33. What is meant by formal organisation? Explain any three features of formal organisation. [6]

34. After acquiring the necessary knowledge and skills on starting an Aloevera Farm, Ashok wanted to be the leading manufacturer of Aloevera products worldwide. He observed that the products were expensive as the demand of the products was more than the supply. He was also keen to promote methods and practice that were economically viable, environmentally sound and at the same time protecting public health. [6]

Ashok's main consideration was about the amount of money paid by the consumers in consideration of the purchase of Aloevera product. He also thought that competitors prices and their anticipated reactions must also be considered for this. After gathering and analysing information and doing correct marketing planning, he came to know that the consumers compare the value of a product to the value of money they are required to pay. The consumers will be ready to buy a product when they perceived that the value of the product is at least equal to the value of money which they would pay.

Since he was entering into a new market, he felt that he may not be able to cover all costs. He knew that in the long run the business will not be able to survive unless all costs are covered in addition to a minimum profit.

He examined the quality and features of the products of the competitors and the anticipated reactions of the consumers. Considering the same he decided to add some unique features to the packaging and also decided to provide free home delivery of the products.

The above case relates to a concept which is considered to be an effective competitive marketing weapon. In conditions of perfect competition most of the firms compete with each other on this concept in the marketing of goods and services.

i. Identify the concept.

ii. Explain briefly any four factors discussed in the above case related to the concept so identified.

Controlling is a forward and backwards-looking function because it assesses the work is done and analyses deviations from the set standards and based on these deviations it attempts to take the required corrective measures to guides the future course of action and aims at improving future performance.
21. a. Based on the description, it appears that Aman joined the organization at the top-level management, such as the position of Chief Executive Officer (CEO), Chief Operating Officer (COO), or Chief Financial Officer (CFO), as his job involves integrating diverse elements, coordinating all activities of the business, and considering its impact on society.
b. In addition to the functions mentioned in the paragraph, Aman would also be responsible for the following functions at the top-level management:
i. Strategic Planning: Aman would be responsible for developing long-term plans and strategies for the organization, setting its objectives, and identifying the resources needed to achieve those objectives. This would involve conducting market research, analyzing competition, identifying new opportunities, and assessing the organization's strengths and weaknesses.
ii. Corporate Governance: Aman would be responsible for ensuring that the organization is managed in compliance with legal and regulatory requirements, and that it operates ethically and transparently. This would involve setting up appropriate policies and procedures, ensuring the integrity of financial reporting, and maintaining effective communication with stakeholders. Aman would also be responsible for ensuring that the organization's resources are used efficiently and effectively to achieve its objectives.

22. i. Maintaining day to day contact and friendly relations with the workers. He should act as a friend, philosopher and a guide to the workers.
- ii. Providing good on the job training to the workers to build an efficient team.

OR

- i. The element of directing being referred to is motivation.
 - ii. The importance of motivation is described below:
 - a. Increased employee commitment: When employees are motivated to work, they will generally put their best effort into the tasks that are assigned to them.
 - b. Improved employee satisfaction: Employee satisfaction is important for every company because this can lead to positive growth for the company.
23. i. Fixed Operating Costs:
- If a business has high fixed operating costs, it must reduce fixed financing costs. Hence, lower debt financing is better.
 - Similarly, if fixed operating cost is less, more of debt financing may be preferred.
- ii. Cash Flow Position of the Company:
- A stronger cash flow position may make debt financing more viable than funding through equity
24. Under the Consumer Protection Act 2019, a consumer is a person who buys any goods or avails services for a consideration, which has been paid or promised, or partly paid and partly promised, or under any scheme of deferred payment. It includes any user of such goods or beneficiary of services if such use is made with the approval of the buyer, but does not include a person who obtains goods or avails services for re-sale or any commercial purposes.

