

MISSION

Streamline cross-border collaborations on drug development by sharing real-life, practical experiences to achieve greater harmonization

Diseases do not recognize borders, and neither should we. Innovative medicines are needed around the world. The constraint of resources, especially among economically marginalized geographies, limits access to new drug treatments.

We hope leaders can find inspiration from our efforts to empower colleagues to collaborate across borders, effectively address the healthcare needs of a diverse global population together, and to build mutual trust and shared understanding.

Bioaroundworld is a global platform focusing on cross-border knowledge sharing in the biopharma sector, bringing together regulatory and industry experts, to promote innovation and accelerate drug approval across regions in the most resource-efficient manner.
