1948 and the state became a constitutional monarchy. Thus Manipur was the first part of India to hold an election based on a universal adult franchise. In the Legislative Assembly of Manipur, there were sharp differences over the question of the merger of Manipur with India. While the state Congress wanted the merger, other political parties were opposed to this. The Government of India succeeded in pressurizing the Maharaja into signing a Merger Agreement in September 1949, without consulting the popularly elected Legislative Assembly of Manipur. This caused a lot of anger and resentment in Manipur, the repercussions of which are still being felt.

| These include Aggression or War by other nations, Insurgency, civil wars, etc. | These involve all non-conventional issues, most of which emerged after the end of the Cold War. These include Environment-related problems- Global Warming, Pollution, Resource depletion, Poverty, Terrorism etc. |

20. In 1992, the UN General Assembly adopted a resolution, which reflected three main complaints:

powers.

iii. It lacks equitable representation. Considering the above mentioned demands for restructuring of the UN on 01 January 1997, the UN Secretary General Kofi Annan initiated an inquiry into how the UN should be reformed.

Through regular meetings, the General Assembly provides a forum for the Member States to express their views to the entire membership and find consensus on difficult issues. It makes recommendations in the form of General Assembly Resolutions.

Decisions on important questions, such as those on peace and security, admission of new members and budgetary matters, require a two-thirds majority, but other questions are decided by simple majority.

21. Initiatives have been undertaken by the Indian Government in global efforts through a number of programmes to check environmental degradation. The main principles of India's stand on environmental issues are mentioned below :

- i. India's National Auto Fuel Policy mandates cleaner fuels for vehicles. The Energy Conservation Act, passed in 2001, outlines initiatives to reform energy efficiency.
- ii. The Energy Conservation Act was passed in 2001 to outline initiatives to improve energy efficiency and Electricity Act, passed in 2003 to encourage the use of renewable energy by the Indian government as a conservation programme.
- iii. The Indian Government is also sincere to start a 'National Mission on Biodiesel'. Nearly, 11 million hectares of land is being used to produce biodiesel.
- iv. India has also one of the largest renewable energy programmes in the world.

OR

The role of environmental movements to meet the change of environmental degradation is very important. It is justified from the points below :

- i. Some of the most significant responses to environmental challenges have come not from government but rather from groups of environmentally conscious volunteers around the world.
- ii. Three environmental movements are amongst the most vibrant, diverse and powerful social movements all over the world. These movements create new ideas and long-term visions. There are some examples to show that diversity is a significant feature of contemporary environmental movements.
- iii. There are forest movements in Mexico, Chile, Brazil, Malaysia. Indonesia, Continental Africa and India are faced with enormous pressure. Forest clearing in the Third World continues at an alarming rate despite three decades of environmental activism.
- iv. In the Philippines, a big network of groups and organisations campaigned against the Western Mining Corporation. Mineral industry's extraction of earth, its use of chemicals, its clearance of native vegetation and its displacement of communities continue to invite criticism and resistance in various parts of the globe. Much

- v. Another group of movements is involved in struggles against mega-dams. In every country where mega dams are being built, we find the environmental movements opposing the projects. There are struggles and movements against the construction of mega-dams such as Narmada Bachao Andolan in India. Increasingly anti-dam movements are pro river movement for more sustainable and equitable management of river systems and valleys.

22. Economic Consequences:

- a. It has involved greater trade in commodities across the globe.
- b. There restrictions imposed by other countries on allowing imports of other countries have been reduced.

Cultural Consequences:

- a. The cultural effects of globalisation lead to the fear that it poses a threat to cultures in the world. Hence, it leads to the rise of uniform culture called cultural homogenisation.
- b. The rise of a uniform culture is not the emergence of a global culture. What we have in the name of a Global culture is the imposition of western culture on the rest of the world.

Political Consequences:

- a. In place of the welfare state, it is the market that becomes the prime determinant of economic and social priorities.
- b. The entry and increased role of multinational companies all over the world leads to a reduction in the capacity of governments to take decisions on their own.

Other Consequences:

- a. The left-wing protests against economic liberalisation.
- b. Indian social forum also raised voices against globalisation.