OR

Importance of consumer protection from consumer's point of view is:

- i. Spreading Awareness among the Consumers: Due to widespread ignorance of consumers about their rights and reliefs available to them, they need to be made aware in this regard Consumer protection provides information to the ignorant consumers regarding their rights and reliefs available to them. With this, even the sellers who try to cheat the ignorant and illiterate consumers, become conscious and mend their ways.
- ii. Unorganized consumers: Consumers need to be organized for safeguarding their interests. In developing countries like India, consumers are not organized. In other words, there is a dearth of a National Level Consumer Organization. There are very few consumer organizations which are working to protect the interests of consumers. Consumer protection encourages the establishment of more consumer organizations.

iii. Widespread exploitation of consumers: Consumers is exploited by unscrupulous, exploitative and unfair trade practices of sellers. They might be exploited by unfair trade practices like defective and unsafe products, adulteration, hoarding, black marketing, etc. Consumers need protection against such unfair trade practices. Consumer protection has been a support system for all such consumers to protect their interests and provide them justice.

25. While business planning is important and a requisite for every organization, it does have some limitations:

- i. Rigidity: Once the planning function is complete and the action plan is set, then the manager tends to only follow the plan. The manager may not be in a position to change the plan according to circumstances. Or the manager may be unwilling to change the plan. This sort of rigidity is not ideal for an organization.
- ii. Not ideal in Dynamic Conditions: In an economic environment rarely anything is stagnant or static. Economic, political, environmental, legal conditions keep changing. In such a dynamic environment it becomes challenging to predict future changes. And if a manager cannot forecast accurately, the plan may fail.
- iii. Planning can also reduce creativity: While making a plan takes creativity after that managers blindly follow the plan. They do not change the plan according to the dynamic nature of the business. Sometimes they do not even make the appropriate suggestions to upper management. The work becomes routine.

OR

Rule:

- (i) Rules are specific statements that inform or guides the employees what should or shouldn't be done in the organisation.
- (ii) Rule is standing type of plan. They are generally formalised in writing and are not made for individual.
- (iii) They do not allow for any flexibility or discretion. It reflects a managerial decision that a certain action must or must not be taken.
- (iii) For example, 'No Smoking' is a rule in some work areas and other places. Similarly, organisations formulate service rules and work rules on recruitment, promotion, leave, transfer, discipline, retirement, and so on.

Method:

- (i) Methods provide the best possible way to do a task and are performed for achievement of the objective.

(ii) Selection of proper method saves time, money and effort and increases efficiency.

(iii) For example, there are a number of methods for training the new employees amongst all the organisation. For higher level management orientation programmes, lectures and seminars can be organised whereas at the supervisory level, on the job training methods and work oriented methods are appropriate.

26. i. Controlling helps inefficient use of resources- Controlling help inefficient use of resources. An effective controlling system seeks to reduce wastage and spoilage of resources because activities are performed in accordance with predetermined standards.
- ii. Controlling facilitates decision-making- Controlling and decision-making are considered to be twins. The process of controlling is complete only when corrective measures are taken. This requires taking the right decision as to what type of follow up action is to be taken. Controlling helps in quick decision-making by bringing together all the units in action.

OR

Controlling is a basic managerial function. Controlling consists of verifying whether everything occurs in conformities with the plans adopted, instructions issued and principles established.

27. The following steps can be taken:

(i) Eliminate unnecessary movements in doing a work;

(ii) Conduct 'Fatigue study' and provide rest intervals to employees so as to enable them to regain lost stamina;

(iii) Use 'Differential piece wage system' in which efficient and inefficient workers are paid at different rates. It will motivate the workers to put in their maximum efforts.

28. Motivation is a goal-oriented characteristic that helps a person achieve his objectives. It pushes an individual to work hard at achieving his or her goals. An executive must have the right leadership traits to influence motivation. However, there is no specific blueprint for motivation.

As a leader, one should keep an open perspective on human nature. Knowing different needs of subordinates will certainly make the decision-making process easier.

Both an employee as well as manager must possess leadership and motivational traits. An effective leader must have a thorough knowledge of motivational factors for others. He must understand the basic needs of employees, peers and his superiors. Leadership is used as a means of motivating others.

32. The various dimensions of business environment are explained as follows:
- 1. Economic Environment: Economic environment consists of GDP (Gross Domestic Product), interest rates, inflation rates, increase or decrease in disposable income of people, share market indices and increase or decrease in value of rupee are some important economic factors which affect working of a business firm. A business firm is primarily an economic organization and its welfare and survival is ultimately dependent on economic environment and market conditions. For example; increase or decrease in the rate of interest will affect the demand for product and services, increase in disposable income of people will create demand for products and services.

