Quick Revision Notes

- On her thirteenth birthday, Anne Frank's parents give her a diary.
- Anne starts writing about daily events, her thoughts, school grades, boys, all that.
- For two years, the Frank family lives in this Secret Annex.
- Anne grows in her knowledge of politics and literature, and she puts tons of energy into studying and writing.
- At the same time, she grows further and further away from the other members of the Annex.
- We see a real change in Anne when she begins hanging out in the attic with Peter van Daan.
- Around this time she starts having dreams about a boy she was in love with, another Peter: Peter Schiff.
- She sometimes even gets the two Peters confused in her head.
- There her diary ends. Two short months after Anne's fifteenth birthday, and two days after he last diary entry, the Secret Annex is raided.
- We don't know Anne's thoughts or feelings at that point or any time after, but we know things got worse.

- As you probably already know, Anne and the other members of the Annex were sent to various concentration camps. Anne's father, Otto Frank, was the sole survivor.