OR

Major factors responsible for the emergence of globalisation are:

- Fast Means of Communication: The invention of the telegraph, the telephone, and the microchip in more recent times has revolutionised communication between different parts of the world. People in different parts of the world now recognise interconnections with the rest of the world and are much more aware than before.
- Rise of Digital Technology: Technology affects the way we think not only of our personal but also our collective lives. The ability of ideas, capital, commodities, and people to move more easily from one part of the world to another has been made possible largely by technological advances.

23. Lessons learned from the feeling of alienation in some parts of India was as:

- i. First and the most elementary lesson is that regional aspirations are very much a part of democratic politics. The expression of regional issues is not an abnormal

- democratic negotiations rather than through suppression.
- iii. The third lesson is about the significance of power-sharing.
- iv. The fourth lesson is that regional imbalance in economic development contributes to the feeling of regional discrimination.
- v. Finally, these cases make us appreciate the farsightedness of the makers of our constitution.

27. Six factors which are responsible for the disintegration of USSR are as follows:

- i. The internal weaknesses of Soviet political and economic institutions failed to meet the aspirations of the people.
- ii. Economic weakness: Economic stagnation for many years led to severe the consumer items shortages and a large section of Soviet society began to doubt and question the system and to do so openly. Economic weakness occurred due to the huge military spending, maintenance of satellite states in Eastern Europe, and of maintenance of the Central Asian Republics within the USSR.
- iii. Political Unaccountability: The Soviet Union had become stagnant in an administrative and political sense as well. The Communist Party regime for around 70 years turned authoritarian which was not accountable to the people. Ordinary people were alienated by slow and stifling administration, rampant corruption, the inability of the system to correct mistakes it had made, the unwillingness to allow more openness in government and the centralization of authority in a vast land.
- iv. The Soviet economy used much of its resources in maintaining a nuclear and military arsenal and the development of its satellite states in Eastern Europe and within the Soviet system. This led to a huge economic burden that the system could not cope with.
- v. Gorbachev's reforms: When Gorbachev became the President, he carried out reforms and loosened the system. He set in motion forces and expectations that few could have predicted and become virtually impossible to control. There were sections of Soviet society which felt that Gorbachev should have moved much faster and were disappointed and impatient with his methods. Others, especially members of the Communist party and those who were served by the system, took exactly the opposite view. In tugs of war, Gorbachev lost support on all sides.
- vi. Rise of nationalism: The rise of nationalism and the desire for sovereignty within various republics including Russia and the Baltic Republics, Ukraine, Georgia etc is the most important and immediate cause for the disintegration of the USSR. The national feeling was strong among the more prosperous areas in USSR and not in central Asian republics. Ordinary people didn't like to pay a big price to uplift the backward Central Asian republics.

OR

India has maintained good relations with all the Post-Communist countries but it has the strongest relation with Russia which continues to date. Following are some arguments to support the statement :

- i. Indo-Russian relation is an important segment of India's foreign policy. The relations between these two countries are embedded in a history of trust and common interests and are matched by popular perceptions. Famous Bollywood personalities

- ii. Both the countries share a vision of multipolar world order. A multipolar world is the co-existence of several powers in the international system, collective security, greater regionalism, negotiated settlements of international conflicts, an independent foreign policy for all countries and decision-making through bodies like the United Nations. The foreign policy had been impacted by The united states of Soviet Russia.
- iii. From this relationship, India gets benefits on issues like Kashmir, energy supplies, sharing information on international terrorism, access to Central Asia and balancing its relations with China. On the other hand, Russia stands to benefit from this relationship because India is the second largest arms market for Russia. The Indian military gets most of its hardware from Russia. In this way, both the countries had been helpful to each other in many aspects.
- iv. Russia is vital for India as it has repeatedly come to the assistance of India during its oil crisis. India is trying to increase its energy imports from Russia and the republics of Kazakhstan and Turkmenistan. In many incidents, The United States of Soviet Russia had provided economic help to India.
- v. Apart from this, Russia is important for India's nuclear energy plants and assisted India's space industry. Russia had provided help for in India, in each case India required weapons. For example, Russia has provided the cryogenic rocket when India needed it. Recently India had a defense deal with Russia to extend their mutual relationships.