2. Social Environment: Social environment is also uncontrollable force which affects the performance of an enterprise. Social environment includes social forces i.e. values, social trends, customs, traditions and society's expectations from business etc. if any business organization does not adapt the social environment then it will lead to the dissatisfaction among its customers and rejection of its products.
For example; celebration of Diwali, New Year, and Christmas etc. provides business opportunities to greeting card companies, sweets and confectionery manufacturers etc.
3. Political Environment: Political stability and peace in the country would provide a healthy business environment and new opportunities for growth and development. It sends a signal of strength, confidence to various interested groups and investors. Political instability will have negative impact upon business and there may be uncertainty of business activities. Attitudes of government officials towards business may have either positive or negative impact upon business. For the growth of business and economy, political stability is necessary.
4. Technological Environment: Technological environment include the scientific improvements, methods, innovations, techniques and approaches adopted by a business firm for production of goods and services and its distribution. Technological environment provides new ways of producing goods and services and new methods and techniques of operating a business firm. For example; technological advancement in computers and electronics has change the method of advertising a product, airline companies like Jet Airways and Air India have internet and World Wide Web pages where customers can look for flight and book their tickets online
5. Legal Environment: Legal environment means framework of laws and various legislations within which a business firm organizes its business activities. It is necessary for all business firms to obey the law of land. Legal environment consists of various legislations passed by the Parliament and State Legislatures, administrative orders issued by the government authorities, court judgments and decisions rendered by various commissions and agencies at every level of the government (Central, State or Local). Proper knowledge of these rules and regulations is necessary for the better business performance. For example; a business firm cannot advertise alcohol beverages on Television. It is prohibited, on the packets of cigarettes, it is compulsory to provide a statutory warning "Cigarette smoking is injurious to health".

OR

The various features of Business Environment which are discussed above are:

- i. Uncertainty: However with the passage of time it has found entrance of new service providers in the market which were not expected at one stage of time. The changes in the business environment cannot be predicted accurately because of future uncertainties.
- ii. Dynamic nature: The company has decided to adapt to such continuously changing circumstances.
- iii. Relativity: Thus it understands that conditions are different in different countries. The type of force which is discussed above is General Force-Legal (Traffic rules), Technological (Technical aspects). 33. Formal organization is a network of set rules, set responsibilities and a clear account of all the job positions.

Features of the formal organization are as follows:

- i. Defined inter-relationship: It is a sort of arrangement which clearly defines the mutual relationship. Everybody knows their authority and responsibilities. This clearly shows who will be reporting to whom. In case one violates this relationship, he can be there and then held responsible for the same
- ii. Based on rules and procedures: It is important to observe all the pre-determined rules and procedures in the formal organization. The objectives laid down under planning are thus achieved.
- iii. Based on the division of work: The chief basis of formal organization is the division of work. It is this that connects the efforts of different departments with each other.
- iv. Deliberately created: It is deliberately created in order to achieve the objectives of the organisation in an easy manner.
- v. It is more stable: Changes cannot be introduced because of the needs of individuals and their wishes. Therefore, it is more stable.

34. i. The concept referred to above is Pricing. Price is the value that is put to a product or service and is the result of a complex set of calculations, research and understanding and risk taking ability. A pricing strategy takes into account segments, ability to pay, market conditions, competitor actions, trade margins and input costs, amongst others. It is targeted at the defined customers and against competitors.

- ii. The four factors discussed in the above case related to the concept so identified are:
 - a. Product Cost: The total cost of product includes production, selling and distribution costs. In the long run the firm strives to cover all their costs. The cost sets the minimum level or floor price for a product. In addition to that firm aims to earn a profit margin over and above the costs.

- b. The Utility and Demand: It is necessary to anticipate the utility and demand of a product, while fixing the price, as if a product is offering higher utility, one can easily charge high price from the customer. Whereas, if utility is low, one cannot charge a high price for such products.
- c. The extent of Competition in the Market: The price of a product can be set up to the higher limit, if the extent of competition is low in the market, and vice-versa. Competitors' price, their reactions, their product, quality and features must be considered before fixing the price.
- d. Government and Legal Regulations: To protect the interest of general public, the government has all the rights to control the prices of various products and services by including the products in the category of essential commodities such as drugs, some food items, LPG, etc.