Dut to the above reasons, Russia is considered an important aspect of India's foreign policy and a true friend for India over the years.

28. I. Meaning of ASEAN:

Association for South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) was established by five countries of this region: Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand by signing the Bangkok Declaration.

II. Its objectives and expansion:

- i. With some of the fastest growing economies in the world, ASEAN broadened its objectives beyond the economic and social spheres. In 2003, ASEAN moved along the path of the EU by agreeing to establish an ASEAN community comprising three pillars, namely, the ASEAN Security Community, the ASEAN Economic Community, and the ASEAN SocioCultural Community.
- ii. The ASEAN Regional Forum (ARF), which was established in 1994, is the organisation that carries out the coordination of security and foreign policy.
- iii. ASEAN is trying to create a common market and production base within ASEAN states and to aid social and economic development in the region.
- iv. ASEAN has focused on creating a Free Trade Area (FTA) for investment, labour, and services. The US and China have already moved fast to negotiate FTAs with ASEAN.

community.

- vi. The current economic strength of ASEAN, especially its economic relevance as a trading and investment partner to the growing Asian economies such as India and China, makes this an attractive proposition.

OR

Geographical proximity influences the formation of regional organisations because the countries of a region face similar problems. For example, before and after the Second World War, the South East Asian countries suffered the economic and political consequences of repeated colonialisms, both European and Japanese. There were common problems of nation-building, the ravages of poverty, economic backwardness and the pressure to join one bloc or the other during the Cold War. There was no informal cooperation and interaction. Thus, ASEAN was established by South East Asian countries. Similarly, the effects of the Second World War brought the West European states closer to each other. Marshall Plan, OEEC, Council of Europe, the European Economic Community, European Parliament and ultimately the European Union were various steps in this direction. If the European Union has succeeded in the creation of the European Parliament or to have a common currency i.e., Euro, it is due to their geographical proximity.

29. I. Meaning of coalition or alliance politics: The term 'coalition' as it generally used in political science, is a direct descendant of the exigencies of a multi-party system in a democratic set-up.

According to the dictionary meaning, coalition means an act of coalescing or uniting into one body, a union of persons, states, or an alliance. The coalition government of 1989 led by Janta Dal under Priministership of V.P. Singh, gain popularity for the first time.

II. Influence of alliance politics or coalition politics in India:

- i. India has adopted a multi-party system. There are more chances of alliances nowadays in our country as in many states or even at centre, not a single political party is getting clearcut majority since the last four-five general elections. In India, at the centre level, two alliances have been formed popularly known as NDA led by Bhartiya Janata Party and United Progressive Alliance UPA, led by Congress. It is a phenomenon of a multi-party government where a number of minority parties join hands for the purpose of running the government, which is otherwise not possible in a democracy based on a one-party system. A coalition is formed when many splinter groups in a House agree to join hands on a common platform by sinking their broad differences and form majority in the House. It is an astonishing chorus of discords. Though outwardly a coalition appears to be one solid mass, inwardly it is ridden by party fables and frantic party fervours and it is for this reason that coalition proves to be transient.

implies the existence of at least two partners. Thirdly, the underlying principle of a coalition system stands on the simple fact of temporary conjunction of specific interest. Fourthly, coalition politics is not a static but a dynamic affair as coalition players and groups dissolve and form new ones. Fifthly, the keynote of coalition politics is compromise and rigid dogma has no place in it. Sixthly, a coalition government works on the basis of a minimum programme which may not be ideal for each partner of the coalition. After all, politics is the art of possible and coalition politics is its highest expression. Seventhly, pragmatism and not ideology is the hallmark of coalition politics. Lastly, the purpose of a coalition adjustment is to seize power; it may seek to stake its claim for the formation of a ministry or for pulling a ministry down.

OR

The following elements of consensus have emerged among most political parties of India after the Lok Sabha Elections of 2004.

- i. Consensus upon the New Economic Policy: While many groups are opposed to the new economic policies, most political parties are in support of the new economic policies. Barring a few parties, the majority among them unanimously agrees to the new economic policy of globalization. Most parties believe and imagine that these will bring prosperity to the nation and thus, India will soon become an economic power of the world.
- ii. Consensus upon the socio-political claims of the backward castes: Political parties have recognized that the social and political claims of the backward castes need to be accepted. Almost all political parties have felt the need to accept the social and political demands of the backward castes in India. It can be observed from every party's focus on a reservation of seats/posts of backward castes in legislative and government institutions.
- iii. Consensus upon the role of regional parties in making the government: The difference between regional and national parties is gradually shrinking. Regional parties are setting alliance and share power with national parties at the national level, since the last twenty years and thus, these have played an important role in the politics in India.
- iv. Political alliance without consent of ideology: We observe that since the last two decades, parties with the difference in ideologies join in the alliance because they focus on power sharing. Such alliances are NDA and UPA, Popular United Front consisting of Akali Dal, CPI, CPI (M), SSP, Republican Party and Bhartiya Jansangh in Punjab (Assembly election 1967), Grand Alliance of 1971's general election, Alliance of Congress (R) with CPI, etc.
- v. Emphasis on Pragmatic Considerations: Coalition politics has shifted the focus of political parties from ideological differences and power-sharing arrangements. Thus

30. The major political developments that took place in India after the lifting of Emergency in 1977 were as follows:

- i. Janata Party: It accepted the leadership of Jayaprakash Narayan. Some leaders of the Congress who opposed the Emergency also joined this new party. Some other Congress leaders also came out and formed a separate party under the leadership of Jagjivan Ram. This party named as Congress for Democracy which later merged with the Janata Party. Janata Party made this election into a referendum on the Emergency. Its campaign was focussed on the non-democratic character of the rule and torture, atrocities, suppression, etc that took place during Emergency.
- ii. Result of 1977 Elections: The final result of 1977 election was surprising because the Congress was defeated in the Lok Sabha elections for the first time since independence. In North India, it was a massive electoral wave against the Congress. The Congress lost in every constituency in Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Delhi, Haryana and Punjab. It could hardly won any seat each in Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh. Indira Gandhi was defeated from Raebareli and her son Sanjay Gandhi from Amethi. The impact of Emergency was not felt equally in all the states. The forced relocations and displacements, the forced sterilisation, were mostly concentrated in the Northern states. The middle castes from North India were moving away from the Congress and Janata party became a platform for many of these sections to come together.
- iii. Split between Janata Government and Janata Party: Janata Party Government that came to power after 1977 elections were far from unity. There was stiff competition among Morarji Desai, Charan Singh and Jagjivan Ram for the post of Prime Minister. Finally, Morarji Desai became the Prime Minister but the internal power struggle within the party continued.
The Janata Party Government did not bring any fundamental change in policies pursued by Congress. The Janata Party split and the government led by Morarji Desai lost its majority in less than 18 months. Another Government headed by Charan Singh was formed on the assurance of the support of the Congress party. Fresh elections to Lok Sabha were held in January 1980 in which Janata Party lost badly, particularly in North India where it had swept the polls in 1977. Congress party under the leadership of Indira Gandhi repeated its great victory. It won 353 seats and form the government.

The Naxalite Movement: It was a peasant uprising that took place in the area of Naxalbari police station in Darjeeling hills district of West Bengal. It was led by local cadres of the Communist Party (M) in 1967. Soon the peasant movement spread to several states of India and came to be referred broadly as the Naxalite movement.

Role or activities of the Naxalite Movement:

argued that democracy in India was a facade and decided to adopt a strategy of protracted guerrilla warfare in order to lead a revolution.

- ii. The Naxalite movement has used force to snatch land from the rich landowners and give it to the poor who were landless. Its supporters advocated the use of violent means to achieve their political goals.
- iii. In spite of the use of preventive detention and other strong measures adopted by the Congress party government in West Bengal, the Naxalite movement did not come to an end. In later years, it spread to many other parts of the country.
- iv. The Naxalite movement has by now splintered into various parties and organisations. Some of these parties, like the CPI (M), participate in open, democratic politics.
- v. About 75 districts in nine states are affected by Naxalite violence. These give open support to farmers exploited by landlords who are denied their rightful share in produce, fair wages, and cheated by money lenders. These organisations are thus, more active in remote and backward areas including tribal regions.
